B.C. TEL PROFITS NEAR RECORD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Near-record earnings of $19.05 million were reported for 1970 by British Columbia Telephone Co. in its annual report to shareholders released today.

The net earnings were $143,000 below the record 1969 earnings of $19.195 million.

The earning figures were made public earlier this month when the company made application to the Canadian Transport Commission for rate increases ranging as high as 15 per cent.

Earnings per share in 1970 dropped to $5.10, down 18 cents from the 1969 level, due in part to a small decline in earnings and in part to an increase in outstanding shares to 2,877,000 from 2,805,000.

The report said about $117 million will be required for capital expansion in 1971 and that the company would have to seek about half the amount in the market place in competition with other borrowers.

"Obviously, we must maintain earning levels which are appealing to other investors," the report said.

U.S. Troops May Enter Laos For 'Rescues'

Times News Services

SAIGON — American "rescue teams" to help downed pilots may be sent in to Laos, the U.S. military command here said today.

"We would do anything we felt necessary to rescue downed crew members," a spokesman for the command said when asked if U.S. troops had crossed the border from South Vietnam.

The Saigon announcement came hard on the heels of the defeat of two South Vietnamese bases inside Laos and the shooting down of two U.S. helicopters and a jet fighter.

DEFENDERS DEAD

The 450 defenders of one base were wiped out by the North Vietnamese and a second base was under heavy siege. Field reports said the North Vietnamese were inflicting heavy casualties on the defenders.

The fall of the Saigon base on Hill 31 was the second major defeat for the South Vietnamese in the 19-day-old Laotian campaign to disrupt supply traffic down the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Last Sunday a ranger battalion was driven from a base five miles away with 323 of its 450 men killed, wounded or missing.

Shortly before Hill 31 was overrun, two downed American pilots were plucked from the fringes of the base after 21 hours hiding in a trench from the 1,500 to 2,000 North Vietnamese besieging the base. The anti-aircraft fire was so heavy it took 75 fighter-bomber strikes to suppress it enough for a rescue helicopter to get in.

20 BULLET HOLES

Associated Press correspondent William Barton reported from Khe Sanh that an American helicopter pilot flew back from a mission over the base with 20 AK-47 holes in his craft.

The pilot said he was signalled down to the outpost by troops "popping green smoke." They were North Vietnamese, but "they were dressed in ARVN (Army of Republic of Vietnam) uniforms," the pilot said. "They got them from the dead, I guess."

After he landed his Cobra gunship, the North Vietnamese troops opened fire. The pilot took off in a rush and literally skidded into Khe Sanh, Barton reported.

The U.S. command threw wave after wave of fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships in the battle to save Hill

TEAMSTERS ORDERED BACK

Cabinet Invokes Bill 33

HIJACKED PASSENGERS including 67 U.S. Army inductees mill in immigration lobby of Vancouver International Airport after Western Airlines Boeing 737 was forced to land there instead of Seattle. No bomb was found aboard and plane left for Seattle at 1:09 a.m. today.

Monday Set As Deadline

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson announced today that the cabinet has ordered an end to the Teamsters Union strike of the general trucking industry.

At a press conference immediately following a cabinet meeting this morning, Peterson said a back-to-work order has been served to both Teamsters and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association under Section 18 of the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33).

The dispute has been referred to the mediation commission for a binding decision, but he told reporters the union has until Monday to go back to work.

Blair Whitelock, president of Teamsters' Local 31, contacted in Vancouver immediately after the cabinet decision was announced, told the Times there would be nothing to say until the union's officers had time to study the official order.

But asked whether the Teamsters would appear before the mediation commission, he said:

"Definitely not."

Peterson refused to comment on what the governent would do if the Teamsters do not return to their jobs.

FREE TO BARGAIN

However, Peterson said the government hopes a binding settlement does not have to be served by the commission. He noted that both parties are free to continue bargaining.

The key factor in the dispute, he said, is the struck goods clause and he said he hoped it would not be too difficult for negotiations to be resumed because only one issue is at stake.

As he indicated in the legislature Wednesday when the house passed a resolution recommending an end to the dispute, Peterson said today the union will go back to work at the rate of pay tentatively agreed to in a previous settlement which was rejected by the employers.

"I am sure that the Teamsters, as this is the law of the land, will obey the law," Peterson said.

Invasion 'Misquote'

SAIGON (AP) — A spokesman for President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that Thieu had been misquoted as saying an invasion of North Vietnam is only a matter of time.

"The quotes were inaccurate and out of context," said Hoang Duc Nha, press secretary to the president.

"What President Thieu said was that South Vietnamese forces have taken the initiative and are now capable of fighting the Communists any time, any place, on any battlefield."

The English-language Saigon Post quoted Thieu as saying in a speech in Pleiku Wednesday that "a march on North Vietnam now only depends on the time factor."

The government news service, Vietnam Press, reported that in "answering the convention's request for a march north, President Thieu said it was only a matter of time."

Man Held After Jet Hijacking

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner told the Commons today that the government is giving "immediate and careful consideration" to the case of a youthful suspect being held in Vancouver following an aerial hijacking.

A Western Airlines jet with U.S. Army conscripts aboard was forcibly diverted to Vancouver Thursday after being hijacked on a scheduled flight from San Francisco to Seattle.

The immigration department identified the youth being held as Chappin Scott Patterson.

His home town is Shingle Springs, Calif., and his age 19.

Patterson threatened to blow up the plane, indicating he had a bomb, "something in a bag."

The tense sky drama began over Medford, Ore., about an hour after the 92 passengers — including 67 inductees and recruits — and a crew of five had left San Francisco aboard the Boeing 737, bound for Seattle.

It ended when the California youth with long black hair and a moustache surrendered calmly to RCMP officers in the emptied plane moments after it touched down at Vancouver International Airport. Police said charges were pending.

Few of the passengers knew about the suspense in the cockpit after the youth approached a stewardess in the galley and ordered her to take him to the captain.

He told Capt. Bruce De Spain of Seattle he wanted to go to Cuba. But when he was told the aircraft didn't have enough fuel for the trip, he settled for Vancouver.

The pilot said when the plane landed, the youth asked him not to go near the terminal building. He asked to talk to the tower.

Capt. DeSpain said the youth told the tower he had no bomb and wanted to give himself up.

The plane was scheduled to land at Seattle at 9:47 p.m. PST and arrived in Vancouver at 10:16 p.m.

Vancouver Gets SNOW!

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were called to numberous minor accidents today as a snowfall put a slippery glaze on streets in the Vancouver area.

Stations to Use Credit Card Check

Imperial and Gulf service station operators in Greater Victoria have a new international computer service to catch credit card crooks.

The service enables a check on a customer's credit card to be made within 30 seconds via a long-distance phone call to a computer centre.

People misusing credit cards annually steal millions of dollars in goods and services from oil companies.

In Toronto, at least six of the biggest oil firms indicated today they are using or are planning to use computers for instant checks on credit card purchases over $15.

Spokemen for Imperial and Gulf in Vancouver told the Times the service is already being used by their dealers in the Victoria area or will be by Monday.

Joseph Greer, Imperial's credit manager in B.C., said the computer check system has been used in the U.S. successfully for about a year.

LINKED TO COMPUTER

Calls from Canadian dealers go to a centre at Don Mills, outside Toronto, which is linked with the major computer bank in Atlanta, Georgia.

In Toronto, an official of Fina Petroleum said his company was forced to hire a costly computer-detective system because each stolen credit card has been costing at least $1,000 to $3,000.

Tom Allmand, Fina's assistant treasurer, said his company has had "some

Teacher Firing Goes to Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia government edict ordering the dismissal of teachers who advocate the policies of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) or the overthrow of the government by violent means has been challenged in B.C. Supreme Court.

The action was brought Thursday by six B.C. teachers who claim the ruling made Oct. 22 by the B.C. cabinet is invalid.

The group includes four university teachers, one Vancouver area teacher and an instructor at the Burnaby Vocational Institute. They are represented by lawyer Tom Berger, and are seeking a court declaration that the government did not have the power to make the order-in-council.

Mr. Berger said that while the action is not being brought before the court by a defendant, as is usual, the six have what he called "a special interest" giving them the right to submit their case.

George Cumming, appearing for the attorney-general, who is named as defendant, said the action is "premature."

The hearing continues.

IRA Women Arrested In Dublin

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — About 50 Roman Catholic women hurling sticks and wearing the uniform of the outlawed Irish Republican Army clashed with police today.

A police spokesman said 38 women were arrested.

The clash came when the women defied scores of police and British troops guarding the trial of four men arrested during funerals earlier this month for Catholic men killed in rioting in Belfast.

Colonel Facing Court Martial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army today ordered a general court-martial for Col. Oran K. Henderson on charges that he "wilfully failed to conduct a proper and thorough investigation" of the My Lai massacre three years ago.

At the same time, the army dismissed charges of "failure to obey lawful regulations" which were filed against Capt. Dennis H. Johnson, an intelligence officer.

This means that only one of 14 officers originally charged in an alleged My Lai cover-up attempt will stand trial.

Henderson, 50, of Indianapolis, was commander of the 11th Infantry Brigade at the time of the My Lai incident March 16, 1968.

The brigade was part of an infantry force which swept through the hamlet area where more than 100 South Vietnamese men, women and children were slain, allegedly by members of a platoon headed by Lieut. William Calley, who is on trial at Fort Benning, Ga., on murder charges.

Henderson's court-martial will be held at Ft. Meade, Md., but no date has yet been set.

Oil Men Pause In Negotiations

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Oil company negotiators left Tripoli Thursday for consultations on Libya's demands for higher revenues from its oil, amid indications that a showdown is approaching.

The date has not been announced for a resumption of talks, but an oil company official said he expected to be out of Tripoli for at least five days.

Mile-Long Oil Slick Contaminates Long Beach, Tofino Area

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An oil slick estimated to be a mile long has washed up on Chesterman's beach, situated just north of the Long Beach national park on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

Traces of oil has also been found on Long Beach proper and slicks have drifted into Clayoquot Sound and contaminated beaches on the Opisat Indian reserve, Tofino residents report today.

"It is a terrible sight," said Enrie Bach, an official of the Chamber of Commerce, who was among the residents who discovered the slick Thursday.

He said the oil had polluted one of the most beautiful beaches on the west coast.

It was about 200 feet wide and most of the oil globules ranged from pea size to larger chunks close to a foot in diameter, he said.

William Silta, president of the Tofino Chamber of Commerce, said the oil appeared to be crude oil flushed from a ship's tanks.

In Vancouver, an armed forces spokesman said a helicopter crew confirmed the contamination but was unable to track down the source.

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, chairman of the House of Commons special committee on environmental pollution, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he was discussing the subject with minister-designate for the environment, Jack Davis.

"This is what I'm fighting against," he said. "The spill at Long Beach is tiny in comparison with what we can expect if the Valdez to Puget Sound tanker route is established.

"This spill proves the need for much tighter international control of shipping operations," he added.

Commenting on a telegram sent earlier by Alberni MLA Howard McDiarmid asking the federal government for a public statement on policies governing oil spills, Anderson said Canadian legislation to prevent such pollution was the "toughest in the world."

"But the problem is surveillance," he said. "That is why it is happening, plus the lack of tough international regulations."

Robert Baird, senior steamship inspector with the federal transport department, said the oil could have come from a long way out in the Pacific.

It added that it was more likely to have come from a tanker moving between Alaska and the U.S.

Norman Sewell, an expert on oil spills, said as long as it remained acceptable under international maritime law to dump bilge oil into the sea, people were going to have to learn to live with such slicks.

Sewell is president of a company which manufactures machines to clean up oil spills.

He pointed out between 300 and 500 million tons of such oil is deliberately dumped into the world's oceans every year by ships pumping out their bilges.

$1,060 Almost Spent For Faces in Papers

Victoria aldermen Thursday nearly agreed to spend $1,060 to have their pictures included on a full-page advertisement in special issues of the two Victoria newspapers.

The item actually passed a vote, with Aldermen Peter Pollen and Clyde Savage opposed, but Ald. Hugh Ramsay later introduced a motion to rescind the decision.

It was referred back to committee, with the intention of cutting the advertisement in half.

Last week council's finance committee was shown a full page advertisement bearing the pictures of the mayor and aldermen — proposed for centennial issues of the Times and Colonist.

There was some question then about whether pictures of all the aldermen were needed.

At Thursday's council meeting, Ramsay said he could see "certain reasons to cooperate" but noted the advertisement "is an entire page."

The $1,060 cost to taxpayers is "a pretty sizable amount," Ramsay said, adding it might look like "a certain move for self-aggrandizement."

When a suggestion to reduce the ad to a half page was made, including only the mayor's picture, the mayor protested.

Another suggestion came from Ald. Pollen: "If we put it in the classified we'd get a substantial reduction."

Ald. Ove Witt, apparently disgusted with the idea of a full page ad, remarked facetiously: "I agree but I am sorry — I want to see my pretty face in it."

The whole thing will be reconsidered back in finance committee.

. . . TEAMSTER

Copies of the order-in-council will be served today to ATLRA executive director Carl Anshelm, Whitelock, and mediation commission chairman John Parker.

The order-in-council names only Local 31, but Peterson said that the order applies to all striking Teamsters because the local is designated before the Labor Relations Board as the bargaining agent for the entire union.

The reason Teamsters do not have to be at work until Monday, Peterson said, is that the law allows 24 hours for normal operations to be resumed, giving the union the rest of the weekend.

The order-in-council names 56 companies who must comply. Included in the list are three Victoria companies, Capital Freightways, Johnston Terminals and Dowell's Cartage.

The Teamsters Union said late Thursday it is prepared to meet with management in the general trucking dispute, but it received a swift negative response.

The moves followed strike action by the Teamsters against all companies which declared a lockout last Friday in response to a strike by the union against one company.

The Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association had earlier withdrawn the lockout by some 70 companies.

Carl Anshelm, executive director of the ATLRA, denied a suggestion that the refusal to negotiate was based on the expectation the cabinet will order an end to the work stoppage and provide for compulsory arbitration of the issues.

'HARASSMENT'

He said the Teamsters Union strike action was one reason. Another was "the increasing harassment" of independent companies who would not sign new agreements, he said.

He said one truck bound for Richmond Hospital had pickets follow it who "tried to physically" prevent the driver from making delivery. He said in another case a driver going home was followed by pickets who shouted "abusive language."

Anshelm disputed Teamster Union figures on the size of the independent companies signed to new agreements.

He said "probably" 400 employees are covered in the new agreements and about 25 per cent of the trucking industry is operating — including signed independents and companies in the middle of agreements.

He admitted three association companies had signed, but the others had not. The three breakaways had a total of 84 employees, he said, but the association had picked up three new members since the dispute started.

Teamsters Union officials said they have signed 48 companies in B.C. and that almost 50 per cent of the general trucking industry is running. They said 1,800 Teamsters are on strike and between 1,400 and 1,500 are working under contract.

Main issue in the dispute is the union's proposal for a struck goods clause, under which employees could refuse to operate equipment brought through picket lines by non-union personnel. This would be an extension of an old clause which allowed employees to refuse to cross picket lines.

. . . CREDIT

losses reach $6,000 to $7,000" from a single credit card in a crook's hands.

The computer system is owned by National Communications and Data Corp., of Atlanta, Ga. It works like this:

When someone wants to make a credit card purchase over $15, a clerk or service station attendant dials a number, which connects him with the central computer in Atlanta, and has the card checked within 30 seconds.

THE COMPUTER KNOWS

The computer indicates whether the card is valid or stolen and at the same time provides a credit rating on the customer. If the card is stolen, the attendant is able to confiscate it and call police.

The computer company also services Gulf Oil, Supertest, Home Oil, Imperial Oil. Sunoco soon will be starting the service and Shell Oil is considering the service.

The companies indicated they were not overly concerned about gasoline losses. Their greatest concern is with losses on tires, batteries, and other appliances and large amounts run up on motels, restaurants and car rentals.

Although none of the oil companies would comment on the cost of the computer service, J. M. Esdaile, credit manager for Imperial Oil Ltd., said in Toronto his company would "save about $2 for every $1 we spend."

He said the Mobile Corp. in the U.S. paid the computer service about $500,000 in a year, but estimated it saved $5 million in fraudulent sales.

Police Nab 2, But 3 Flee In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Police wounded one of five bandits, armed with machine-guns, who robbed a Brink's security truck of an undetermined amount of money today in suburban Longueuil. Three escaped.

Police said the wounded man was shot in the cheek and the bullet stuck in his neck. He was taken to hospital.

The exchange of gunfire came minutes after the five robbed the truck, owned by Brink's Express Co. of Canada Ltd.

A second man was arrested.

Police said a teller spotted the five approaching the Brink's guards as they left the truck to take money into a branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Gas Explodes

CALGARY (CP) — A small natural gas explosion ripped open a 16-inch service main in the downtown part of the city Thursday while a maintenance crew was working on the pipe.

One worker, Emery Boucher, 26, was directly injured by the explosion and two others were overcome by the gas. There was no fire.

After the explosion, gas company employee Earl Lang, 35, entered a manhole to shut off the flow but collapsed from the fumes.

Another worker, Vincent Lalonde, 28, was lowered into the hole to get Lang but also lost consciousness and was pulled back then taken to hospital for observation.

Grant Made

BURNABY (CP) — The Greater Vancouver Visitors' and Convention Bureau has received a $20,000 grant from Burnaby council. It is part of a $51,152 package recommended by the council's grant committee and was approved despite the objection of two aldermen.

dent of the Chemical Institute, called for a new science policy to solve environmental problems, such as oil pollution.

Schemilt, who was in Victoria Thursday and addressed the Institute's Vancouver Island section at the University of Victoria, said today that more research should go into the problem of oil pollution.

"In Canada we have a burgeoning scientific manpower supply," he said, "but we are not using sufficient scientists in this field of endeavor."

On the controversial issue revolving around the use of ocean transport or a pipe line for carrying Alaska oil to continental United States, he said environmental effects should be considered before any decision is made on this matter.

Schreyer Comment 'Absolute Balls'

OTTAWA (CP) — The use of earthy expressions shifted Thursday from the government front benches to the back benches of Parliament.

E. B. Osler (L—Winnipeg South Centre) brought House heads sharply erect by saying Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba was talking "absolute balls" when re recently said the federal government is not doing anything to fight unemployment.

When some unbelieving members demanded, "What is that?" Mr. Osler repeated "Balls, absolute balls."

Twice last week Prime Minister Trudeau was alleged by opposition members to have mouthed a pair of explicit words he later interpreted as "fuddle-duddle" in reaction to Commons questions.

On those occasions no record was kept since the words were not said. Thursday Mr. Osler's remarks were duly recorded by the Hansard stenographer, keeping the written record of Commons exchanges.

But while the remarks of Mr. Osler and the alleged remarks of Mr. Trudeau caused concern among members, there appears no parliamentary precedent for official censure of either since neither of the expressions is listed among those prohibited under House language rules.

No Wrong Intent In Buried TNT

CAMPBELL RIVER — RCMP said today no criminal intent was involved in six sticks of dynamite found buried in a concrete block this week.

The block was brought home from Nanoose Bay last fall by Cindy Callow of 1691 19th Ave. The block split after Cindy's father, David, used it to jack up his truck, revealing the sticks of crystallized stumping powder.

A demolition crew from CFB Comox set off the dynamite in a rock quarry.

An RCMP spokesman said the matter was being investigated, but he thought the dynamite might have been encased in the cubic foot of cement for "some sort of exotic method" of using it, rather than to hide it.

A member of the Comox squad also had a theory: the owner had encased the dynamite with the intention of sinking it in the bay.

In any case, he said, the dynamite was dangerous in the condition it was in this week.

"He said it was crystallized, sensitive to the point where the scrape of a fingernail might have set it off," Mrs. Callow said.

After the block split, Callow had kicked it to one side of his driveway before he noticed the dynamite.

Cindy brought the block home because of a crude drawing of a man's head on one side, which she thought might have been early Indian work.

"We don't have any more blocks like it," Mrs. Callow said, "and we're not going to be picking up any more."

Defence Department Posts Filled

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department today announced new assignments for four senior officers during July and August.

Maj.-Gen. D. C. Laubman, 49, Edmonton, will be appointed deputy chief of military personnel at Ottawa forces headquarters.

Gen. Laubman, now commander of Canadian forces in Europe, succeeds Lt.-Gen. Jacques Dextraze, 51, of Montreal, appointed chief of personnel in December.

Brig.-Gen. W. C. Leonard, 50, of Toronto, will take over command of the forces in Europe from Gen. Laubman.

Brig.-Gen. Jacques Chouinard, 48, of Montreal, will succeed Gen. Leonard, now commander of the 4th Canadian mechanized battle group in West Germany.

Col. J. B. Archambault, 47, of Ottawa, will succeed Gen. Chouinard, now commander of the forces at Valcartier, Que.

Pro-Canadian

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia senate Wednesday approved a recommendation urging that as much Canadian content as possible be included in the university's curriculum. The senate also tabled a notice of motion which called upon the provincial government and the university board of directors to provide funds to increase research by universities into matters of Canadian concern.

. . . LAOS

31. Barton reported two more U.S. helicopters were shot down in Laos, and the fate of the crews was not known. A fighter-bomber was also lost.

DRIVE IN TROUBLE

Saigon's drive into Laos appears to be in serious trouble. North Vietnamese troops attacked several other South Vietnamese bases and field positions both to the north and south of Highway 9, the focal point of the drive.

South Vietnamese forces have made no forward movement in the last nine days. The fighting Thursday and today was some of the heaviest of the Indochina war, and some U.S. officers said it was the heaviest.

A U.S. military spokesman also announced that more American helicopters were brought into the region today to provide additional fire power, troop lift, medical evacuation and logistic support for the South Vietnamese.

The United States committed 300 helicopters to the battle originally but the command said 30 had been destroyed. Front dispatches have estimated dozens more have been put out of action through enemy shelling, gunfire or crashes in Laos and Vietnam.

WOMAN SINGED ESCAPING HOUSE FIRE

A 69-year-old North Saanich woman escaped with singed hair from a fire that caused extensive damage to the ground level of her 895 Towner Park Road home Thursday evening.

Mrs. Nora Taylor, Sidney RCMP said, was alone in the house at the time of the blaze.

The cause of the fire was not known today although an officer said it is believed to involve cigarettes.

He said the alarm was received shortly after 8 p.m.

Beach Cleanup

Members of the Lake Hill district Girl Guides and 4th Cedar Hill Cubs and Scouts will participate in a beach cleanup at Mount Douglas Park March 7 from 1 to 3 p.m. The two groups said the public is welcome to come equipped with garbage bags and sturdy containers.

Pipeline Easier To Defend—Leir

Rear-Admiral Richard Leir, Canada's top military officer in British Columbia, said Thursday, it would be much simpler to defend a pipeline carrying oil through Canada in wartime than flotillas of ocean tankers.

He termed "absolutly spurious" suggestions being voiced in the United States that American national security would be better served if Alaskan oil was shipped by water.

A draft report for the U.S. interior department alludes to the national security aspect:

"It should also be taken into consideration that constructing a pipeline through Canada would require special international arrangements and would result in a supply that is not wholly within the control of the United States."

wartime, adds that a situation where Canada would be actively hostile to the United States is inconceivable in the light of existing joint defence agreements.

He says that tankers, using proposed routes through international waters from Valdez, Alaska, to Washington State would be travelling in "a no-man's land.

"There is absolutely no question that I would rather defend a pipeline."

Larry Slaght, district manager for the federal department of transport in Victoria, said the tanker route due to be completely marked by this fall will involve only one buoy being placed in Canadian waters.

This buoy will be placed just north of the Middle Bank in Haro Strait, out from Discovery Island.

The new channel route, requested by Atlantic-Richfield, whose oil refinery near Bellingham will process Alaskan crude oil, will be at 60-foot depths.

The company had asked for a 90-foot channel for the huge tankers expected to be in operation by the late 1970s.

Slaght said that even when the 90-foot route is installed the Middle Bank buoy will be the only one in Canadian territory.

He added that the 90-foot channel had been delayed because a certain amount of dredging will be involved.

Metchosin Man Dead After Canoe Mishap

Sooke RCMP are notifying next of kin today after divers pulled the body of a Metchosin man from an East Sooke lake early Thursday evening following a canoeing accident.

RCMP have not released the name of the victim. CFB Esquimalt divers found the body at the bottom of Matheson Lake, near Pedder Bay, about 6 p.m.

The accident was reported by Kevin Costain, of 1320 Queensbury, Saanich, about 2 p.m. He saw the canoe drifting upside down near the shore.

Costain had earlier seen a man in the canoe with a dog.

Near the overturned boat, police said, was the dog which appeared to Costain to be the same one he had seen with the man in the canoe.

Costain had been hiking around the lake which is the centre of Matheson Lake Provincial Park.

In the city, Victoria police reported the death of an 83-year-old man after an apparent fall from a second-floor hospital window.

Dead is Alfred Dendoff, 1362 Chestnut, a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said it is believed the victim fell about 20 feet from a window about 9:30 a.m. Thursday. He died at St. Joseph's about 3 p.m.

Meeting Set For March 5 On New Centre

A public meeting to hear residents views on a proposed community centre in Saanich will be held Friday, March 5, not Thursday as previously announced.

Ald. Alan Newberry, chairman of the council-citizens Cedar Hill Recreation Study Committee, said the meeting will start at 8 p.m. Friday in Doncaster Eelmentary.

The 1967 recreation referendum provided $260,000 for the community centre but the specific use of the centre was not stated.

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

You don't need a calendar to tell you spring is on its way. If you haven't already felt it in your winter-weary bones, look around you. The signs are everywhere. Mind you, they're not necessarily the same signs for everybody.

Spring to a sports buff may be news that the Florida and Arizona sweat shops are open again and are doing a land-rush business removing the unwanted winter accumulation of pounds from aspiring baseball players. And, looking a little farther ahead, it's only a matter of weeks now before that first ball is thrown out to usher in the festivities of another baseball season.

Year-end inventories and income tax returns are signs of spring to the businessman closing out one year and preparing for another.

Astronomers too cannot fail to see the signs, even if they never take their eyes off the heavens. The most prominent constellation of winter, mighty Orion the Hunter, is slowly leaving the heavenly scene to be replaced by constellations of spring. Each night finds his majestic trek across the winter sky carrying him lower and lower towards the western horizon.

And gardeners? Spring for them started almost as soon as they laid down their spades and pruning shears last fall. They've been preparing for the great event all winter.

But it's the naturalists who are really tuned-in to Sping. They see the signs — nature's signs — all around them, the blooming crocuses, the budding daffodils, the new green shoots of leaves bursting their buds and above all, a peculiar restlessness among the birds.

Varied thrushes, robins and juncos are showing signs of impatience. Where all fed together, lived together and generally seemed to enjoy one another's company all winter, squabbles and bickering now break out for no apparent reasons.

But there is a reason. The bond that held the flock together through the winter is breaking down; the bond of the flock is being replaced by the bond of the pair. As the nesting season nears, the flock which served the group so well through the winter food forays, begins to disintegrate as the birds prepare to exercise their territorial imperative.

Signs of this disintegration are the fights between individuals that are continually breaking out. Winter's togetherness becomes spring's move to individuality and it's all triggered by the sun. As the days lengthen, physiological changes are occurring within the birds, preparing them for the events to come —namely reproducing their kind.

But the flock is not quite finished. Its ties are still strong enough to hold the group together through the journey to the nesting grounds. Then, its duty done, the flock steps aside, the pair bond takes over, territories are staked and the job of nesting begins.

●

Robins in Victoria these days show signs of several stages of this changeover from flock to breeding pair. On the open grassy areas of Beacon Hill Park, large wintering flocks still gather to feed and fatten-up for their journey north. At the same time throughout the city, male resident robins are laying out their territories, subject to the female's later approval, and beginning to announce their ownership in the challenge of song.

The varied thrushes are not so far along as their robin brethren. Their flocks still hold together; only the restlessness before their move back into the mountain forests, and their frequent bursts of morning song, confirm the nearness of the nesting season.

The same holds true for the juncos. Like the thrushes, some juncos may move only a few hundred yards to their summer breeding grounds in the forests while others prepare to move long distances to remote mountain valleys to live out the summer and raise their young.

Meanwhile, farther south, in California, Mexico and Central America, other birds are preparing to move north. March will find Audubon's Warbler, brant, violet-green swallows and Rufus Hummingbirds in the vanguard of spring. And here, winter an bewicks wrens, silent through the months of winter, will add their voices to the signs of the season.

THE VARIED THRUSH will soon be leaving its winter home around Victoria for spring nesting areas in the mountains.

Incorporation Standards Hit

British Columbia's double standard of corporate organization was termed juvenile Thursday in a hearing of the legislative private bills committee into a Seaboard Life Insurance bid to alter its capital.

Garde Gardom (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) said the system of putting some incorporations through the legislature results in "wishy washy" provisions "far below the requirements of the Companies Act," and results in "two standards of corporate procedure in this province."

REDUCTION ASKED

The standing committee is asked to allow Seaboard to reduce the par value of its shares from $5 to $2 to produce a surplus account that will remove an impairment of capital determined by the province of Alberta, where Seaboard carries on part of its insurance business.

A shareholders protective committee, representing a 46 per cent minority, argues a December meeting that approved the reduction was improperly informed and that the move should have been presented as a special resolution requiring 75 per cent approval.

Instead, said minority spokesmen, Bryan Williams and Ernest Hudson, the majority shareholders (with about 52 per cent control) passed the proposal as an ordinary resolution with simple majority approval.

NEED 75%

The Companies Act requires this sort of capital alteration to be approved by 75 per cent of shareholders, while the act incorporating Seaboard is not subject to that section of the Companies Act.

The committee suggested the minority group and those petitioning for the capital alteration get together to try to settle their differences before deliberations resume Thursday at 10 a.m.

Alternate solutions to the problem faced by Seaboard may be considered by the legislative committee, chairman Bert Price (SC—Vancouver-Burrard) said, unless agreement is reached by the parties.

Williams said the minority group would accept as a condition of approval of the application that directors will not issue new treasury shares without getting 75 per cent approval of shareholders. There should also be more than two weeks' notice of a vote due to the fact that many shareholders live in New Brunswick and would vote by proxy.

Seaboard president Harry Seed said in view of "misleading information sent out to unsophisticated shareholders", implying they would be at a disadvantage if par value is cut, it may be hard to secure 75 per cent approval.

Williams said share value dropped from about $4 when the proposal to change par value was made, last November, to the $1-$1.50 range by mid-January, indicating market reaction to the plan.

Open Forum To Discuss Rental Housing

An open forum dealing with all aspects of rental housing will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the conference room of the Ewing Building, corner of Lansdowne and Richmond.

A. L. Cartier, co-ordinator of adult education for the department of education, will be moderator.

Panelists are Robert D. Wilson of the Victoria Bar Association, Jack Vaio, chairman of the Victoria Real Estate Board's property management section; Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage, an owner and tenant of rental housing, and Mrs. Janet Drummond, member of the Capital Region Tenants' Association and the Consumers' Association of Canada; and Mrs. Genevieve Ali, a representative of the housing registry.

The forum has been arranged by the Greater Victoria school board's adult education division and the local branch of the CAC.

North-West Mountie Dies at Age of 101

Lewis Ingram Wood, believed to be the last member of the North West Mounted Police before the force became the RCMP in 1920, died in Campbell River this week at the age of 101.

Wood, born in Staffordshire, England, Sept. 20, 1869, came to Canada with his family in 1890. He and his brother, the late Alexander Gardiner Wood, joined the police force the following year and served for four years.

Wood spent many years in the Pigeon Lake area of Alberta until he moved with his family to Shelter Point, seven miles south of Campbell River, in 1938.

The Woods operated a motel for 20 years at Shelter Point and Wood delivered the rural mail for 15 years before retiring in 1954 at the age of 85.

On his 100th birthday in 1969, Wood was honored by the people of Campbell River and the RCMP

Extending the Horizon

OF THE MANY POINTS stressed by President Nixon Thursday in his "State of the World" message to Congress one of the most significant dealt with China. The president spoke of the "legitimate aspirations" of China and made it clear that the United States wants to establish a dialogue with Peking.

Such words come as a great relief and a welcome counter to United States policy regarding the present "incursion" into Laos and the possibility of an invasion of North Vietnam by the South Vietnamese, possibly tripping off a Chinese invasion of Indochina.

The meaning of the term "legitimate aspirations" regarding China cannot perhaps be specified but the phrase does connote another and older term — "sphere of influence." This latter term is shorthand for the concept that a great power has a measure of control (diplomatic, economic, military, etc.) over areas outside its own territory — that, in other words, great powers have satellite states. The delineation of these spheres and their recognition by competing great powers has frequently been more a source of conflict than of pacification.

However, the hint that the U.S. administration may be moving towards not only a recognition of the Peking regime but a further recognition that the stature and location of China are such as to make Chinese participation in a peace settlement of the Indochinese problem imperative, is a hopeful indication that American policy in Asia may be taking wider factors into consideration than it has done hitherto. Peking should perhaps be considered by Washington as a possible means of extrication from the Indochinese quagmire rather than a cause of deeper and more dangerous involvement.

Dubious Gamble

LEGALIZED GAMBLING, particularly the sweepstake, is receiving more than customary encouragement on the eastern United States seaboard as protagonists paint a rosy picture of the extra revenue that can be raised for worthy objectives through this method. But the picture dims under the rain of hard facts presented by tax experts. Their evidence is that sweepstakes seldom raise what is originally predicted for them and that, as time goes on, the returns to the state, or the worthy cause, tend to fall off.

The argument in this particular is not concerned with the moral aspect, or with the contention that sweepstakes tend to alienate private support in the form of donations for good charities. But it does emphasize the fact that promoters almost invariably over-estimate the flow of funds to the beneficiary.

When promoters told New Hampshire in 1963 that a sweepstakes lottery would produce $4 millions a year to aid the state's public education system, the lottery the following year yielded $2.7 million for that purpose — a sum substantially below the promoters' estimate. And by 1970 the returns had shrunk to $836,563. The trend elsewhere seems to be comparable.

It is a matter of elementary citizenship that the people of a community should face up to their responsibilities, and support from tax sources, fees or other scheduled income those community services and institutions which have a valid existence. Depending on the whims of gamblers to provide necessary public facilities is not only immature but a losing game.

Improvements Can Be Made

ON THE DAY THAT THREE UBC scientists announced an apparently successful laboratory research project aimed at removing the odor of pulp mills, MacMillan, Bloedel Ltd. reported completion of a water-pollution control installation at its Port Alberni pulp and paper plant. Two of the offensive accompaniments of major British Columbia industrial development can apparently be eliminated — if the proper measures are taken.

The UBC process, according to one of its creators, could be installed in pulp mills at a cost ranging from $900,000 to $1.5 million apiece within two years. The new MacMillan Bloedel installation cost $3.5 millions and is part of a program running to $10 millions since the mill was built in 1948. Some years ago, before public concern rose to its present pitch, these figures would have been daunting, perhaps unthinkable. Certainly many environmental offenders a decade or two ago declared similar or lesser costs too much for their mills if they were to remain in operation.

The climate has changed since that time of negativism. What should have been an essential, mandatory installation in the first instance and was not, has now become an increasingly accepted necessity for operation. It is clear that public demand, which has been far ahead of foot-dragging government decisions, has had an important part in bringing about improvements. The costs to industry — which means to industry's customers — is high. But no higher than health and a livable environment require.

For Home Non-Consumption

THE MAXIM THAT A NATION may be kept in check by a government through the bogey of threats from foreign powers is an old one. Its use by the Soviet Russian regime is obvious enough. It has not, however, been recognized that another principle which is the opposite to foreign threats also has validity in the Soviet Union.

The matter has been put simply by a Russian economist: "Until we (Russians) can get away from shortages our fellow citizens will remain obsessed by the consumer goods they can't get. No one is going to risk the little he has for an uncertain future by doing a Don Quixote. They prefer to wait. The government, for its part, ensures that it will be a long wait."

Economics in the Soviet Union must be the handmaiden of government if its application can ensure the paradoxical result that carefully administered scarcity can keep a regime stable, if not popular.

Such an application seems confined to the Soviet Union rather than the Russian satellites of eastern Europe and the causes are rooted in their national histories. Nonetheless the unidentified economist has added an enlightening perspective to Russia's enigmatic politics.

"... next time around ... become a bomber pilot ..."

Imperfection

Calgary Herald

Admirers of the Swedish way of life are so effusive in their praise that Sweden has achieved almost a myth-like reputation.

But it seems that Swedes, after all, are fallible human beings and that their nation is somewhat less than the promised land.

Once it was upheld as an example of the great virtues of the Socialist system. It was hailed as a haven of good labor-management relations and benevolent government.

Obviously, this was all a dream — in view of what's happening in Sweden these days. Some 43,000 civil servants are out on strike. Rail services are virtually inactive. University students are without their teachers. And now military officers have been locked out of their barracks because of a dispute over wage demands.

This is Sweden, the land of happiness and milk and honey? The military lock-out is particularly ironic. Sweden's military chief says it can damage the country's preparedness and also the outside world's faith in Sweden's ability to defend its own borders.

What an admission. Since when did Sweden have to defend itself against anyone? Isn't this the land which prides itself on its neutrality and on its pacifism? It's interesting that a nation so ready to profess its abhorrence of militarism elsewhere should now be upset about threats to its own brand of militarism.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JAMES RESTON

Fallacies in 'Backing Out With Both Guns Firing'

THE latest official explanation of the president's Indochina policy is that "he is backing out of a saloon with both guns firing," but there is a catch to this. He insists that the boys in the white hats keep control of the saloon before he leaves town. He wants a non-Communist bartender, and a non-Communist sheriff, and a secure non-Communist town before he rides away into the sunset of November, 1972. It is a logical personal and political strategy, but in Asia it is a military and geographical contradiction. Asia is not a frontier town, and the white hats are a small minority.

Reston

Washington is deeply divided about all this, increasingly frustrated and cynical, because the president is emphasizing one thing and doing another. He is emphasizing withdrawal of the American troops to keep the home front quiet and fighting in Laos to cripple the enemy and keep the Saigon front quiet, and the thing would probably work if the white hats were in the majority in that part of the world or if the president stayed around. It is his withdrawal and his faith in the minority in Saigon that is troubling and dividing Washington. In the short run the strategy will probably work, but in the long run geography and the majority will probably prevail, and meanwhile, what will justify the bloodshed?

It is not possible to understand the honest differences here over the president's policy unless a distinction is made between his dual aims of getting out and maintaining a non-Communist regime in Saigon. At some point he has to choose: He can stay in Indochina with his air power and probably prevail for a time against the patient weight of China's seven hundred million people, a quarter of the human race, or he can withdraw the American expeditionary force, but it is doubtful that he can do both.

Longer View

Maybe he could do it long enough to hold the line through the Saigon election this autumn and the American presidential election of 1972, but the future order of the world is not going to depend on the re-election of Richard Nixon or Generals Thieu and Ky. Either a non-Communist government in Saigon is vital to the interests of the United States or it isn't. If it is, we should stand and fight—not hold General Thieu's coat or count on the CIA's mercenary tribal warriors to fight in the hills or, if cutting the enemy's "life line," as Mr. Nixon calls it, leave the battle to the South Vietnamese and abandon them if they are trapped.

This is not to say that the president has a clear intention of making his military strategy fit his re-election problems in 1972. But he is a deeply political man, and there is always a confusion between political interest and the larger realities of world politics. No doubt he hopes that the success in the present Laos campaign would really cut the Hanoi "life line," but the larger historical and geographical realities are against him.

There is something not only illogical but almost dishonorable in his present strategy. If, as the president implies, the invasion of Laos is critical and may even be decisive in the war and "vital" to our interests, then one would have thought we should fight for it. If, as he emphasizes, the main point of what he calls the Laos "incursion" is to "insure our withdrawal, to reduce our casualties and to shorten the war," then this can clearly be negotiated with Hanoi and the National Liberation Front.

Hanoi and the Vietcong are not going to refuse to agree to the departure of the American troops. If this is really the president's purpose he can get the boys back home and end the casualties and shorten the war. He can negotiate this, he doesn't have to fight for it in Laos or anywhere else.

But this is clearly the puzzling point. He must have another purpose, and the guess here is that his purpose is really to maintain a non-Communist regime in Saigon. Indeed this has been central to the struggle from the very beginning. There is a good argument for it, but the thing should be stated plain and clear. Who will control Vietnam — the Communists or the non-Communists? This is what the battle is all about, and at least it ought to be made clear.

Mr. Nixon presented the Laos adventure this week as if it would settle everything. The North Vietnamese, he said, "have to fight here or give up the struggle to conquer South Vietnam, Cambodia, and (give up) their influence extending through other parts of Asia." But why do they have to do so? They can withdraw and wait while Mr. Nixon brings the boys back home. They have been fighting the Chinese, the French, the Japanese and themselves for thousands of years. They can lose and retreat into the jungle and try again after Mr. Nixon has kept his promise to withdraw our men. After all, November, 1972, means nothing to them.

Strategy Understood

It is this contradiction of withdrawing American troops and leaving the battle to the South Vietnamese that is tearing up this capital. This is a political city, and everybody understands the president's dilemma. In fact, most people here understand his political strategy and agree that he can probably hold the line with air power through the next couple of years. But all this is a little more complicated than "backing out of the saloon." The hills are full of black hats in that part of the world, and they are still going to be around long after Mr. Nixon has retired to San Clemente.

Women's OAP at 60

I still advocate that women should receive the old-age pension at the age of 60.

I conversed (by telephone) with Capt. Groos' secretary in Ottawa and she informed me that we need a multitude of signatures in order for this appeal to go through Parliament.

Ladies, if you are interested please write in your own handwriting "OAP at 60 for women" and sign your name underneath and mail to me. That is all that is required. I will have photostat copies made of same and send them to Ottawa. As this letter appears only once I would appreciate it if you would notify other women who would like to receive the OAP at 60 and relay the above-mentioned to them.

Let us create jobs for the young people as God knows they need them and also let us be financially unencumbered and enjoy the few (Biblical) years that we have left.—Mrs. E. B. Burton, 919 Inskip.

Biased and Hostile

Your ignorance about a great country shows as strongly as your usual bias and hostility when you state in your editorial (February 24 — When Facts Defeat Ideals) "... A contrived device respecting possession of passports has denied access to Britain for thousands of Indians being forced out of South Africa." Anyone with a knowledge of African affairs knows that the exodus of Indians is from a darling of the Commonwealth — Kenya. Be fair, Mr. Editor! Tell the truth about the graft, corruption, discrimination and cruelty which go on in Kenya, Zambia, Uganda, Tanzania, Ethiopia, Nigeria, and other pseudo-democracies in and out of Africa which sit in judgment on a country which has done more for the benefit of the African continent than the rest of the world combined. —G. Anthony, 3925 Winton Street.

What Plan?

During a meeting last evening I was informed by an alderman that Victoria had a Plan.

During a meeting in November 1969, I was informed by an official that Victoria had a Plan.

The evidence is all to the contrary, unless one can call "Zoned for Apartments," a Plan.

I would liken Victoria to a beautiful woman, who has many suitors. Her family welcomes the wealthy ones, only to see them take their pleasures, or profit, and depart.

Her friends look on in dismay, unwilling to believe that the family does not have her best interest at heart.

But the story is not a new one, nor is this the first family to be impressed, or misled, by wealth and "position."

For "family" read "alderman," and for "friends" read "citizens."

How will the story end? Victoria's friends are feeling an increasing sense of outrage and rightly so.

Can she be "saved?" Or will she become "a bird in a gilded cage?" — H. H. Bridge, 3904 Shelbourne.

Patient's Viewpoint

I have been a patient in Sandringham Private Hospital for over a year.

I have not been in touch with any of the directors, but I have ascertained the following facts which show that the hospital cannot be operated as cheaply as other private hospitals in Victoria:

1. The company pays a higher tax for municipally set school taxes than do any of the others.

2. The hospital has a higher percentage of welfare patients than do any of the others, and, as is well known, the welfare payments are insufficient to cover the hospital coasts of these patients.

Most of the patients do not want the strikers to return. They resent the obnoxious way the strikers have treated the substitutes, and the trade unions' attempts to prevent the hospital getting in supplies, and to get various services.

Meantime the hospital is being well run and the staff is giving the patients every care and attention.—Mayne Reid, Q.C.

Amalgamate

Every time a much needed project for the Greater Victoria area is in the offing so-called experts are brought in to either promote the program or attempts are made to kill our local progress by senseless comparisions.

A recent guest speaker from Winnipeg with his see-saw, fence-sitting explanations of amalgamation and regional planning was a prime example.

I'm no expert, but any business man knows that the quadruplication of services and expenses such as the taxpayers of Greater Victoria area support is idiotic.

Several years ago the Chamber of Commerce spent several thousands of dollars promoting amalgamation. Mayor Curtis campaigned on the same thesis. Why the sudden change?

Regional planning was tried in the early 50's in Ontario by Leslie Frost, considered one of the most astute premiers in Canada. Results—negligible.

Three of Canada's leading economists who studied Ontario's regional planning termed it a con game. Who was deceived? Who else? The taxpayers. Gilles Paquet, T.M. Brewis and N. T. Lithwick have further stated that; "When a complex, little explored field like regional economics is exalted the likelihood of hokum becomes near certain and cool reality fades away."

The B.C. government's original concept of regional government was to amalgamate the school districts of 61, 62, and 63. This makes economic sense, Dan Campbell, so let's get on with it before this fourth level of government forces us all to sell out and go on welfare. Three local municipal governments have got to be more economic than seven, as now.

Amalgamation for the three local school districts is the only answer, and the sooner the better. To hell with non-elected regional boards.—Lionel Curtis Speller, 3628 Saanich.

Looking Back

From the Times of Feb. 26, 1911:

Kathleen Parlow, the eminent Canadian violinist, will give a recital tonight at the Victoria Theatre, being accompanied by Karel Keltner, the Bohemian pianist. The concert is the only one this prominent girl will give on the island. She is under engagement to return to Calgary at once, prior to her United States tour. Calgary is her home city and Monday night last was en fete for her. So enthused were the people over her undoubted talent that a return engagement was booked for March 1.

In Age of the Telephone Diplomacy Is a Dead Art

By EDMUND CARPENTER

(A review of "Diplomatic Ceremonial and Protocol" which appeared in the New York Times Book Review. Mr. Carpenter is an anthropologist and filmmaker.)

This guide to titles, toasts, salutes and privileges is a diplomat's Emily Post, his desk reference to international etiquette.

It reminds him, among other things, that "high ecclesiastical dignitaries who attend lunches or dinners do not offer their arm to the lady they accompany" and that in countries where polygamy is practiced, the husband may designate the wife to accompany him, but must limit himself to one.

It is appropriate that an anthropologist should review this book. Anthropologists specialize in dead or dying cultures, and the customs described here are dead.

Who still cares that "the eldest sons of Knights Grand Cross take precedence over the oldest sons of Knights of the Second Class"?

Diplomats care. The inside view this book offers of their world makes one suspect the end of diplomacy is near.

Diplomatic ceremonial and protocol are justified on the grounds that they create the setting and conditions necessary for international dialogue.

Love of Past

"The solemn ceremonies, the unstinted hospitality, the speechmaking, the liberal exchange of gifts and the decorations awarded . . . indicate the degree to which . . . governments desire to make known their sympathy, their friendship and their collaboration."

What they really indicate is that diplomats love the past. Diplomatic life isn't a modern, public service, but an obsolete, private pastime. "Pastimes," wrote Joyce, "are past times."

The pastimes of diplomats are the codes of etiquette of preindustrial aristocrats. One is reminded of West African imitations of Buckingham Palace garden parties.

Protocol itself isn't dead. But electronic media have created new codes, and the protocol described in this book is limited to literate and face-to-face communications. Though we are assured that the authors "have not ignored the flavor of our times," they have totally ignored its most revolutionary feature.

There isn't the slightest hint in this book that electricity has made angels of us all — not in the Sunday School sense of being good or having wings, but of spirit freed from flesh, capable of instant transportation anywhere.

The moment we pick up a phone, we're nowhere in space, everywhere in spirit. Nixon on TV is everywhere at once. That is St. Augustine's definition of God: a Being whose centre is everywhere, whose borders are nowhere.

Takes Precedence

When a clerk stops waiting on us to answer a phone, we accept this without protest, yet it violates one of our most precious values — barbershop democracy. We accept it because pure spirit now takes precedence over spirit in flesh.

In the past, people called such images "unreal." The word 'phoney' comes from telephone: "He sounds like a a phoney to me." They experienced a great need to translate images back into flesh.

Mark Twain made his living from public speaking: his readers wanted to see him. Dickens' fans flocked to hear him read works they already knew. Film stars were mobbed in public. Fans wanted to see the real Joan Crawford. No more. TV stars walk the streets unmolested. People seem almost embarrassed to see them. They don't want to see Lorne Greene in a sports shirt on Maple Street. They expect him to stay in Bonanzaland, looking after those five boys.

Today's images are often self-sufficient. We now have ads that give more satisfaction than their products. Conceivably there doesn't even have to be a product.

Ralph Nader, as a media image, is far more powerful than any United States Senator. He is not limited by regional or conflicting interests. He has the whole nation for his constituency. His power is spiritual, not spatial.

In New Guinea, when natives ignore their village leader, the Government may tape-record his orders. The next day the assembled villagers hear his voice coming to them from a radio he holds in his own hand. Then they obey him. So much for face-to-face tribal protocol.

I knew a Californian who read his poetry aloud at parties until his friends learned to silence him. But when he played recordings of these same poems, everyone listened. What is needed today is a party guide to protocol among angels.

In the past, parties were private. Select guests, responding to handwritten invitations, were formally received and seated. Reporters tried to sneak in. Today the media are the guests of honor. TV is the number one guest. The party begins when the cameras arrive.

The reception-line may amuse us, but we aren't amused by telephone protocol. Nor were we amused by the testimony of Nuremberg defendants who said they had obeyed orders received on the phone.

Reactions to breaches of etiquette can be most revealing. Test this yourself. The next time you keep an appointment, begin by casually taking your host's phone off the hook, explaining that now you can both talk without interruption. Watch his uneasiness. Locking the door, to keep out physical intruders, would be far less disconcerting.

In preliterate societies, the separation of spirit from body is thought to occur in the surrealist realm of dream, art and myth. Daily life, in the field or on the hunt, is intensely realistic, with all senses alert and the spirit imprisoned in the body.

Like Natives

We reverse this. Our electronic work-a-day world divorces images from physical reality. As counterpoint, we turn physical reality into pastimes. Sex, food and nature have all been recently rediscovered. Like natives, we enjoy the best of both worlds, though it's hard to know which of these worlds to call "real."

On the surface, what could be more realistic than modern war, yet the Vietnam war employs more people in packaging and distributing its news than in combat. It's a media war, fought every night in our own parlors.

The jungle war has been reduced to ritual only, played out by unknowing, sacrificial victims. Since we know these victims primarily as TV actors, we are puzzled and frightened when in real life they bleed and die.

Real or unreal, this war is like no other. It's a fish-bowl war and peace where everyone sees all sides at once. We watch, in TV close-up, suffering on both sides.

A Media War

Such total communication makes differences between home policy and foreign policy intolerable. We're not even sure we want to win when we become aware of the lengths to which we would have to go in battle. Such an effort would produce unbearable consequences at home.

So the war remains essentially a media war whose only resolution must come from within the media themselves. Vietnam has never been the object of contention, merely the means of contention.

Just as this war cannot be resolved in battle, so its peace cannot be negotiated in conference. The media have bypassed our electoral and diplomatic systems as effectively as they bypassed the military.

Peace must now be negotiated in our own parlors, where the war was fought. Real negotiations now begin with each country negotiating with its own people. Dr. Benjamin Spock is a far more powerful force in such negotiations than Ambassador David Bruce.

In the meantime, solemn ceremonies, unstinted hospitality, etc., keep diplomats happy in Paris. Their pastimes are as difficult to criticize or take seriously as the efforts of White Russians to re-create the Czar's Imperial Court in Kansas City, while Stalin industrialized the U.S.S.R.

Landscape forbidding but rich in marine life

Antarctica: Food Icebox for World?

By DANIEL BEHRMAN
UNESCO Features

Antarctica has long been considered a frozen waste, but the Antarctic Ocean is beginning to look more and more like an icebox containing the world's last great untapped supply of animal resources.

This became clear at the recent Joint Oceanographic Assembly held in Tokyo where the Antarctic received far more attention than it usually does from marine scientists accustomed to working in more clement waters.

The Southern Ocean's potential for food production was brought out by one of its leading investigators, Dr. Sayed Z. El-Sayed of the Department of Oceanography at Texas A and M University in the United States. Dr. El-Sayed reported to the Tokyo meeting on a bloom of phytoplankton (that is, drifting microscopic marine plants) that covered 6,000 square miles under the pack ice of the Weddell Sea. Yet, despite this bloom, there were no signs that nutrients in the water were being exhausted.

★ ★ ★

He later explained in an interview that the pack ice of the polar ocean might give the impression of being unproductive, but the water beneath the ice could be as rich in marine life as the more open Southern Ocean, as proven by plankton blooms such as the one observed in the Weddell Sea.

The discovery is the more interesting because, as El-Sayed remarked, sea ice covers 12 per cent of the surface of the world ocean or, putting it another way, 7 per cent of the earth's total area.

It is estimated that the Antarctic Ocean produces about 300 million tons of krill a year—the small shrimp-like creatures that once satisfied the huge appetite of the baleen whales and now go unharvested with the near-extinction of their predators. As a possible food resource in the future, El-Sayed said, they represent no less than five times the world's current annual ocean fish catch.

Another look at the potential resources of the Weddell Sea was provided by Albert W. Erickson of the University of Minnesota. Working off the icebreaker Glacier, Erickson and his colleagues took a census by helicopter of seal on the pack ice of the Weddell Sea. By far the most prevalent species was the crab-eating seal followed by the Weddell and then the leopard seal.

The scientist estimated that there are 7 million seals on the pack ice in this region, making them the world's most numerous stock of large mammals. Study of the seal population has been greatly facilitated by such technology as icebreakers, helicopters and television cameras which, Erickson reported, enabled man to witness for the first time the underwater mating of the Weddell Seal.

★ ★ ★

George Hemmen of the Royal Society in London explained that the biggest problem in the Antarctic is getting observations of the pack ice in all seasons. It is inaccessible to ships in winter and, in fact, it has been suggested that drifting stations in the ice or nuclear submarines might be a good way to look at it.

He also informed the Tokyo meeting of a proposal by the United States to investigate below the ice shelf in the Ross Sea. This would be done by drilling through the shelf which is some 250 metres thick.

★ ★ ★

Once the drill breaks through the ice shelf, it is hoped that a great deal could be learned about the origin and age of the water mass below the life dwelling in it and the sediments on the sea floor itself.

Then the drill could take samples of these sediments which contain, so scientists believe, a record of the waxing and waning of the Antarctic ice sheet through the ages and the history of the Ross Sea basin in preglacial times, when the earth wore no polar icecaps.

The Politics of Affluence

By DALTON CAMP

At the Republican convention in Miami, where Richard Nixon was chosen as the party's leader, memory recalls the attempts of those outside the party system — or believing themselves to be, which is the same — to make some impression upon the delegates.

One remembers the blacks, dressed in ginghams and dungarees, gathered in the lobby of the Fontainebleu Hotel, singing We Shall Overcome, while delegates elbowed their way past them, looking a little harassed and sheepish, in the manner of any reluctant captive audience.

Or the Poor People's March, symbolized by a wagon drawn by a team of mules, plodding up the main drag, through the canyon of garish resort hotels, between lines of muscular police.

●

And the "press conference," held inside the convention hall itself in space assigned by the Republican National Committee, where someone like Ralph Abernathy raged against the convention's certain choice, Richard Nixon.

Party politics, the practice of it, is for the rich, as protest is for the poor. The incongruity of it again struck one during the Ontario Tory leadership convention, where the galleries contained hosts of dissidents — Catholic students, anti-vivisectionists, militant Canadian nationalists, but mostly today's ubiquitous, self-declared poor. That they made so little impression on the convention is not remarkable, drowned out, as they were, in the din of confusion down on the floor.

●

No one questioned their right to be there — the galleries were open to the public — but no one could suggest that they accomplished much either. One wonders about it, all the same, this growing polarity in the political system, wherein the affluent carry out their solemn duties of bestowing power and responsibility, while the poor act out their protests, their alienation emphasized by their near invisibility.

This is not a rap on Conservatives. Wherever you go these days you hear of the escalating costs of welfare, the valid suspicion being expressed that the whole business is counter-productive.

"Welfare" has become a pejorative in political rhetoric, and looking at the costs in provinces lesser than Ontario, it is no wonder. (Those who think it is a problem in Ontario are invited to look elsewhere, a sour sort of consolation.)

Our terminology is being further enriched to include terms such as "gainfully unemployed," a euphemism for a person being retrained for a job which does not exist. The federal government, essentially responsible for the country's economic well-being, and for that of its citizens, seems determined to resolve the problem by semantic stratagems, assuring us of recent victories over inflation, proclaiming corners turned, and heralding happier statistics, as yet ungathered. If the poor could live on assurances and reassurances they would be rich.

It seems we are learning to live with it, like commuter traffic, violations to privacy, or the littered landscape. But surely it is a danger, even allowing for the statisticians' errors, with some 30 per cent of our citizenry living at survival's level, and with something like three-quarters of a million men and women looking for work, that we have a political system which, of necessity or from habit, has increasingly become the interest or hobby of only the affluent, who have their own constituency.

To say it was ever thus is not much of an answer. Nor even a correct one. Even Peel organized among the agricultural poor, and men like Attlee honed their social consciences and shaped their political careers in the slums of London.

But the drift of the Canadian political parties — including, oh yes, the NDP — is along vertical lines, upwards along the income scale, guided by interests no more, or less, vested than those of powerful corporations, powerful trade unions and the middle class. Were it not so, things might be a good deal different—and for a number of Canadians, even somewhat better.

Which leads me, to your surprise, to the Honorable Robert Stanfield, the federal Tory leader, and just about the only politician down there who has applied shoe-leather to his own social conscience, I have come to a belated conclusion about Mr. Stanfield's recent personal cross-country call upon the unemployed which he undertook, in his typically no-nonsense, non-Machiavellian manner, "to dramatize the plight of the unemployed."

●

It is not, I have concluded, the Stanfield rhetoric, or lack of it, which has caused complaint recently, but, instead, that he persists in talking about unpopular subjects, such as the lot of the jobless and the poor.

There are a lot of us, not counting you or me, of course, who really do not care to have it dramatized. We have learned to live with it; Mr. Benson says it's getting better, after all, and Mr. Trudeau says the basic cause of it has been cured. What bugs people about Stanfield is that he has become a Cassandra, and something of a bore, telling us what we already know. So there are the poor and the jobless — all right, already.

●

A further conclusion: The leader of the Opposition was not that well received, even among those he was most anxious to help. The unemployed, and the poor — or some of them — were rude to him. Why should this be so? It could not be that they are enjoying their anonymity, their statistical obscurity, sweating it out in the long lines at the welfare office, or the unemployment insurance office — or the soup kitchens.

But no. They were unimpressed by Mr. Stanfield's solitary national pilgrimage because they have come to distrust public men, as they have come to consider our political parties meaningless, as they have come to believe the system bankrupt.

Which is a dangerous reckoning to be made by so many people, in such a country as Canada, in this day and age.

That Word—Who Needs It?

By TREVOR LAUTENS
The Sun

"——", the word that was the basic ingredient of Pierre Elliott Trudeau's famous rejoinder in the House of Commons last week, has attained the distinction of becoming the most tiresome word in your Canadian family newspaper without actually having appeared there.

For sheer boredom it is, as you might say, —— awful.

To my knowledge the only Canadian daily newspaper that has printed the word is the Toronto Globe and Mail.

That was last Wednesday when George Bain, the G & M's Ottawa columnist, factually reported just what was said, or mouthed, by the prime minister.

★ ★ ★

Needless to say, the earth did not instantly open up and swallow the Globe and Mail building, leaving none to mourn but a weeping host of Richard J. Needham's women friends (cheated out of lunch).

Nor has the entire city of Toronto been consumed by an enormous heavenly fireball.

What happened, one suspects, is that Toronto emitted a collective yawn and quickly resumed the Mammon-serving which it undertakes for the sole purpose of satisfying the fantasies about Toronto enjoyed by non-Torontonian Canadians.

For myself, I am delighted with this solitary and perhaps never to be repeated appearance of the word in a clean-cut, short-back-and sides daily paper.

You might sneer that such a single use is mere tokenism. Exactly. That's what delights me.

Henceforth and evermore, we newspapermen can keep this example on hand to shut up anyone who derides us for the non-use of the word in our daily product.

We can drag out our frayed and yellow clipping of the Bain column, wordlessly place it in front of the critic — quite likely one of our own junior reporters, insolent young cub — and return in quiet triumph to such engrossing tasks as trying to cram a 14-unit word into an 11-unit headline.

The rest can be silence.

For the fundamental fact about the word as far as it relates to newspaper publishing is: we don't need it.

★ ★ ★

In the last few decades this word has emerged from its humble Anglo-Saxon origins and, having survived some prim public quasi-spellings and successful court cases, cheerfully invaded books, inhabited movies, trod the boards with the most respectable actors, and occupied the mouths of sweet-looking young girls and suitably with-it matrons.

In short, it is now simply the mild swear-word of the middle class. It has undergone embourgeoisification. It is now the working class person who is shocked by its public use. It was originally the common folk's word; the literati and the smart set pinched it from them.

Chiefly the word remains offensive to some parents wishing to protect their children, who must know at heart that their children are perfectly aware of it or soon will be, and who therefore are really protecting themselves and not their children from disillusionment.

The newspapers — and a newspaper is a shrewd beast at heart — have done nothing. They know that in certain cases nothing is as effective as benign neglect. Time has passed, the word has lost its shock-power and after all has become only a dull, dingy mound of letters in the suburbs of the mind.

The real fault of the newspapers is not in having avoided printing the word, but rather their anxious, elaborate coyness in hunting for substitute words or phrases. They share this failing with the prime minister (Revised Fuddle-Duddle Version).

The fact is that the word has appeared invisibly in newspapers countless times. To actually stamp it on a bit of paper now could serve only one purpose: it would give the horrors to people whose sole real joy in life is to be horrified.

Grits Oppose Nuclear Plants

DUNCAN — The Cowichan-Malahat Liberal Association will take resolutions opposing nuclear power plants to the provincial Liberal convention in Victoria March 18-20.

Michael Coleman, policy chairman for the local group, said the association, "mindful of the fundamental necessity for environmental protection and the dangers of uncontrolled industrial development, narrowly endorsed a policy that there shall be no nuclear power plants located in this province until proven absolutely safe to the environment."

WELFARE CLAUSE

They also endorsed a resolution opposing nuclear plants without public hearings on the proposal in the area affected and 60 per cent approval by a poll of residents in the regional district affected.

Coleman said his organization also endorsed the concept of mandatory qualification of a minimum of six months' residence in the province as a prerequisite for eligibility for welfare benefits "unless sufficient just cause is shown in specific instances."

The group also supports the removal of all federal and provincial income taxes from old-age pensioners.

Board Chairman Still Without Car

DUNCAN — Police here are still searching for the stolen car of Cowichan school board chairman Dave Haywood.

The car was taken from the school board's parking lot in Duncan Monday night while Haywood was attending a trustees me ting.

School board members recall hearing someone trying to start a car in the parking lot during the meeting but didn't investigate. When the meeting ended an hour later, Haywood found his 1964 car gone.

60 Entries Expected In Drag Hunt

DUNCAN Over 60 entries are expected to participate in the Cowichan and District Riding Club's second drag hunt in the Cowichan Valley Sunday.

The hunt, starting at 10:30 a.m., will involve an hour and a half run over 700 acres three miles north of Duncan on Herd Road.

Riders will follow the Fraser Valley Hunt Club's fox hounds who in turn will be chasing a drag with a scent over the Woodward, Paddle, Hayes, Mellor and Stratton farms. Start of the hunt will take place on the Wood farm two miles east of the Trans-Canada Highway on Herd Road.

"We hope to make the drag hunts a bi-annual event," said riding club member Mrs. Teddy Robertson. "We had one in Mill Bay about a year ago and it was successfull."

Civil Marine Rescue Group Formed by Power Squadron

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Power squadron has formed a civil defence light rescue service marine section to assist in life-saving.

John Sargeant, public relations officer, said the newly-formed branch works in conjunction with the land rescue service.

The group's first organized marine practice on Sunday consisted of a marked buoy being released in the waters of the Gulf Islands prior to a search.

Winds, tides, and currents were calculated by members of the rescue service and the buoy was found on the first search pass.

Teacher Charged With Assault

DUNCAN — School teacher Louis Trapler, 38, of Duncan has been charged with common assault after an incident Jan. 26 where he is alleged to have struck and injured 13-year-old student Joseph Cook.

No date has been set for his appearance in court, RCMP said.

A three-man investigating committee set up by the education department has been unable to reach a unanimous conclusion on the alleged assault.

As a result, the Mount Prevost Junior Secondary teacher will remain under suspension while the Cowichan school board takes his appeal against it to the Council of Public Instruction.

Trapler has taught at Mount Prevost for five years. The student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Cook of Westholme, who laid the charges. He is still attending school.

Chemainus Forms Kinsmen Club

The new club is being chartered by the Duncan and Ladysmith-Kinsmen clubs.

SIX PULP MILLS SIGN CONTRACT

Six pulp mills have signed the 1970 master contract with the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada after a five-month delay involving a dispute at the union's Gold River local.

The final ratification means about 3,700 workers at the six plants will get retroactive pay increase of up to $400 while the Gold River dispute is still in mediation.

Companies endorsing the agreement were B.C. Forest Products at Crofton, Columbia Cellulose at Prince Rupert and Castlegar, MacMillan Bloedel at Harmac, Rayonier at Woodfibre and Crestbrook Forest Industries at Skookumchuk. Prince George Pulp and Paper is expected to sign soon.

Valley Chamber Seeking Co-Operation

DUNCAN — Newly elected Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce president Ken Paskin said Wednesday he wants to promote co-operation between organizations in the Cowichan Valley.

He "would like the chamber to function as a medium for education, remaining unbiased."

Paskin said two forums on nuclear power on Vancouver Island, sponsored by the chamber, are an example of the chamber's efforts to promote public understanding.

The first forum on March 19 at the Village Green is open to chamber members only. The second one at Mount Prevost Junior Secondary on March 26 is open to the public.

FOUR PERSONS SEEK TRUSTEE'S POSITION

NORTH COWICHAN — Four North Cowichan residents are competing in the March 6 election for the school trustee seat left open when William Burak resigned in January.

Candidates are: Rick Richards, driving school owner and operator; Mrs. Betty Stevenson, housewife; Otto Van Barneveld, oil burner mechanic; and Stan Baker, pipefitter at Crofton pulp mill.

Nominations closed Wednesday afternoon.

Ottawa Aid Sought for Welfare Bills

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs repeated in the Commons Thursday demands for federal aid to big-city welfare rolls, but Welfare Minister John Munro called such aid the least attractive kind of social policy.

Perry Ryan (PC—Toronto Spadina) and David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said the government should transfer money to Toronto to offset rising welfare costs caused by high unemployment.

Mr. Munro replied that merely transferring funds to the city would not guarantee it would benefit those most in need.

Other policies were fairer ways of providing income to the poor than conventional welfare doles.

The House today returns to debate the bill to establish the Canadian Development Corp., an agency for a government and private partnership in domestic investment.

It would be funded first with government money, but gradually would become a private company.

MOTION DEFEATED

The MPs were debating a Conservative motion Thursday asking the House to condemn "the government's failure to foresee and take steps to provide for the escalating effects of its unemployment policy upon the social assistance funds of the provinces and municipalities and its failure to consult and co-operate with the provinces and municipalities in providing emergency financial support and employment programs."

The motion was defeated 105 to 67, with the three opposition parties siding against the Liberals.

Standing in the 264-seat House: Liberal 152, Conservative 72, NDP 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 3.

Mr. Ryan, who sponsored the motion, said the government should take the example of the recently-announced United States revenue-sharing program of President Nixon, which would transfer federal tax money to the states for both specific and general purposes.

Mr. Orlikow offered an amendment to the motion to have the government raise its share of spending under the Canada Assistance Plan to 65 per cent from 50 per cent.

MUNRO
. . . no guarantee

Provincial governments now pay 30 per cent and municipalities 20 per cent.

The amendment was also defeated 105 to 67.

Robert Kaplan (L—Toronto Don Valley) said the MPs had apparently forgotten that Canada already has a revenue-sharing plan very much better than the U.S. proposals.

Under the Income Tax Act a share of taxes is allotted to the provinces, which are permitted to raise taxes by any means except customs and tariffs.

U.S. PLAN 'PUNY'

The Nixon plan was a "pale, puny counterpart at best."

As for federal contributions of big city welfare spending, that would simply put a bigger burden on taxpayers in such cities as Toronto.

The opposition proposal was entirely illusory since the higher taxes would hit relatively well-off cities such as Toronto in a disproportionate amount.

Such a program would benefit poorer areas such as Quebec and the Maritimes. Toronto "would be substantially worse off."

Mr. Kaplan went on to score Ontario and Toronto authorities for neglecting to take up their share of the $160 million in loans offered to the provinces by the federal government in November.

During the high-unemployment period this winter, the Ontario government "was sitting back and doing nothing."

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the Conservative government 10 years ago had made the same mistakes, with the same economic results, as the present Liberal government.

He called for a national dividend—an initial $100 to every Canadian —to stimulate buying, bring factories back into production and put men back to work.

IMPORTS STILL TOKEN AMOUNT

Canadian Exports to China Average

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian exports to Communist China last year totalled $142 million, about equal to the average for the previous five years and only about one per cent of Canada's world-wide exports.

Imports by Canada again amounted to a mere token amount, $19 million in 1970 compared with $27 million in 1969 and $23 million in 1968.

But despite the complexities of dealing with the seven state trading corporations that handle all of China's imports and exports, and the small size of the total trade developing since Canada started commercial relations with China in 1957, the Canadian government hopes for something better.

It opened a new embassy and trade office in Peking in January after exchanging formal diplomatic recognition. The trade department now is encouraging Canadian business men to take a more active look at China.

The department estimates that total Chinese imports from all countries—including those of the Communist bloc—ran to $1.9 billion in 1969, while Chinese exports totalled $2.1 billion.

Trade with Western countries —in figures that can be checked through their export and import figures—ran to just over $1 billion in each direction.

SALES RANKED FIFTH

Canada's sales to China in 1969 totalled $114 million and ranked fifth behind Japan's $391 million, West Germany's $151 million, Britain's $125 million, and Australia's $117 million.

Chinese exports went principally to Hong Kong, $327 million, Japan, $235 million, and Singapore, $140 million. Britain, West Germany, France, Italy and Australia bought amounts varying between $40 and $90 million each. Canada's purchases were $26 million.

Canada's trade with Communist China began in 1956 with the sale of $2.4 million worth of fertilizers, but boomed subsequently when crop failures forced the Chinese to import wheat. The first sales were negotiated in Hong Kong with Chinese representatives, and then by direct contact in Peking with Canadian government trade commissioners.

TRADE NARROWLY BASED

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, then in office, declared there was nothing inconsistent in Canada trading with Communist China but not recognizing the Communist regime diplomatically.

To the extent that it can now be called flourishing, China-Canada trade is narrowly based. Principal Chinese purchases have been wheat, scrap iron and steel, nickel, scientific instruments and medical equipment.

Principal Chinese sales to Canada have been textile products and clothing, $15.3 million in 1969, and peanuts and walnuts, $7.2 million. Other products included furs, feathers and bristles, cutlery and tableware, and some chemicals, the latter amounting to only $303,000.

But the federal trade department here now is inviting Canadian businessmen to write to its new commercial counsellor's office at the Canadian embassy, 16 San Li Tun, Peking. It also will service businessmen's inquiries through a considerable bank of trade data in store here.

Before the Judge

A 49-year-old man with a criminal record dating back to 1946 was sentenced Thursday by Judge William Ostler to 18 months in prison when he pleaded guilty to three counts of possession of stolen property.

Sidney A. Hayward, no fixed address, had a bank account book belonging to a Victoria woman and two wallets with contents belonging to Kamloops women.

The bank book was missing from the Victoria woman's home following a break-in last December and the wallets were missing from the Kamloops homes after break-ins in early February.

Hayward was apprehended following an investigation at a Bay Street house.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the man's record included being unlawfully in a house, attempted breaking and entering and breaking and entering and theft.

Ostler sentenced Hayward to 18 months on each count, to be served concurrently.

★ ★ ★

Marjorie E. McCandless, 54, of 6110 Old East Road, was fined $350 by Ostler when she pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told the woman was stopped by police on McKenzie near Rainbow and had a breathalyzer reading of .18 per cent blood-alcohol content at the time. Ostler suspended the accused's licence.

★ ★ ★

Ronald G. Parisien, 37, of 3023 Freethy Place, was also fined $350 by Ostler for impaired driving and his licence was suspended.

He was observed driving erratically on the Trans-Canada Highway Feb. 9.

Two Girls Charged

Two New Westminster girls, one 17 years old, appeared in Victoria provincial court Thursday charged separately with attempting to utter a forged document.

Judge William Ostler told Victoria R. O'Sullivan, 20, and the 17-year-old that the Crown had more charges to read against them.

He remanded Mrs. O'Sullivan to March 3 for election of trial method and said there was another charge of nine counts related to forgery yet to be read. Bail was set at $3,500.

Ostler remanded the juvenile to March 12 pending the outcome of a Supreme Court decision on the status of 17-year-olds in adult court.

The judge released the girl in her own recognizance and remanded her case to March 12.

Prosecutor John Macintyre, speaking on bail applications, said "approximately $10,000 is involved."

Mrs. O'Sullivan was charged Thursday with attempting to cash a cheque of $427 Wednesday in the city while the juvenile is charged with attempting to cash a $418 cheque the same day.

CUPE Pledges 'Meaningful Support'

Victoria locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have pledged "meaningful support" for three groups of CUPE members currently involved in prolonged negotiations.

Representatives of the various locals met Wednesday and decided they will render unspecified but "meaningful" support to members if it appears they are being forced into a conflict by employers, said CUPE spokesman Tom Smith.

Victoria and Saanich civic employees and Greater Victoria school board outside employees have been in negotiations for several months.

Smith said it appears conflicts may develop "in some areas."

'Zoning Laws Being Bent'

By BRUCE YEMEN
And PETER McNELLY

B.C. farmlands are being eroded by real estate interests working through municipal councils, Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) told the legislature Thursday.

He was speaking during debate on Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford's estimates, when MLAs from all parties warned haphazard development of farmland, particularly near urban areas, must stop.

The almost non-partisan debate lasted 6½ hours and contrasted sharply with the bitterness in the legislature Wednesday when the house debated the Teamster's strike.

Liberal and New Democrat MLAs argued the government should adopt a policy of acquiring farms as they became available, then leasing them to farmers or creating greenbelts for recreation and aesthetic purposes. Socred backbenchers offered various fiscal methods of preventing loss of farmlands.

Macdonald said that agricultural land in the Fraser Valley is being bought out at the rate of 6.9 per cent a year.

He said a similar procress is occuring on the Saanich Peninsula.

An important dimension to the problem, he said, is that municipal councils are dominated by men who represent real estate interests. He singled out Block Brothers' Realty Company as a major offender in buying out farmlands.

"It's partly Block Brothers' subdivisions and the tremendous pressure they have on local councils and municipalities."

Aldermen who favor real estate interests "bend zoning laws and regional plans," Macdonald said.

William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) called for the government to set up a provincial agricultural land bank which would have first refusal on all farm land put up for sale in the province.

The government should acquire a large bank of land for lease to young farmers who are being squeezed out of the industry by the sale of large farms to "outside interests."

Unless the government slows down the loss of farmland, Hartley said, there will soon be more "very hungry" people in the world who might "turn on us."

Agriculture Minister Shelford said the scheme would cost at least $400 million or $500 million a year to get started.

"Do you pick money out of mid-air?" asked Shelford, adding there would also be problems of administering such a program.

"Should someone in Fort St. John help buy out Fraser Valley dairyland?" he asked. Perhaps it should be administered regionally, he said.

Shelford said he still hopes "someone" will bring a useful idea on land policy.

Hartley said that in 1956 there were 486 dairy farms on Vancouver Island and now there are only 141. A land bank would help solve that kind of problem, he said.

Leo Nimsick (NDP — Kootenay) denied Shelford's claim that it would be too expensive to create land banks. A process of buying up arable land for fair prices as it became available would cost between $10 million and $20 million a year, he said.

Allan Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) supported the land bank idea. Large leased land holdings could perserve open spaces around cities. If any of this land is ever sold, he said, the government would get the profit.

Williams said the suggestion from the B.C. Federation of Agriculture that farmers dedicate their land for farm use and receive lower assessments did not protect a farmer next door to one who did this from selling his land to a developer.

If this is done, Williams said, a "hopscotch effect" will occur.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said a key issue in the debate is to increase farmers' incomes without raising food prices. The way to do this, he said, is not — as the NDP suggested — to eliminate middlemen in food dsitrubution, but to decrease taxes on agricultural land.

"The Liberal Party would support any kind of plan to reduce land taxation," McGeer said.

He also called for the government to use all the interest from it $5 million agricultural and disaster fund for research.

This would allow $400,000 a year for research, he said. Work could be done at a research station which the government should establish on the Saanich Peninsula, McGeer said.

George Mussallem (SC — Dewdney) told Shelford two food chains control 80 per cent of the market in B.C.

He said he was not against their right to make a profit, but he recommended provincial food marketing boards create their own retail outlets with a fixed markup of between 20 and 25 per cent.

This would serve as a "price control factor" against the chain stores, Mussallem said.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett took Mussallem a step further and said the "Garfield-Weston empire controls and monopolizes the food outlets in a way that's just like the octopus."

Barrett called on Shelford to use some imagination to assist weak spots in the food insustry. Farmers say they don't get a fair return on prices for apples.

Barrett said the government could eliminate the middleman by selling apples in liquor stores and passing the difference on to the producers.

Garde Gardom (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) called for more multi-product farmers' markets to create a more direct route from producer to consume.

Herb Capozzi (SC — Vancouver Centre) said the marketing boards in B.C. have "a terrible tendency to assume the public's taste is fancier than it really is."

A result, he said, is that the B.C. apple has been "marketed into a luxury." He suggested consumers would like a chance to buy "orchard-run" apples in bulk at lower prices and that they wouldn't mind the occasional bruised apple.

CPP FUNDS INVESTED IN HYDRO

Last year British Columbia received $118 million from the Canada Pension Plan, and it invested $90.6 million of that money in B.C. Hydro.

Figures tabled in the legislature Wednesday by Premier Bennett show as of Jan. 4, 1971, that B.C. has received a total of $515.5 million since March, 1967, from the CPP.

This figure is the provincial share money collected under the plan. The money is made available for investment in capital projects. Since March 1967, B.C. has invested $400.2 million in B.C. Hydro from CPP funds.

The remainder of the money has gone for school and hospital projects. Of these, $74.39 million has been invested in the B.C. School Districts Capital Financing Authority and $40.8 million in the B.C. Regional Hospital Districts Financing Authority.

Changes Sought In Schools Act

An amendment to the Public Schools Act permitting year-round operation of schools was introduced in the legislature Thursday.

A private member's bill sponsored by Robert Wenman (SC — Delta), the amendment would change the definition of the school year to a period of 195 teaching days.

The act now regulates the months during which the school year takes place. Wenman's amendment would allow school districts to stagger teaching periods throughout the year.

Other parts of his bill call for elimination of compulsory scripture readings at the beginning of the school day. Instead, Wenman said in an interview outside the legislature, study of all religions should become part of the English and social studies curricula.

Wenman also wants to change the education finance formula to give special grants to high-growth areas. These places include Delta and Kelowna, he said.

His bill would amend the act to allow sabbatical leaves at half salary to teachers who have accumulated 200 days of sick leave in the same school district. Wenman said this would be done for cases of special merit.

Wenman also proposed deletion of a section of the act which forbids members of religious orders to teach in public schools. This is contrary to the principles of B.C.'s Human Rights Act, he said, which forbids discrimination in employment because of creed.

LOFFMARK ASKS QUICK REPLY

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Thursday he has asked to have his departmental spending estimates moved up in the legislature so he can make a reply about accusations that he filed an untrue statement in the house.

Premier Bennett said Thursday night he had received Loffmark's request and was considering it.

Loffmark told reporters that he felt a "lengthy delay" in replying to the accusations against him would not be advisable.

"There is no advantage in leaving innuendoes and charges unanswered," he said.

Loffmark was accused in the legislature Feb. 15 of filing an untrue statement in which he denied charges that he had threatened to investigate the medical credentials of a Clearwater doctor who was campaigning vigorously for a hospital there.

The charges were made by Barrie Clark (L-North Vancouver-Seymour) and was later followed up by Allan Williams (L-West Vancouver-Howe Sound.)

Williams filed notice of motion Thursday to file for a resolution calling for the tabling of an affidavit from Clearwater hospital board members stating that Loffmark made a remark to Dr. R. P. Regehr which threatened him with investigation of his medical credentials.

Loffmark's estimates would normally follow those of the education department, the attorney-general and labor department.

Wheat Tops But Bread Miserable

Canadians raise the best wheat in the world but bake miserable bread, Don Marshall (SC—South Peace River) said Thursday.

Speaking in the debate on Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford's salary, Marshall said, "Our bread to me is an appalling marketable item and a poor baker's product.

He said even though Europeans raise poorer-quality wheat than Canadians, they make better bread.

Agriculture Minister Shelford agreed with Marshall, saying European bread is "20 or 30 times better."

George Mussallem (SC-Dewdney) later presented Shelford with two loaves of store-bought bread, one of which was compressed into a small palm-sized blob.

He said there is three cents worth of wheat in such loaves and added that they are described as "enriched" but don't specify what ingredients are used to enrich them.

"I know it's enriched with formaldehyde," he said.

The new Corolla Coupe. It's practically beautiful.

A practical person buys a practical car simply because it's practical. The fact that the car may be ugly doesn't seem to bother him. But it bothered us. "Why can't a practical car be beautiful?" we asked. And then along came our Coupe.

The Coupe is every bit as practical as the ugliest practical car. Only it's not ugly it's beautiful. The steering wheel is simulated wood grain. The bucket seats are high-back and fully reclining. The floor is carpeted. The glass is tinted. The interior is padded. The ride is quiet.

From a practical point of view it gets up to 35 miles per gallon from a powerful 73 hp engine. It has front disc brakes and an electric rear window defroster. It's big enough for a small family, small enough to park easily and surprisingly sells for $2173*—with everything.

So now, a practical person can buy a practical car simply because it's beautiful.

450 NEW CAMP SITES

The federal government this spring will spend between $25,000 and $30,000 to provide 450 new camp sites at Long Beach National West Coast Park.

Ron Mallce, acting regional director of the western region, National Historic Branch, said Thursday the camp sites will be concentrated in one area and provided with fresh water, toilet buildings and garbage containers.

In the past campers have been allowed to camp indiscriminately on the beach between Green Point and Schooner Cove.

Cars on the beach will also be confined to the camping site area, he said.

Mallce met directors of the Alberni-Clayquot regional district Wednesday to discuss federal operations in the park this summer.

They were concerned that they would not be sufficient camping sites to cope with expected crowds during the summer and this would lead to squatting on private lands.

"Now might be the time for private enterprise to provide camp sites," said Mallce. "It will take two or three years before permanent facilities are installed in the park and it is doubtful whether we will ever meet total camping demands."

Parrott Gets Council Nod

The appointment of former Victoria alderman Cecil Parrott to the Victoria police commission was approved by city council Thursday by a vote of seven to one.

Ald. Robert Baird voted against Mayor Haddock's appointment of Parrott, asking, "Is this the kind of duty we should subject him to?"

Ald. Peter Pollen, while moving approval of the appointment, said "I would observe that a younger man might be more appropriate."

Parrott, who is over 80, was in the gallery at the time.

Following Pollen's remarks about appropriateness of a man of Parrott's age, Mayor Courtney Haddock said other candidates for the job "didn't come up to the actual requirements."

Baird then said: "I wonder if we are facing this question dead on . . ."

Following the vote, Ald. Tom Christie complained that an editorial printed from a radio station broadcast, criticizing Haddock's appointment of Parrott, had been distributed on the aldermen's desk.

"Are they trying to legislate us?"

The editorial, signed by Ross Hicks of C-FAX, said Parrott was 83 and that the police commission should have a younger representative to represent people under 50 in the community.

CAR RALLY IN JUNE

A 4,800-mile car rally linking the federal and provincial capital as a tribute to British Columbia's 100th anniversary of entering Canadian Confederation will be held this summer.

The rally sponsored by the provincial Centennial '71 Committee and the federal government, and International Motorsport Association of Canada, starts June 20 in Ottawa and ends July 1 in Victoria.

L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. centennial committee, said about 125 entrants are expected to travel from Ottawa, through Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina and Edmonton to Victoria.

"The route will cover some of Canada's little-used back country roads, as well as more travelled stretches of the Trans-Canada Highway," he said.

He said cars and crews from automobile manufacturers in many nations, as well as private rally enthusiasts, will take part.

The Canadian Automobile Sports Clubs, governing body of motorsport in Canada, has obtained a full international status for the event from the Federation de L'Automobile in Paris, France.

Firefighting Compromise Proposed

A compromise consiting of a five-man board of commissioners and a 50-50 cost split has been proposed by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell in the firefighting dispute between Sidney and North Saanich. Campbell said Thursday he wouldn't force his proposal on the two municipalities, but would pass the enabling legislation if they wanted it.

He proposes a board consisting of two representatives from each municipality and one from the department. Capital and operating costs for fire and ambulance services would be shared evenly.

The board now consists of a stalemate, two representatives from each municipality.

Sidney has agreed to pay operating costs for the past three years, but not capital costs, and has sought title right to some of the assets of the joint department.

North Saanich has built its own firehall for vulunteer firefighters at Deep Cove.

Mayor James Cumming of North Saanich said Campbell's proposal was ideal for neither party, but said it would be carefully studied.

If the municipalities approve, the issue would be settled in this session of the legislature.

B.C.-Made Wines 'Poor'

It's no secret that B.C. wines are far poorer than those from Europe and California, Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) told the legislature Thursday.

He said the main reason for this is that important restrictions on wines have stifled competition in the industry and thereby made the local industry complacent.

More competition would stimulate B.C. winemakers to do more research to improve their grapes, Cocke said.

"It doesn't matter how you slice it, our grapes are really inferior," he said.

In a friendly rebuttal, Herb Capozzi (SC — Vancouver Centre) whose family owns Colona Wines Ltd., said research is going on in B.C.

Studies for production of a grape similar to one grown in northern Europe are under way, Capozzi said. And he also noted that provincial law requires all locally-grown grapes to be used first in wine before foreign grapes can be purchased.

Capozzi said 65 to 70 per cent of grapes used in B.C. wines are locally-grown. But he noted that it would cost one-third less to buy California grapes than it does to grow the fruit in B.C.

Doctors Want St. Joseph's Improved

Doctors who use St. Joseph's Hospital have again expressed anxiety about delay in the hospital's development.

A resolution, unanimously adopted at a general staff meeting earlier this week and presented to the hospital's board Thursday night says:

"The medical staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, speaking on behalf of the sick of the Greater Victoria area, are anxiously awaiting a settlement of the prolongued negotiations regarding the future development of the hospital."

The doctors' resolution adds that the hospital should be developed on its present site and it can be brought to an optimum state with the proposed purchase and development of adjacent land, now part of the St. Ann's Academy site.

While negotiations for the land purchase are currently under way between the Capital region's hospital board and the Sisters of St. Ann, with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark taking a hand, the St. Joseph's board noted Thursday night it has never been asked whether the site would meet the hospital's needs.

Other items at the board meeting:

While doctors are concerned about 30,000 square feet of space not being used on the hospital's sixth floor, the board learned there are no funds in the budget to develop it.

The doctors have suggested part of the area could be converted to a 12-bed intensive care unit.

About $90,000 would be needed to activate the area, most of it for extension of an elevator shaft. The space was formerly occupied by the sisters but they have moved out in anticipation of the hospital being turned over to a public society.

In a letter to the board, hospital employees demanded to know why improvements to changing rooms promised three years ago had never been made.

Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg said all efforts to deal with the problem have stalled when they reached B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, the provincial government agency which administers to hospitals.

Pool Fund Gets Boost

Sidney Rotary Club will donate $2,000 towards a centennial pool project.

This will boost the pool fund to a total of $22,924, says centennial secretary Eleanor Sowerby.

Donations from peninsula businesses, residents, Sidney Lions Club (who gave $1,000) and money from the Walker Fund, plus the centennial grant of $9,500, make up the total.

Estimated cost of the pool is $32,000. This will provide pool shell, deck, and heating equipment. Change and shower rooms will, hope the centennial committee, be built with the assitance of local clubs and volunteer help.

Chamber Urges National Ban On Oil Company

Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce will ask the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to promote a boycott in Canada of Atlantic-Richfield oil products.

A resolution to that effect which was proposed Thursday by William Larnick declared that the local chamber is vitally concerned over the proposal to transport oil by water to Cherry Point, Wash.

It is recommended that the boycott be put into effect "if and when the oil companies proceed with this proposal."

Compensation Fund Urged

A compensation fund for farmers whose animals are shot by over-eager hunters should be established out of hunting licence revenues, the legislature was told Thursday.

Garde Gardom (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) said farmers who lose animals to hunters have no redress unless they happen to catch the hunters.

The MLA said the total amount spent on compensation to farmers would be a small amount for the public to bear but would mean a lot to farmers who lost animals.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Finning Tractor

Finning Tractor and Equipment Ltd., of Vancouver, reports a 14-per-cent decrease in profits to $2.38 million during 1970.

President W. M. Young said sales were $74.1 million, a decrease of 6 per cent from $78.6 million a year earlier.

It was Finning's first full year as a public company.

Sales were up 25 per cent in the first quarter over the comparable period a year ago, but the drop in the second and third quarters "was indeed abrupt," Young said.

T. Eaton Life

The T. Eaton Life Assurance Co. reports net income for 1970 was $533,845 compared with $730,611 in 1969.

Life insurance business in force at the end of the year totalled $310 million up from $294.45 million at Dec. 31, 1969.

New life insurance written during the year amounted to $52.8 million compared with $43.45 million in 1969.

Superior Oil

Net income dropped from $4 million (48 cents a share) in 1969 to $3.7 million (44 cents) last year, reports Canadian Superior Oil Ltd., including a non-recurring capital gain in the figure.

Substantially higher operating costs were blamed for much of the difference, even though operating revenues rose to a high point of $36.5 million, up 12 per cent, notwithstanding a $2.4 million decline in sulphur revenue.

Funds from operations before counting pre-production expenses rose by three cents a share to $2.69, or $22.9 million. The non-recurring gain was $807,462.

Traders Group

Traders Group Ltd. reports 1970 earnings of $4.56 million or $1.03 a share compared with a restated $5.4 billion or $1.22 a share in 1969.

The company said earnings reflects a $853,000 loss by the company's insurance subsidiaries.

Atlantic Sugar

Atlantic Sugar Refineries Co. Ltd. reports 1970 income for common shareholders totalled about $5.4 million, up about 20 per cent from $4.4 millilion in 1969.

Earnings per common share were 99 cents in 1970 and 82 cents the previous year.

Sales totalled $76.19 million last year compared with $64.43 million in 1969.

New Imperial

Lower copper prices and higher production costs drastically reduced the earnings of New Imperial Mines Ltd. from their Whitehorse copper property in 1970.

Net earnings for the year were only $38,873, compared with $3.89 million in 1969, a decline of 90 per cent.

Tax Tips

Tax Tips, a daily feature in the Times, is prepared by the Victoria District Office, National Revenue, Taxation. For additional information on preparation of your income tax return, write to the Victoria office of National Revenue, Taxation.

Q. I supported my 20-year-old daughter until she became married in June 1969. She had no income before or after marriage. Who can claim an income tax exemption for her?

A. You may claim an exemption of $550 for your daughter and her husband may claim an exemption of $1,000 for her because, after marriage, he supported her.

Q. On my personalized income tax return there is a number printed on the label with my name and address. What is this number and should I quote it if I have to get in touch with the Income Tax Department?

A. The number which is printed on the form with your name and address is a special account number which is made up from letters of your surname, your date of birth and other identifying factors. This number enables us to positively identify you, and also enables the computer to match your return with that of last year and thus speed up the processing of your current return. Your social insurance number is also shown on the income tax return and, in any correspondence with the Taxation Department, it is important to use the account number or social insurance number so that you will avoid any unnecessary delay.

Q. Are Canada Pension Plan contributions compulsory?

A. Yes. The employer must deduct the required employee's contributions and remit the amount together with his matching contribution to the Department of National Revenue, Taxation. Self-employed persons must pay Canada Pension Plan contributions in instalments in the same manner as income tax payments. The aforementioned is not applicable if the worker is under 18, over 70 or has a disability or retirement pension payable to him under the Canada Pension Plan or the Quebec Pension Plan.

Q. I am a farmer and I used 1964 as the year of averaging for income tax purposes and am eligible to average again in 1970. Am I required to average again using 1970 as the year of averaging, or can I wait until a year in which averaging would be more beneficial to me?

A. You may choose any year you wish as the year of averaging, provided that returns have been filed as required and that the averaging period chosen does not overlap another period for which you have averaged.

Q. I paid $1,500 in alimony to my former wife last year. Can I claim all of this on my income tax return?

A. There is no dollar limit on the amount of alimony that can be deducted. You may claim the full amount spent in the year as long as the payments are made on a periodic basis for the maintenance of your ex-wife and children, and are in accordance with a decree, a court order or a written agreement. If you reconciled with your wife before the end of the year you may not claim alimony, but must claim instead such personal exemptions as may be allowed.

$88,382 Loss by Datatech

An operating loss of $88,382 was reported by Datatech Systems Ltd. at the annual meeting in Victoria Thursday.

The 1970 directors were elected for a second term.

In 1969-70 the rapid data processing holding company showed a profit of $52,466 on lower revenue. The figures were for the fiscal period ended Aug. 31, 1970.

Only five months earlier, then-president Earl Large had told shareholders the prospects for expansion and profits were good.

After the meeting Thursday, chairman Robert Large, of Duncan, said there may have been some "over-optimism" last year and that the operating firm's existing customers experienced a decline in volume of business in line with business generally.

He also said that compared with other data processing centres the company's performance is "very good."

The report to shareholders noted reluctance of directors to make any revenue projections, although the first annual report in projecting $716,000 revenue was close to the actual $718,611 for 1970.

This compared with $449,700 in 1969, or $774,769 and $496,002, respectively, including interest income. But cost of sales and overhead mounted sharply, going from $421,000 in 1969 to $910,600 last year.

Before-tax loss was $135,915 vs. profit of $74,738 in 1969, and after tax adjustments, $88,382 (14.7 cents a share) loss against $52,466 (8.7 cents) profit.

Included in total assets of $1.37 million (vs. $1.38 million) is a note receivable from Can Americo Financial Corp. Ltd. for $506,578, for which certain assets have been taken as security.

These include property and shares, Large said. Auditors made no effort to evaluate the note receivable because they were not able to determine realizable value, they noted. They did not provide any possible loss because the officers of Datatech informed auditors the note will be collected in full.

THE WEATHER

Skies were clear over the inner south coast and in the interior of B.C. early this morning. Snowshowers were reported along the outer coast and were locally heavy. Temperatures ranged from zero to 10 above in the Cariboo to the low thirties in coastal areas.

A trough of low pressure which crossed the Charlottes shortly after midnight produced northwest winds of 62 miles per hour at Cape St. James. This trough will move down the coast this morning. Intermittent snow preceding it will decrease to a few flurries in its wake and there will be temporary clearing along the inner south coast this afternoon. Strong and gusty westerly winds will develop behind this system in coastal areas. The trough will weaken as it crosses the coast mountains but it will be accompanied by a band of snow-flurries as it moves through the interior this afternoon and this evening.

Equipment Moved In

The University of Victoria's biology department is moving equipment into its own three-storey building, leaving the Elliott Building which it has shared with three other science departments since 1963.

The move is expected to last until the end of the current term. The new $2.4 million building which hasn't been named yet will provide about twice the space as the biology department's first home on the second floor of the Elliott Building.

Half the building will be devoted to research facilities, about 30 per cent to undergraduate laboratories, and the remainder to things like seminar rooms, study space, and offices.

Other departments will use some of the new building's classrooms. The university has not announced what the vacated space in the Elliott Building will be used for.

Wires to Go Underground

The B.C. Telephone Company is expected soon to start placing telephone wires underground on Hampshire Road south of Oak Bay Avenue, Oak Bay Council was told this week.

But municipal engineer Geoff White said the benefit would not be apparent for some time.

"They put wires underground, but they leave other wires up until the end of their economic life, so it is not the advantage we expected," he said.

Kidnapped Boy Sought By Hundreds

MUNICH (Reuter) — Hundreds of police using tracker dogs, horses and helicopters searched today for a seven-year-old boy still missing after payment of a $53,000 ransom to his alleged kidnappers Wednesday.

Michael Luhmer, son of a bus driver, was kidnapped Monday at a carnival in the Bonn suburb of Niederbachem.

Anonymous telephone callers to a newspaper and to people in Munich and Niederbachem gave instructions for payment of the ransom and also demanded the release of an unidentified prisoner.

The prisoner is believed to be Horst Mahler, a left-wing lawyer from West Berlin.

WANT LAWYER FREED

Rolf Bossi, a lawyer who received two anonymous telephone calls, told reporters the callers wanted him to tell police to release a lawyer from an area under West German jurisdiction but not in West Berlin.

Bossi said there was no doubt in his mind that the lawyer was Mahler, who is linked with a left-wing group suspected of plotting guerrilla warfare against the government.

The ransom was paid by the government of North-Rhine Westphalia state at the request of police. The money was deposited in a Munich bank, as the anonymous callers had instructed.

Three-Count On Last End Beats Victoria Rink 8-7

HALIFAX — The British Columbia rink skipped by Gord Moore of Victoria suffered a crushing setback this morning, and a Prince Edward Island foursome took the lead in the Canadian seniors curling championships.

Gord Wallace's Ontario champions counted three on the final end to upset the Moore rink 8-7 this morning and knocked B.C. out of a share of the lead heading into this afternoon's 11th and final round.

Dr. Wendell MacDonald's P.E.I. rink, meanwhile, clobbered Newfoundland 14-8 to take the lead with an 8-1, won-lost record.

The Victoria rink, which also includes third Gordon Hooey, second Dick Pick and lead Jack Smith, shares second place with Saskatchewan's Burley Townsend, each with 7-3 records.

EYES ON STESKI

Townsend won his seventh game with a comparatively easy 8-3 decision over Manitoba.

Thus the last-chance hopes of both Moore and Townsend rode with Rudy Steski's Northern Ontario quartet which met P.E.I. in the final round. Northern Ontario had a 4-5 record.

Both B.C. and Sakatchewan needed a Northern Ontario victory if they wished to force a playoff. The Moore rink went against Manitoba (2-7) while Saskatchewan closed against New Brunswick (2-7) in the other crucial, final-round games.

HEART-BREAKER

This morning's defeat was a heart-breaker for Moore, who lost out in 1969 after a playoff with Ontario's Alfie Phillips. The Moore rink broke a 5-5 tie by counting two on the ninth end.

That made it 7-5 going into the final end but Ontario cracked its crushing three-ender to pull off the upset.

Moore, getting an important bye, stretched his record to 7-1 Thursday by defeating Quebec 12-5 and Alberta 11-4.

BILL WALKER

It was story-telling time — authors make thousands out of compilations such as these — and the subject got around to hockey. What else? Because mainly more people are interested in the game than ever before. And the company was pleasant, too.

Besides there were a few enigmas skating about in the old days just as there are now. And one historical item which cropped up concerns the late Roger Leger, coach of the Victoria Cougars.

New Roger was equally well known for his defensive tactics on the ice as well as his ability to handle any given situation eleswhere. And it was during a playoff series at Portland that the order to the Cougars went out that there would be a curfew that evening because some of the players had been seen out of bounds on a previous evening and the following night the club had lost the game. Lateness would not be tolerated.

The job of checking on the players was left in the capable hands of the club trainer, George Wilkinson. And a thankless task it was, too. For after he had checked out most of the rooms, and found nearly occupied to the limit, George went to report to the coach. But the coach wasn't in. After a short wait, George decided a search would be in order.

●

Being a good listener in the clubrooms, George naturally knew where to look. And sure enough, at his first port of call, who did he find? The coach!

But Leger was equal to the occasion. He simply answered Wilkinson's stare with the comment:

"It's okay George, you can check in now; if any of the players are out, they'll show up here, and I'll catch them red-handed."

P.S. — Nine did, but the Cougars won the next game, and also the series.

There were other incidents, too, such as the time defenceman Ernie Roche turned on the fire hose in a Saskatoon hotel. The complaint from the hotel management was that there was no fire.

There's one from the book of memories, as well, concerning the earlier life of Howie Young, the otherwise talented defenceman who keeps letting down those who have given him his many chances to make it big in the NHL.

It was when Young was a member of the Edmonton Flyers, and Bud Poile, now of the Canucks, was there in an executive capacity. It could even have been when the Howie Young saga was at its flamboyant best. Because Young at that time engaged in several pre-game, and post-game escapades, some harmless, but many of which defied description, or reality.

●

It has been told before, but one of the Young memoirs that never fails to delight the fun lovers, and hasn't been forgotten in Edmonton, either, concerns the arrival of the circus in town. There was a cowboy clown with the entertainment group and he had the unlikely name of Slim Pickens. Somehow, Pickens and Young got acquainted, and even became fast friends. One was the perfect foil for the other, and a kindred relationship was born. So much so that when Young one day produced passes to the circus for the team, he casually announced that he was going to be a part of the show.

One of the main acts on the program was a buffalo jumping over a half-ton truck. This was considered to be quite a feat. But imagine the surprise when the assembled players looked down and immediately recognized the rider on the buffalo. It was Young.

Everything went well as buffalo and Young began their speciality performance and until they reached the halfway point in the leap, all was well. It was then they went their separate ways.

Or as Poile said later, and will repeat even now:

SLAMMER SLICK IN SAND

Very much in contention after first round of Professional Golfers' Association tournament at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., is 58-year-old Sam Snead, who was two strokes off the pace Thursday with one-under-par 71. Old "Slammer" produces shower of sand as he displays skill with this shot from bunker on 13th hole. He dropped ball close enough to cup to save par and was two under par at that point. # Jack Shooting At Bob's Mark

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — The least impressed over Jack Nicklaus' bid this week for an unprecedented double grand slam in professional golf is Jack Nicklaus himself.

"I don't take much stock in it —it's something newspaper men invented," Nicklaus said Thursday after shooting a three-under-par 69 for the first-round lead in the 53rd Professional Golfers Association championship.

If Jack can maintain his present momentum and win his second PGA here this week, he will become the first player ever to win the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA twice around.

'SIMPLE' TARGET

Nicklaus insists his aim is a simple one. He wants to win more major championships than any player who ever lived. He needs four more to overtake the great Bob Jones, who quit at the age of 28 with 13 of them.

Jones won five U.S. amateur championships, four U.S. Opens, three British Opens and one British Amateur.

Nicklaus has won two U.S. amateurs, two U.S. Opens, three Masters, two British Opens and one PGA.

After the first round Thursday, Nicklaus had a one-stroke lead over Bobby Mitchell, Bob Charles, and Bob Goalby with a group of 12 players another stroke back at 71. Another 17 shots 72s.

Arnold Palmer, still trying for his first-ever PGA title, was well back with a 75. George Knudson, the only Canadian entered, shot a 74.

Record Eruption Daily Happening

Six-Point Spree By Bucyk Sparks Bruins' 8-3 Win

By The Canadian Press

Setting National Hockey League records is becoming almost an every-day routine for Boston Bruins who set two marks Thursday night on the way to an 8-3 victory over Vancouver Canucks.

With goals by Johnny Bucyk, Ed Westfall and Ted Green in 20 seconds, the Bruins set a record for the fastest three goals and Westfall became the eighth team member to get 20 goals in a season, also a league record.

The Bruins now will rest for Sunday night wren they play host to Toronto Maple Leafs in a game in which Boston could set a record for most goals in a season. They now are just five behind the mark of 303 goals they set in the 1968-69 season.

In other games Thursday, Philadelphia Flyers edged Buffalo Sabres 3-2. St. Louis Blues downed Detroit Red Wings 3-1, Minnesota North Stars tied Toronto Maple Leafs 1-1 and Montreal Canadiens beat Los Angeles Kings 5-3.

HAD EARLY LEAD

The Canucks, who last week upset the Bruins 5-4 in a game at Vancouver, took a 2-0 first-period lead in their encounter at Boston before the Bruins started back, led by Bucyk's three goals and three assists.

The 35-year-old left winger set up second-period goals by centre Fred Stanfield and right winger Johnny McKenzie before starting the record three-goal outburst at 4:50 of the third period.

Westfall beat Vancouver goalie Dunc Wilson at 5:02 and Green's goal came at 5:10.

The previous record of 21 seconds was set by Bill Mosienko of Chicago Black Hawks in a 1952 game against New York Rangers.

The previous record of seven 20-goal scorers on one team was shared by several clubs.

Bucyk's second goal of the night made him a 40-goal scorer for the first time in his 16 NHL seasons. His previous high was 31 goals last season.

Among other records that stand within easy reach of the East Divison leaders are most points and most wins in one season.

PETE GETS THREE

With 18 games remaining, they are just 10 behind the record 103 points Montreal Canadiens earned in 1968-69 and just three wins back of the 46 mark the Canadiens set the same season.

Pete Mahovlich, playing in his first full NHL season, scored three goals, including what proved to be the winner, in Montreal's triumph at Los Angeles.

Hansen Bows In Semi-Final

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — The Canadian women's curling championship rode on the result of an afternoon playoff between Saskatchewan and Alberta after Ina Hansen's British Columbia champions were knocked out of the running this morning.

The three rinks all finished with 6-3, won-lost records after the completion of regular rounds Thursday.

Saskatchewan, skipped by Vera Pezer, scored three on an extra end to defeat the B.C. rink from Kimberley, 10-7, this morning and advance into the final against Alberta's Kay Baldwin.

British Columbia, playing strongly, forced the extra end by stealing one on the 10th end.

The three-rink playoff was created Thursday when Quebec, skipped by Nicole Janelle, upset Alberta 11-7 in the final round.

British Columbia squeezed past Newfoundland 7-6 after trouncing Nova Scotia 12-4 in other Thursday games. Saskatchewan also won its final two games, 8-7 over Manitoba and 9-5 over P.E.I.

Cubs Fall Behind In Junior Playoff

Cizyoff hockey, Victoria Cubs are discovering, is a horse of a different color.

Cubs dominated regular-season meetings with Nanaimo Buckaneers, but all that has changed in the Vancouver Island Junior "B" championship series. The Bucks moved ahead 2-1 in the best-of-five series by tripping the shorthanded Cubs 7-5 at Memorial Arena Thursday before about 500 fans.

Cubs were without Terry Maxwell, out with a broken hand; defenceman Bob Lukas, sidelined with a shoulder injury, and defenceman Jim Neilson, who had to work Thursday evening.

The defensive holes hurt Cubs most. Out-shot 40-36, Nanaimo made the most of its chances.

Al Lawson, with two, Bill Bestwick, Lindsay Thompson, Ken Wocknitz, Ray Clark and Brad Richardson scored for Nanaimo while Dennis McLean, Don Blyth, Ron Poole, Gord Neilson and Wayne Hendry hit for Cubs in a game that was tied five times.

Fourth game of the series will be played Wednesday in Nanaimo.

Vikings Face Top Clubs

University of Victoria Vikings might well determine who finishes atop the Vancouver Island Hockey League — win or lose.

Chemainus Blues currently lead Stockers North Americans by less than a percentage point with two regular-schedule games remaining for each squad.

Vikings take on Stockers at 8 tonight in the opening game of a doubleheader at Esquimalt Sports Centre and then travel to Fuller Lake Arena for two games the next two Saturdays against Chemainus.

Stockers complete their schedule next Friday against fifth-place Butler Brothers, who tangle with Victoria Cubs in the second game tonight beginning at 9:15.

Scoring leaders:

Olympics Pick Pilot

MONTREAL (CP) — Renato Tofano of Italy has been appointed head coach of Montreal Olympics of the North American Soccer League, it was announced today. Tofano currently is recruiting players in Europe.

Rugby Pilots Expect Better Island Efforts

Alan Rees and Nick Prowse, coaches of Vancouver Island junior and colt representative rugby sides, respectively, expect better efforts from their charges Saturday at Macdonald Park in the second of three trial matches.

They believe the Islanders were not at their best in opening encounters last Sunday on the Mainland.

Mainland juniors nipped Island rivals 9-8 and Mainland Colts thumped Island Colts 16-0 in first matches of trials to select provincial representative squads which will face touring Japanese teams March 31 and April 4 in Vancouver.

The Colt squads clash at 1 p.m. this Saturday while the Juniors meet at 2:30.

In an exhibition game Thursday at Victoria High School, the Victoria Juniors, who will also meet the Japanese team in Royal Athletic Park at 8 p.m. March 22, downed a high school all-star side which will tour the United Kingdom, 20-3.

SHORT-STAFFED FOR GAME WITH CROATIA

Tough Task for United

Victoria United does not expect an easy road to victory while tackling Vancouver Croatia in a Pacific Coast Soccer League match Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Third-place Croatia is coming on strong and still jubilant from a 2-0 blanking of runner-up Columbus in a Vancouver match last weekend.

In addition, United faces the prospect of taking on the tough challengers without the services of some key players.

Coach Frank Grealy has picked linkman George Hyne as a starter but the United regular could miss the match because of a bothersome foot injury suffered during a basketball practice.

Victoria's other linkman, Brian Robinson, injured his knee in last Saturday's tussle with UBC Thunderbirds and is not listed in the starting lineup.

Up-Island players Ray Telford, who twisted an ankle at work, and Jim Irvine, who missed last weekend's match because of work, may also be unable to make the game.

Grealy has listed in the tentative lineup Barry Sadler (goal); Howie Anderson, Peter Robarts, Bill Hamilton, Ron Thompson (defence); Tom Westwater, George Hyne (linkmen); Bob Bolitho, Ike MacKay, Gil McIlraith and Jan Bentley (forwards).

Game time is 2 p.m.

Reports on The Outdoors

Some rambling notes along the trail.

We tend to view with concern the tendency of certain vocal segments of society to equate easy access with far-sighted management of our recreational resources . . . In many instances the exact reverse is true . . . Some of our parks are now suffering damage from over-use to the very natural attributes which prompted their formation . . . And as population pressures increase, the use of existing parks, creation of new parkland without built-in safeguards to prevent the consequences of over-use might be disastrous.

For the next few weeks it might be wise to check yourselves over very carefuuly after coming out of the woods . . . We found that ticks are out in full force after an outing last weekend . . . If you find one (or worse, more) on your body, first kill it with something hot (cigarette, match, etc.) or something like turpentine or gasoline . . . This should cause the little beast to release its hold on your flesh . . . If that fails, try to remove with a twisting motion (either direction) . . . A straight pull might leave the head in the flesh to fester.

Electrolic swans, yet . . . Some 40,000 whistling swans now in the process of wintering along the east coast of the United States are packing portable radios designed to help them avoid collisions with aircraft . . . As a bonus, it helps ornithologists plot the exact migration patterns of these large birds.

Word comes in that Eldiva Sturman won the first fishing contest in Kansas during 1971 with a 2½-ounce catch . . . Three minutes before the contest was to end in Toronto, Kan., Mrs. Sturman hauled in her catch, a four-inch crappie, just double the length of the minnow she caught it on . . . No other fish was caught by the 50-odd competitors.

Salmon derby dates have been set by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association . . . Centennial Qualifying Derby is open to anyone and runs from May 9 to July 4 with fishoff on July 18 . . . Membership Derby is closed (members only) and on May 9 . . . Sweetheart Derby for the gentler sex is open to all on June 9 . . . Junior Derby (open) is Aug. 29 . . . Coho-Spring Derby (open) is Sept. 26 . . . and Executive Derby (closed) is on Oct. 3.

★ ★ ★

Fifth annual Courtenay Fish and Game Club steelhead derby, held on all Island streams north of and including the Big Qualicum last weekend, produced a total catch of 51 steelies, more than double the 23-fish total caught last year . . . Heaviest fish was a 17-pound, one-ounce buck taken by Joe Korsa of Campbell River from the Gold River . . . Second heaviest, a 15:15 doe from the salmon, was landed by Don Cameron of Gold River . . . Largest fish caught by a junior was a 12:02 landed by Bobby Clark of Campbell River . . . Jacqueline Clifford of Courtenay (5:05) captured the women's prize.

Outdoor Club of Victoria will be hiking in the vicinity of Sooke Pot Holes and rapids on Sunday . . . Further information is available from the hike leader, Eve Howden, at 479-6797 . . . The newly-organized four-wheel-drive club will meet tonight at 8 in the Ingraham Hotel to elect officers, choose a club name and plan another trip.

Best spots to try for spring salmon around Vancouver Island this week might be Deep Bay, Northwest Bay, Finlayson Arm, Trial Island, Constance Banks and Brotchie Ledge.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Entering victory circle in Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest for first time is 16-year-old Karen Roberts, who collected with women's fivepin award during 18th week of eighth annual competition. Karen rattled maples for 251-277-281—809 series in Monday Senior League at Cush's Bowl-a-Golf Spa to capture weekly award and berth in Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 2.

Czech Wins Ice Duel; Karen in Fourth Spot

LYON, France (CP) — Trixi Schuba of Austria, continuing her strong showing in the compulsory school figures, retained a solid lead today in the women's world figure skating championship, leaving Karen Magnussen of Canada worse off than before as far as hopes for the title are concerned.

The Vancouver girl, rated the best Canadian prospect for a medal in the current competition, still occupied fourth place in the 22-entry field, but the points difference between her and the leader widened after completion of the last two of the six school figures.

Miss Schuba, who had hoped for a 100-point margin going into the Saturday night free-skating finale, scored a total of 1,263 points compared with 1,124.2 for Miss Magnussen—a margin of 138.8.

The Canadian girl, however, vowed she will "keeping fighting" and her coach is counting on a strong showing by the blue-eyed blonde in the free-skating, her specialty.

Julie Lynn Holmes of the United States and Rita Trapanese of Italy remained in second and third places respectively.

The two other Canadian girls in the individual women's contest—Ruth Hutchinson of Vancouver and Diane Hall of Toronto—were 17th and 19th respectively.

Ondrej Nepela of Czechoslovakia won the men's singles title Thursday, climaxing three days of neck-and-neck rivalry with runnerup Patrick Pera of France.

A vocal Canadian contingent at the Palais des Sports gave Montrealer Toller Cranston loud and constant support as he tried to make up for a 15th-place finish in the earlier compulsory competition.

FINISHES ELEVENTH

Cranston, 21, whirled, leaped and almost tap-danced to cheers from the whole house but his sixth-place finish in the free-skating event was not enough to push him into the top 10 as he had hoped.

Instead, he ended up 11th after an over-all championship experience which had left him complaining about the judging system in the initial stages of the competition.

Medical Lectures Get to the Heart

The Health Education Centre gets to the heart of the matter when its spring series of medical lectures begins Monday.

The talk and films that evening will be on coronary heart disease and circulation. Tuesday the subject is heartburn, hiatus hernia and gall bladder troubles. Wednesday evening's subject is x-rays in diagnosis and treatment and Thursday the topic will be strokes.

The Health Education Centre, which opened at 3019 Shakespeare (opposite the Hillside Shopping Centre) last April, has doctors volunteering their time to speak on their specialities.

FOR PREVENTION

It's a counselling service — free. The doctors won't be diagnosing. But they will explain and advise on medical subjects.

Supported by private donations, the centre is an effort at preventive medicine, providing health education through lectures, group discussions and free literature.

Lectures are held Monday through Thursday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and the spring series concludes with a five-day program April 4 to 8 for people who want to stop smoking.

Monday nights, March 1 to 29, will be devoted to heart and circulation troubles.

On Tuesday nights: March 9, ulcers; March 16, cirrhosis of the liver, hepatitus, what drugs do to the liver; March 23 and 29, overweight.

On Wednesday nights; March 10, arthritis; March 17, a practical demonstration on management of arthritis (this lecture at Gorge Road Hospital); March 24, bronchitis and emphysema and March 31, air pollution and human health.

On Thursday nights: March 11, epilepsy; March 18, female menopause; March 25 and April 1, cancer in the female.

Handicapped Day Centre Considered

A day-care centre in Victoria for the handicapped and a program to help patients from Campbell River to Sidney, are being considered, George Smith, president of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society, told the annual meeting.

Smith was elected president for a second year.

Victoria architect John Di Castri showed slides of the proposed Batten-Field housing project of the Cosmopolitan Club and the society. It is to be built between Darwin and Vernon Avenues in Saanich.

The project is designed to provide integrated housing for handicapped people, elderly citizens and general housing, he said. It would provide a living example of an integrated segment of society.

Mrs. Alberta Hodgson, president of the Golden Key auxiliary, gave the president cheques totalling $3,000 to go toward patient aid. The money had been raised through teas, rummage sales and bazaars.

Special Photo Display Slated For Centennial

Photographs by William Dekur of North Vancouver will be shown in Victoria from July 6 to 10.

The exhibition will feature 100 black and white and color photographs of B.C. taken by Dekur.

Other points where the exhibition in a van especially the Island as part of Centennial '71 celebrations are: Campbell River, June 24, 25; Courtenay, June 26, 27; Port Alberni, June 29 to July 1; Nanaimo July 2 to 4.

Dekur will travel with the exhibition in a can especially designed to carry the exhibit.

Hydro Gas Profit $4.8M Last Year

B.C. Hydro made a $4.8 million profit on natural gas sales during its last fiscal year, Premier Bennett reported in the legislature Wednesday in written answers to questions.

The profit was made on gas which cost $20.1 million for Hydro to purchase.

Bennett also revealed that advertising costs for government parity bonds of provincial crown corporations totalled $154,000 in the 1969-1970 fiscal year and $121,688 in the previous year.

Montreal Teachers Ignore Threat

MONTREAL (CP) — Ignoring the threat of government fines, the 9,500-member Alliance des Professeurs de Montreal today called a walkout of about 1,200 teachers for this afternoon from 25 French-language Roman Catholic schools in Montreal.

About 25,000 students would be affected by the alliance's latest move to call attention to its demand that the Quebec national assembly intervene in the province's dispute over teacher classification.

Meanwhile, negotiations in Quebec City to settle the dispute over teacher classification were to enter their second day.

Jean-Paul L'Allier, Quebec civil service minister, threatened Wednesday to take action against the Alliance des Professeurs de Montreal, the only group still continuing strike action carried out by various groups since Jan. 25.

He told the Quebec national assembly he has taken the necesary steps in conjunction with the labor department to apply sanctions provided for in the Labor Code against the rebellious teachers.

Under the Quebec Labor Code, the union could be fined $100 to $1,000 a day for the walkouts. Individual members could be fined $25 to $100 a day.

"No halt in the action is currently foreseen," a spokesman for the alliance said following Mr. L'Allier's announcement that the teachers will be fined for any new walkout.

The negotiations in Quebec City began Thursday after the Quebec Teachers Corporation, which groups 67,00 members of most teacher unions in the province, agreed to suspend rotating strikes begun Jan. 25.

'No Sense' Claim Moves Council

Victoria council reversed itself on a rezoning decision Thursday after a resthome operator told them their decision made no sense.

Gerald Dewhurst, owner of a boarding home at 914 St. Charles, was sitting in the council chamber when council turned down an Advisory Planning Commission recommendation to rezone the property to a community care facility.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay began the opposition, saying that "I just assume that when the commission gets weary enough, they endorse it."

Council had formerly turned down an application to rezone the property, he noted.

After council again voted the rezoning down, Dewhurst stood up and asked to speak to council. After some hesitation, he was allowed.

"Gentlemen, you make no sense with what you do," he said, claiming similar rezonings in the same area had been approved in the last six months.

He added that "we have the best situation in the city of Victoria."

"It's too bad you don't get out and see it."

When Ald. Percy Frampton said he had inspected the building, Dewhurst told him he hadn't.

"You looked in the front yard," he said.

Council decided to reconsider the application and referred the matter back to committee.

Harmac Mill, Union Sign 3-Year Pact

NANAIMO (CP) — The Harmac local of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Wednesday announced signing of a long-disputed contract with the MacMillan Bloedel pulp mill near Nanaimo.

The three-year agreement was voted on and agreed to by the local in September after a two-month strike.

However, formal signing was delayed by the company on grounds that the contract was negotiated by the industry and all union locals should sign it.

Education Week Events

Demonstration classes in two shopping malls, downtown window displays, bus tours, television programs and special events at the schools will highlight Education Week which begins Monday and continues until March 5.

Teachers will conduct classes three days a week at the Mayfair Shopping Centre and the Hillside Shopping Mall. At Woodwards, classes will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., excluding the lunch hour, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Classes will be held during the same hours Wednesday, Thursday and Friday by Hillside's mall chandelier.

The latest in education aids will be on show in display windows at the Bay and Eaton's.

Special guests will be taken on a bus tour of the district's schools Wednesday and Thursday.

School board chairman Alan McKinnon will debate with Les Isaacson, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, on Channel 6's noon show Friday. Movies and other interviews will be seen on the show each day of the week.

Virus May Cause Human Leukemia

SEATTLE (AP) — University of Washington scientists have found strong evidence to support the theory that a virus can cause human leukemia.

The evidence arose in a case involving a 16-year-old girl whose leukemia was diagnosed in July, 1969. After other methods of treatment failed, she was given a high dose of radiation to kill her cancerous bone marrow cells, then received a transplant of healthy marrow cells from her 10-year-old brother.

Blood counts 42 days after the transplant showed only the healthy donor cells were present, but 62 days later recurrent leukemia was found. The girl died 102 days after the marrow transplant.

The research was directed by Dr. P. J. Failkow and Dr. E. Donnell Thomas and assted by Drs. Jean Bryant and Paul Neiman. They reported their work in the British medical journal, The Lancet.

The doctors decided that if the re-growth was caused by the girl's own cells, they would contain two female X chromosomes. However, if the healthy transplanted cells became cancerous, the recurring leukemia cells would contain male XY chromosomes. Analysis showed that the diseased cells were the XY cells of the donor.

"Since the brother has remained without evidence of the disease," said Failkow, "a likely possibility is that the donor cells became cancerous through activation of the leukemogenic (leukemia causing) agent, such as a virus, or the transfer of such an agent from the patient's cells to the donor cells.

"That possibility doesn't mean that leukemia, like measles or other viral diseases, is contagious."

Wheat 'Disaster'

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — The outcome of the United Nations wheat conference in Geneva last week was termed a disaster for Canada Wednesday by former prime minister John Diefenbaker. "The bottom has fallen out and the floor price has ceased to exist," he said in an interview. "There now is no protection for Canadian farmers and there will be fire sales of wheat by nations with surpluses."

Introducing Armstrong tile that's not a tile.

The carpet square.

They're ready to apply and easy to install. Just peel, place, and press.

Ever thought of making your own shag carpet?

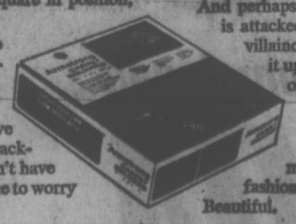
Well, now you can. Because that's the whole idea behind our new shag carpet squares. (First in Canada).

And the beauty of it is, it's easy.

You simply peel off the release paper, place each 12 inch by 12 inch square in position, and press.

(One hour and twenty-two minutes is the current record for do-it-yourselfing a 9 by 12 room).

And because our exclusive FLAME GUARD foam backing is self adhesive, you don't have any sticky problems like glue to worry about.



Consider these other benefits, too:

Waste not, want not. You pay only for the amount of carpet you buy. No useless leftovers.

No underpadding to pay for.

No installation to pay for.

Be creative. Mix'n match them.

And perhaps best of all, if one square is attacked by a cigarette burn or a villainous stain, all you do is pull it up and replace it with a new one.

So make your own shag carpet with Armstrong carpet squares. Six dramatic colourations in high fashion nylon shag to choose from. Beautiful.

Available at these Armstrong dealers.

Day Care Centres Needed

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Organized labor has been talking for some time about union sponsored day care across Canada for children of working mothers. In Victoria, the B.C. Government Employees Union has taken up that challenge and by the first of April expects to have a day care centre opened in the James Bay area.

Forbes

Over a year ago in line with the idea of union participation in community affairs, a questionnaire was circulated to BCGEU members asking for suggested projects. A child day care centre won the vote.

Immediately a feasibility committee of seven women and one man was named with Mrs. Walter (Edith) Forsyth the chairman.

This committee met with Victoria city child welfare supervisor, Mrs. J. Gurr, Miss J. Ellingham and with Don Bingham, provincial director of child welfare.

It was Mrs. Gurr who suggested that a day care centre would be a boon to the James Bay district.

★ ★ ★

"Immediately we went on a hunt for a suitable building," Mrs. Forsyth told me. "Finally we came up with the possibility of using the Servitus Hall at 106 Superior Street, owned now by the Unitarian Church. You will remember it as the old Seaman's Institute Building."

City inspection showed that with an electrical overhaul, the ground floor (two large rooms, one of auditorium size, kitchen and an office) could be used. There is also a small enclosed yard and within two blocks there is a city play park.

Then came the necessity of finding funds for needed changes and to equip the centre.

"It was our idea that dances, raffles and other fund raising affairs might be held to help defray this expense," Mrs. Forsyth said. "And we did run a raffle last autumn that gave us $800.

Then the BCGEU made available a sum of $4,000 from branch funds to provide for the necessary operating expenses for the first year, "and we were on our way."

★ ★ ★

The feasibility committee was disbanded and a permanent BCGEU community day care centre committee of seven women and six men was named with Bill Osselton the chairman and with Mrs. Forsyth, chairman of personnel.

After the work of renovation was well started, flyers were placed in James Bay stores explaining that the centre would accept 20 children in the three-to-five age group.

Also that these little ones would be under care from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., five days weekly.

Preference will be given to children of working mothers, or mothers who are ill or convalescing from an illness.

Mrs. Phyllis Turner "well qualified and with a wealth of day care and children's care experience in Ottawa" is to be supervisor at the centre. Two assistants are still to be named.

As a non-profit group this day care centre will function under three classifications — parents who pay the full cost, a sliding scale adjusted to family income and augmented by the child welfare department and with costs entirely paid by the department of child welfare.

★ ★ ★

Enthusiasm within the union is running high. Some members are spending off hours and weekends in making needed play equipment and in helping with main renovations. Donations of various kinds are coming in "and they are all going to be useful."

Right now the committee is looking for a black-and-white TV set in good condition "so the children can watch Sesame Street and some of the better cartoons."

Has anyone got such an item stored away in basement or attic?

Every effort is being made to ensure success of the ambitious effort, Mrs. Forsyth says. "From knowledge we have, this could be the first union sponsored day-care centre in Canada. Certainly it is the first in British Columbia.

"So you see it is more or less a pilot project and it will be watched with keen interest by other unions thinking along the same lines."

The sex one

Pardon the pun, but the Mazda 616 has to be the sexiest-looking performer to make the car scene in years.

She's built. Beautifully built. An exciting package of superb engineering with flowing lines that makes it a looker and a mover!

She's stacked: standard features include reclining front bucket seats, luxurious carpeted interior, power-assisted front disc brakes, four-on-the-floor synchromesh transmission*, smooth riding full coil suspension system...and much more.

And how she performs! Mazda's 1600cc 88 horsepower overhead cam engine gives you power to spare. But no bumps or grinds. Mazda's quality construction, muffles out road noise and engine noise for a quiet, sure-footed ride, mile after mile.

But the lady does take good care of you. (It's an old Japanese custom). Nice touches, like the special air vent that de-mists the driver's side window so you can always see your outside mirror; and the unique single-lever control on the steering column that puts five functions at your fingertips: two-speed wiper, windshield washer, flasher, dimmer and passing light. # Western Legislatures Discuss Possible Sale of Home Oil Ltd.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The possible sale of Home Oil Ltd. to a United States company came under scrutiny again Thursday in two western legislatures.

A Liberal member told the Saskatchewan legislature that the sale of firms such as Home Oil to U.S. buyers isn't necessarily a bad thing.

In the Alberta house, Don Getty, a member of the Progressive Conservative opposition, was told again there is nothing the province can do to block the sale.

At Regina, Ian MacDougall (L—Souris-Estevan) said he felt much of the current talk about economic nationalism is "just so much socialist balderdash."

"I, for one, am happy to see anyone spend money in this province regardless of who it is or where it comes from," he said.

Alberta Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart told Mr. Getty (PC—Strathcona West) that Home Oil is a federally-chartered company and is outside the jurisdiction of Alberta or any other province.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex Campbell told the Prince Edward Island legislature Thursday private industry might be attracted to build a causeway between the island and New Brunswick.

He said that the project could be economic if the federal government agreed to pay the builders the same subsidy now being spent annually on the ferry service over the next 20 years.

WALKS OUT OF HOUSE

Parti Quebecois member Lucien Lessard walked out of the Quebec national assembly after the speaker refused to accept one of his questions concerning the construction of a road.

Speaker Jean-Noel Lavoie refused the question from the Saguenay member, ruling it was not in the general interest of the national assembly.

Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan promised the legislature he would "fight hard" any challenge by the federal government over provincial legislation bringing fishermen under the Trade Union Act.

The house gave second reading—approval in principle—to the measure, which brings under the act those employed "on or in the operation of fishing vessels" whether they are paid wages or share in the proceeds of the catch.

Mr. Regan was critical of the previous government for putting in the hands of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia a decision on whether the fishermen come under the provincial or federal jurisdiction.

Adoption Decrease Pill Result

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The number of babies available for adoption in the counties of Middlesex, Lambton, Elgin, Huron and Kent is decreasing, Children's Aid Society officials say, and prospective parents will have to wait longer to adopt children.

"The pill's caught up with us," says Bruth Heath, director of the society in Huron County, referring to the increased use of birth control pills by women.

Kent County is considering refusing adoption applications for six months, but other counties are encouraging couples to consider adopting older children.

Douglas Barrett, director of Elgin County's Society, said the shortage of adoptable infants is likely due to the increased use of the pill, increasing availability of abortions and more unwed mothers being willing to keep their babies.

THOSE WHO 'DON'T LOVE CITY' AGAINST HIM

Reid Would Risk Vote

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Vancouver developer J. A. Reid told a public meeting Thursday night he would stake his $25 million waterfront residential-commercial proposal on a referendum vote.

Reid, who last fall angrily withdrew his development proposal because of the "abuse" he said he was receiving from Victoria council, made the statement in response to a question before about 150 people at the Empress.

The meeting was the second of its kind in two weeks, sponsored by the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

The panel included Reid, a representative of CPR's property branch, Marathon Realty, and Geoffrey Greenhalgh, the city's planning director.

The question period which followed a panel discussion turned up strong vocal support for and against high-rise re-development on the Inner Harbor.

●

Moderator John Di Castri opened the meeting by "categorically" stating the meeting was not meant for political purposes, but high-rise advocate Mayor Courtney Haddock was among the obvious supporters of statements backing Reid's three-tower proposal.

In his opening statement moderator John Di Castri, an architect, said "I would like to go on record and categorically state that the (CPAC) is in no way politically orientated. I would also like to state that under no conditions will this branch be manipulated or implicated in any political issue whatsoever."

He added: "We are here to try and provide the means by which the community can objectively assess important issues — not only affecting any one municipality per se, but the community as a whole ... this whole concept of community goes beyond personal and individual interest. ..."

Greenhalgh told the meeting that "whether we like it or not," development "is part of the free enterprise system."

●

He said development had to include a profit for the developer and added that when the city decided in 1967 that the waterfront should be redeveloped, "it was never intended that this would result in an exercise in uninhibited architectural sketches."

Reid opened his remarks by saying "you have not been given both sides of the story" of his development proposals.

None of his towers, he said, would be as high as the Executive House at Douglas and Humboldt.

He also wanted to "debunk" the impression that his proposal did not provide public access to the waterfront.

Arguments against his proposal had come from "people who don't love the city.

"There are a lot of people who like cities. Make no mistake about that. They like sidewalk cafes, they like action."

Attributing an "information gap" to the newspapers, he said "I appreciate that newspapers are money-hungry and want to sell their product.

"I appreciate that developers are money-greedy and want to make profits. I don't think there's anything wrong with that and I think somebody, somewhere, should have the intestinal fortitude to say so. ...

"This country was based on a profit motive — let us not forget that. There's no way we're coming in here to make a loss, if we can help it. And there's no way the Colonist or the Times is operating as a charitable organization. ..."

Reid said about his project that "we are flexible and we will change it." But he said "people say you are going to destroy the view — what view?"

Part of his project would be housing for senior citizens.

"They like to be where it's happening. I think this is a fantastic place for them to be."

●

Marathon Realty representative John McLernon said that with its early proposals for its side of the Inner Harbor, "somehow something got off the rails. We had a close look at it, and called it back."

McLernon said that Marathon is trying to provide "a catalyst to providing a better environment.

"We have the capital to provide it," he said.

GLOOMY DAY

A Trek to Town Without a Hope

By Jack Scott

Notes from a man's diary on a melancholy day:

Hardly a morning now that I don't pick up one or more young people heading into town in a frustrating, often humiliating search for work and I marvel at their bottomless depths of patience and determination.

One pretty girl in her late 'teens with high school matriculation has methodically made the rounds of every office in every single downtown building in Victoria for the past three weeks, sometimes courteously received, more often rudely. Yet brightly tells me: "I'm bound to hit it right one day if I just keep on."

A husky youngster of about the same age who had scraped the barrel told me that Manpower had suggested he might train as a butcher. When he eagerly took them up on the idea they cautioned him that, the training over, he'd have to bide his time on a waiting list for an opening. Fine, said he, and how long a wait might it be? "Probably three years," was the reply.

This morning it was a tall, personable 24-year-old who has a Master of Science degree in civil engineering. He was on his way to Simpson's-Sears where, it seems, there was a slight chance he might be taken on selling men's suits.

"I over-educated myself," he grinned without malice.

I found myself thinking of an ironic line in an article from the Ubyssey that we ran the other day on Page Five: "The old guaranteed ticket to the good life just ain't what it used to be."

Scott

Talking later in the day to W. B. Thompson, Vancouver manager of the Technical Service Council, a job placement service which represents 400-odd Canadian firms, and he sadly confirmed that our dismal record in scientific research and development has made a kind of mockery of the Ph.D. or the M. Sc.

In one recent survey of 419 jobs for experienced engineers and scientists only 22 required advanced degrees and of 101 current openings for electrical engineers only one carries that requirement. Even in the presumably fast-changing field of electronics none of the 27 jobs surveyed required a Master's or Ph. D.

"Experience is more important to most employers than an advanced degree," Thompson explained. But how you get experience without a job is something no one is currently explaining too clearly.

So you meet these youngsters, all the way from the dropouts to those with the most sophisticated of higher educations, and you wonder that they're not headed down town to throw bricks at something or somebody. I put that to the lad with the Masters degree.

"You're okay," said he, "if you can keep your peace of mind and a sense of humor."

Strolled down the Gorge Road at lunch time to see the final demolishment of "Ashnola," the lovely old mansion that's being razed to enlarge the hospital there and it was, indeed, a saddening sight.

The expedition was at the insistence of a woman reader who phoned to say that we people in the newspapers should be ashamed that we'd given so little leadership in saving the old home. So, ridden with guilt, I went to pay my final respects.

But later, back at the office, our obliging Muriel Mixon burrowed into the library and found a fat file of alarums across the years by all sorts of newspapermen.

Characteristically, the earliest and most strident of them had come from my old friend, the ubiquitous James K. Nesbitt who observed, four years ago: "Greater Victorians are good at paying lip service, and not very much more, to history." Jimmy's own leadership in the fight to save Ashnola clearly hadn't been enough.

Since I'd never seen the old mansion before and knew little of its 83-year history it surprised me to feel a sort of instant nostalgia and an involved pang of sorrow at the sight of these last indignities of demolishment.

Such buildings are not merely beautiful in their own right, but they evoke the quality and style of an elegant, gracious way of life that, though we might not want its social inequalities restored, should surely endure as a memory. When the building goes the heritage goes.

And, falling into conversation with one of the workers of European background, he made the interesting point that the world's most indefatigable restorer of the ancient glories of affluence are the Eastern European socialist nations.

Every castle, every cathedral, every grand edifice that represented everything a Marxist ever stood against has been lovingly, painstakingly rejuvenated.

★ ★ ★

Much, much later we went with two other couples to everybody's "secret" place at the Esquimalt Lagoon to dig for clams and, hopefully, to find a Dungeness or two — though the crab-hunting seems to have fallen on evil days of late.

It's a fine place on a night when there's a big sky and a low tide and a driftwood fire going and we stayed much later than we'd planned. As we were ready to depart an RCMP prowl car drew up and two officers walked over to make inquiries.

This was the third time in as many winter visits there that we've encountered this police check-up and it wasn't the way I'd have chosen to end this particular day.

The policemen were relaxed and friendly, simply making a routine inquiry on what is apparently a routine patrol. I've since learned that they were probably checking on the size and numbers of the crab that are caught, if any, and I'm all for that enforced conservation.

It was just that there was something wrong with it somehow, that there is either a need or an imagined need for authority, in the name of the law, to be a presence at an isolated place chosen by people trying to get away from it all.

But, as I say, it was one of those melancholy days all around.

Student Arsonist Sent Home

By DOUG MacRAE

A girl student at St. Ann's Academy is en route to her home in another country, and the boarding school section of St. Ann's has been closed permanently, after three fires were set intentionally there last week.

The dormitory section, which housed 42 girls, was closed last weekend pending the outcome of a combined police-fire department investigation of the fires.

Police Chief Jack Gregory said this morning the girl responsible for the arson, a resident student at St. Ann's, had no relatives in Canada.

Because the matter of the cutoff age between juvenile and adult court jurisdiction is before the courts, the girl would have had to be kept in custody for "an undetermined period" if charges had been laid, the chief said.

The two-week investigation involved interviews with every student at the school.

Although the future of the entire St. Ann's operation has been in doubt recently because of a dispute involving school and St. Joseph's Hospital land, a spokesman at the school blamed the dormitory closure on the arson.

Accommodation will be sought for the remaining 41 out-of-town girls.

Students and staff at St. Ann's were so jittery by the end of last week that school work was being impaired, to the point that students would turn in a fire alarm if they smelled cigarette smoke.

The first two fires occurred on the third floor of the dormitory Feb. 15 and 16, in bedding and curtains. Both were controlled by a student, Gertrude Eichberger.

The third blaze caused $100 damage in the backdrop curtains of the school auditorium Feb. 19 before it was extinguished by firemen.

WILD WEATHER at sea off Umatilla Point near the Columbia River caused havoc aboard the Norwegian freighter Nego Victoria which docked at Ogden Point this morning. She had waited out part of the storm Wednesday at anchor in Royal Roads but met trouble Thursday when heavy swells hit her broadside, snapping chains holding her deck cargo, damaging bulwarks and air vents. It is estimated that nearly one million board feet of the 2,600,000 board feet of lumber was swept over the side. Unloading of her cargo begins Saturday at 8 a.m. and repairs and restowing are expected to take a week. The freighter, which finished loading at New Westminster, is bound for France.

GET RID OF SCHOOLS SAYS EDUCATION EXPERT

Schools and schooling are the biggest obstacles to the spread of education, author-teacher John Holt of Boston told an audience of teachers at the University of Victoria today.

Holt is a key speaker at today's annual convention of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

He said the objective of citizens concerned about education should be to "de-school society."

"What we've done now is give schools a monopoly on learning. It will be assumed that you do not have any knowledge unless you have been through this particular school system."

He said that western society had made the mistake of equating education, teaching and learning with schooling.

HOLT
for parks, libraries

He suggested that funds should be diverted from closed educational systems like schools to open institutions like libraries, museums and parks.

He said traditional concept of education has become so expensive that it has made formal schooling inaccessible to about 95 per cent of the world's population.

The United States will spend about $45 billion on elementary and secondary schooling by 1975, but in order for all children to have equal access to the system the budget amount would have to exceed $100 billion.

Rock Breakwater Approval Sought

The executive of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club voted unanimously Thursday night to apply to the department of transport for permission to build a stone breakwater in Cadboro Bay.

The club switched to stone from a planned timber pile breakwater after opposition was mounted in Oak Bay against the wooden structure. After DOT receives the stone proposal, they will ask Oak Bay council for its approval before granting the club's application.

Commodore Neville Life said today it was decided to press for the breakwater to provide winter mooring in Cadboro Bay and "ensure continued cohesion" among club members.

"If the club spread their boats around, our esprit de corps would disappear," Life said. "Without it, it might be difficult to muster enough bodies to run Swiftsure and other events."

The stone breakwater, 60 feet long and lower in profile than the wooden one proposed earlier, would cost the club $160,000. It would run along the outside edge of RVYC's offshore lease, starting some distance off Spurn Head.

East coast-based crews are bringing the two ships from Halifax to Esquimalt.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A WHILE AGO I TOLD you about a wild goose chase that yielded information but no geese. Since then, the situation has changed. I can now claim nodding acquaintance with a lordly lesser Canada gander called Trudeau, a cackling goose of related species named Trudy, and a rare, white-fronted visitor which Mrs. Bertha Sweat has tentatively dubbed Beauty.

Add ducks of various kinds and you have the wild assembly that flocks around Mrs. Sweat twice each day for feeding. Chow-time, on a grassy slope above an Oak Bay cove, is something to witness.

★ ★ ★

I was privileged to do so on Thursday morning, in sunshine tempered by a chill breeze off the water. From a seaward window, we watched while first Trudeau then Trudy made their way up from the beach.

They were handsome birds, clean-cut in their black and slate-grey, and they bulked large among the waddling mallards already gathered for the feast. But the heavy set brown-and-grey bird that joined the Canadas was almost twice their size.

The white-front was wary when he blew in on Tuesday.

"But he's much friendlier now," said Oak Bay's goose-lady of the newcomer, "and he will feed from my hand."

Mrs. Sweet has made her home above the cove since 1948. Her hair is white, but her dark eyes are young. She filled a dish with grain, picked up a plastic bag of bread chunks, and we went out for the 10 o'clock feeding.

Other waterfowl turned up, among them a slender, aristocratic pintail drake in good appetite. The quacking mounted by several decibels as Mrs. Sweat began to deal out bread crumbs.

The Canada geese moved in to feed from her hand. So did the burly white-front. When the bread was gone, she scattered grain.

All except one — a brown and tan drake of Chinese strain — are wild birds. They come and go completely unrestricted. The ducks lay their eggs and hatch their young in foreshore retreats nearby.

Last year was a bad one for ducklings — mink and cats on the prowl took heavy toll of them.

But the geese and ducks that trade in and out of the sheltered cove are generously supplied with watchful human friends. Another resident who expands their natural diet with handouts is H. R. Glover, a former Manitoban who once bagged his share of Canadas. Now, he'd sooner feed them.

When the bread and grain had been gobbled, the wild flock dispersed. The geese returned to the shallows. So did some of the mallards, while others settled on a low sea-wall for sunbaths.

Although Mrs. Sweat doesn't play favorites, she has a special feeling for Trudeau and Trudy. She showed me her log of their arrivals and departures.

Trudeau first ventured up from the bay to feed on May 25, 1968, Trudy on Oct. 9 of the same year.

★ ★ ★

Since then, one or the other has frequently taken off in strong flight, sometimes in the company of members of their migrant tribe. Always though, they have returned, and now the white-front has added his presence to an experiment in friendship that Mrs. Sweat finds rewarding.

She lacks a car, and it isn't always easy for her to keep grain and crusts on hand for demanding appetites. But she does so faithfully, looking forward to the days when another crop of ducklings will take to the water.

Housewives Viewed as 'Mindless Nits'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detergent companies tend to regard housewives as "mindless nits."

That is the view of a group of University of Toronto scientists and, true or false, detergent companies apparently do see the housewife as a woman concerned only with whether her wash is as white or whiter than her neighbor's.

There are three elements in detergents which have scientists worried:

Phosphates which speed the growth of algae in lakes and streams, cutting off oxygen for marine life and turning lakes into swamps.

Enzymes which doctors say have caused allergic reactions — skin and lung diseases — in workers in detergent plants and whose effect on housewives has never been tested.

Nitrilotiacetic acid (NTA) which some companies began using as a substitute for phosphates and which scientists fear may be even more of a pollutant.

In December, detergent companies voluntarily agreed to suspend the use of NTA pending further testing and at the beginning of February, Lever Brothers said it was discontinuing the use of enzymes. Union officials at a plant owned by Procter and Gamble, makers of Tide, the nation's largest selling detergent, also said enzymes were being taken out. Procter and Gamble, however, refused to comment.

With NTA banned at least temporarily and enzymes apparently on their way out as the darling of the detergent industry, that leaves phosphates. And housewives are pouring phosphate laden detergents into the nation's waters at the rate of five billion pounds a year.

Phosphates soften water and disperse dirt in clothes and were regarded as a major breakthrough when they were put on the market in the 1940s. The detergent industry, through its spokesman, the Soap and Detergent Association, maintains there is no proof that phosphates are killing lakes and streams and has vowed to fight any attempt to ban them.

The industry's second line of defence — offered in testimony before the U.S. house committee on government operations last April — is that instead of banning detergents, communities ought to build more sohpisticated sewage treatment plants to take phosphates out before washwater is discharged.

But such plants would cost billions and take many years to complete even if communities could find the money.

Meanwhile, a group of scientists at the University of Toronto are asking housewives to take the initiative in fighting phosphate pollution.

"The large detergent companies seem to regard the housewife as a mindless nit who has completely swallowed their whiter than white advertising and therefore doesn't care about detergent pollution," the university group said.

"We believe that there are a great number of concerned housewives who want to do their part to fight pollution but the basic information has until now been lacking."

fashion flashes

Look for suede shoes with cut-out toes and heels of the 40s, or laced oxfords of the '30s, the heels sturdy and medium.

Shawls of all kinds are making a comeback, many straight from the attic, others copying their embroidered silk in Spanish or Victorian styles.

Patchwork is still going strong, particularly in skirts for informal parties, with flounced hemlines—worn with a drawstring neck blouse.

New Image for Scouts

This is probably going to get me into a lot of hot water. I'm going to say it anyway.

I'm worried about the Scouts. It seems this is Boy Scout Week, and I've heard open line radio and documentary television shows about them.

When I was a kid I envied the Brownies and Guides. It was the uniform, you know — gets kids every time. And the boys always cut such a fine figure, standing resolute and determinedly at attention at school functions, and running messages at track meets. They were so clean cut.

That's part of the problem. They still look now what was fashionably clean-cut then. And it's not the fashion now. Instead it conjures up the negative image of the blond crew-cut Master Race children who marched on Nazi party field days.

I just saw a film of a jamboree, with the kids holding various flags. I must say it looked a bit scary, all those uniforms and flags and the kids only about 12 years old.

Then I heard on a radio open line show that the Scouts, or probably the older group, now have gun safety drill and target practice. What?! What happened to the helping-your neighbor image, or the assist-old-ladies-crossing-the-street? "Be prepared" takes on sinister overtones to me if the lad is standing with a rifle over his shoulder.

The kids on the radio show were explaining that this target practice was to give the Scouts "a healthy respect for guns and what they can do." Let me tell you, I've never once held a gun but I know what it can do. I can recall a tragic happening a few years ago when a young man who'd been in youth organizations, and who'd been dependable, resolute, and a general good guy, knew enough about guns to stand on top of a tower and kill randomly passersby below.

Obviously I'm not saying that indulging in target practice leads to becoming a sniper, but it certainly doesn't guarantee that you'll be safe from a desire to show off with a gun in a less spectacular but still harmful way.

I guess I'm a bit of a nut about guns. My feeling about them is — why take a chance? A car is a lethal tool in the wrong hands, and in an accident it can be quite dangerous even if you're a trained and skilled driver. But in today's world, unfortunately, most people find they can't do without a car. OK. The advantages outweigh the disadvantages.

But a gun? What's it good for? To me, it's an unnecessary risk. We just don't need guns any more. The more guns there are, the more people are going to get injured and killed. It's as simple as that. And I just can't see an armed Boy Scout. What's the point? The kids on the radio spoke of Scouting's attempts to be "relevant" to today's world. I hope tomorrow's world can show how to live with less gun play, not more. I realize I'm a nut about guns. But don't you think it's a topic that needs a radical position?

I'm all for the Scouts having a good time, don't get me wrong. I think of them as a service club for youngsters. They can dress up, have rituals, make a little money for charity, go on camping trips and generally have a good time. Fine. But let's leave guns out of it. What do you think?

Soybeans Form Base Of Economical Meal

By HILDA BEASTALL

Economic nutrition is what many of us are looking for today.

It is not the volume of food we consume that counts, but the quality; and we soon find that the higher the nutrition in a meal the less quantity we need. Unless we eat just to fill in time!

Soybeans are high on my list of low-cost nutrition. One cup of dry soybeans makes three cups of cooked beans. After cooking, they may be used in dozens of different tasty ways.

Being rated as excellent in high quality protein, a fair amount of fat, and low in carbohydrates, soybeans are a logical choice for everyday meals.

Low-cost meats such as oxtail, bacon ends and freshly ground beef, used in a 25 percent proportion with the soybeans will give abundant meat flavor combined with economy. The meat juices will all be retained in with the beans.

Crisp, quickly cooked carrots, celery, green beans, spinach broccoli or cabbage all go well with soybeans.

Canned tomatoes in winter, and vine-ripened local greenhouse tomatoes as soon as they become available, will be liked by many as toppings for soybean loaves and casseroles.

To reduce the time for cooking soybeans from 1½ hours to about 35 minutes, soak one cup of the dry beans overnight in salted water. In the morning, drain and put through a meat grinder with medium plate, or disc. Then boil with 2 to 3 cups of cold water, stirring to prevent sticking. Test at 30 minutes to find out if soft.

Meanwhile, put enough raw carrots and raw celery through the same grinder to make a cupful of each. Add a small onion and finish with some wholewheat bread a few days old — 1 thick or 2 thin slices.

When soybeans are cooked, mix in the other ingredients, add ½ teaspoon of salt and a little herb seasoning to your own taste.

Turn the mixture into a buttered 2-quart casserole or a glass loaf pan, and bake in 350 degree oven for about 40 minutes. Leftover vegetable juices or gravy poured over the top will add to the flavors, ensure moisture and prevent surface drying.

In place of grinding the uncooked soybeans, you can mash them with a fork after cooking in the regular way, but I find this not only harder to do but it doesn't cut down on the cooking time.

It will be useful though when dealing with a cup of cooked beans left over, and you want to make patties or sandwich fillers. Mash the beans while still warm; this is easier than when cold.

Totie Fields Flatters Her Figure

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Comedienne Totie Fields is no sylph, and as her ample figure is part of her personality, she intends to stay just the way she is. At the same time, she loves clothes, and is never seen on television in the same outfit twice.

"For the past five years, fashion was a horror!" The genial Totie looked suddenly serious, her beringed finger wagging. "All we saw were middle-aged women's thighs hanging out. I'm glad to see sensible lengths back again."

In other words, Totie Fields doesn't believe in fashions that don't flatter the individual, any more than she believes in making oneself over (if that's possible) to conform to a trend.

"Sure the short lengths look cute on slim kids, but who says everyone has to wear the same thing? They say you're supposed to do your own thing, so wear the length that really suits you."

Another trend that bugs Totie is that of discarding the bra. "Is there anything uglier than a bosom falling down to your stomach? Just because an under-developed kid can go without a bra, should a woman follow suit? Clothes just don't look right on most of us without the right foundation garments, and no fad can change that."

One aspect of current fashion, however, suits Totie Fields just fine. It's the rebellion against high prices. Although she's in a show business income bracket where looking at price tags is no longer necessary, the energetic comedienne simply doesn't believe in heavy spending for the sake of spending.

"Anybody who spends over $200 for a dress today is crazy! Styles are so great at every price that you can dress inexpensively and look sensational. I once put together a fashion show for friends and neighbors, a fun thing, in which every model was $50 or less."

Totie resents astronomical prices because she thinks they have come to represent status more than value. However, when price does mean value, she pays it willingly.

"My dresses for performing must be well made, of beautiful fabrics, and fitted so that I can forget them when I wear them. When money means quality, that's something else. Largely, though, there's been too much of paying for a name or putting a lot of jeweling on a dress just to keep the price up.'

Totie feels confident enough in her fashion taste to break a few rules. "They say a large woman should wear black and dark colors. But I don't find that you look that much smaller to overcome the dreary feeling that darks give you. I love color. My closets are a mass of colors. My husband calls it my peacock aviary."

The only thing Totie Fields wears in one color is her wigs. She's been wearing them for about seven years, since before wigs became so widespread a fashion. She has 15 of them, all in the same style as well as the same brunette color.

"With wigs I don't waste time in beauty parlors, and time is just as important to me as money. Actually, I save money, too, because a wig needs to go for care much less often than one's own hair. I've kept them in the same style because it suits me and it's become identified with me as my look."

Totie believes a hefty woman should wear her hair fairly short, smooth but soft enough to frame the face so its roundness is reduced.

(A Fashion League Feature)

Comedienne Totie Fields prefers brightly colored clothes to the dark colors recommended for ample figures like hers. Here she wears a gold and white brocade kaftan-styled gown with jewelled borders on the sleeves. She likes the convenience of wigs and has 15, all in the same short, softly rounded style. # Ghost of Glamorous Ruth Stirs at Holloway Prison

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — Beautiful Ruth Ellis had a wartime child by a French-Canadian soldier and later ended on the gallows. Now her body is in the news.

Blonde Ruth walked down a street of London's Hampstead one Easter Sunday evening with a Smith and Wesson revolver in her handbag.

That got her into the history books in a minor way as the last woman to be hanged in Britain, which has since abolished the death penalty. She went to the gallows July 13, 1955, and she is buried in the grounds of London's Holloway prison for women.

That's why her spectre has materialized.

A new Holloway is being built and the authorities want someone to claim her body and bury it elsewhere before the cemetery for executed murderers is pave over. No one has turned up.

But the appeal has brought back memories of glamorous Ruth, who used to pick up such oddments as a racehorse or £1,000 from admirers.

At the age of 17 during the war she had her baby from the — unidentified — Canadian serviceman. Then she went out to scare up fun, games and money.

She married a dentist but left him a year later after another child had been born. Then rich and casual men became her profession and her income.

"Life was lovely," she told friends after she had been convicted of shooting David Blakely, in advance of Britain's abolition of the death penalty.

Blakely, 25, was handsome. He had money, dressed well, was what is known in London as a clubman and was on the fringe of racing car drivers.

"He loved me then," Ruth wrote later. "He adored everything about me. I put him on a pedestal. I was completely faithful."

But her lover was not.

They lived together for a couple of years and then one night Blakely said he was going out to "visit friends."

Ruth went to the apartment of the friends he was supposed to be visiting and found no one there. Next day she followed him out and found him with an arm around a girl.

In one more day, she was standing in the shadow of a building outside the Magdala pub with her hand on the Smith and Wesson in the handbag.

As Blakely and a friend walked to a car from the pub, Ruth fired two shots into her paramour. After he fell, she stood over him and let him have four more.

"Now go and call the police," she advised Blakely's friend coldly.

There was a postscript to her execution. The estranged dentist husband, obsessed with the idea that he did not do enough to rehabilitate Ruth, hanged himself two years later.

This portrait of Ruth Ellis was taken shortly before she was sentenced to death for the murder of David Blakely. (CP photo.)

'We Can't Afford Marijuana,' Says Woman Narcotics Officer

EDMONTON (CP) — Detective Wally Bland of the Edmonton police drug squad was dubious at first about working with a woman, "but it's worked out well".

The woman is Ina Benson, one of the first women on a Canadian force's drug squad, who has been a narcotics officer for a year.

Policewoman Benson doesn't believe that marijuana should be legalized, since society "can't afford" another vice.

"What good have smoking and drinking done us?" she asked in an interview. "We can't afford marijuana.'

She and Detective Bland investigate complaints, tips and calls from parents who have discovered their children using drugs.

Mrs. Benson also spends a good deal of time in the courts on drug cases and often acts as a liaison with undercover narcotics agents.

She said more help should be available to drug users and "we should get to the younger kids sooner."

She feels that most drug users should be pitied.

"I feel sorry for them . . . I feel almost the way I feel for a person with a very serious mental condition. They say they can kick their habit, but most are only fooling themselves."

Most of the youngsters on drugs tried it because of curiosity, as part of a popularity contest or as rebellion against authority.

The type of youngster who goes on drugs was a follower, and "very few leaders are motivated to take drugs steadily."

"But the followers get a sense of belonging, joining their peer group on drugs. It's the one area where they can walk in and be welcomed with open arms, with no questions asked." Detective Bland said one of the main advantages of teaming with Mrs. Benson is having a woman to search possible female offenders and interview them.

"A woman is more versatile than a man at it," he said.

Class Counters Craft Fad

To be an accessories designer is to be perhaps the biggest gambler in all fashion, itself a field of gamblers. Right now, accessories are facing a new threat, the handcraft trend. If everyone is making her own jewelry, scarves, hats, etc., what happens to all the colorful junk stuff which has been loaded on during the past few seasons?

Designers see only one way to meet the threat of junk being home-made, and that is to return to quality. Class, not mass, will be the new cue in the accessories business.

Some designers see the hand craft fad as the logical end of the "pile it on" accessories era, believes that going through. They think that sales will soon fall off in multiple rings, bracelets, head scarves and belts. The only way to retrieve the loss is to offer fewer but better things at naturally higher prices.

Giorgio di Sant'Angelo, himself a leader in the pile-on accessories ara, believes that hand crafting is creating an appreciation for bettert things. When one has struggled to create even a simple piece of jewelry, one understands what quality materials and the maker's skill mean.

Is Fashion Almost Out Of Breath?

Fashion has be going at such a furious pace during the past decade that it may be losing its breath. At least, that's what they're thinking at Latinas, which is a leader in changing fashion.

Latinas thinks the customer has lost interest just because she feels pushed rather than stimulated. For fall, therefore, they've done a collection based on natural fabrics such as leather and knits for the dresses, various pants, and the handcrafted look in bags. They like rugged shoes with a good deal of the Thirties about them.

REPUBLICAN VOICES FEARS

'War Could Doom Nixon'

From AP-Reuter

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Jacob K. Javits has said out loud what some other Republican senators are saying privately: The Vietnam war could doom President Nixon next year as it did former president Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968.

"The ship of state may be headed for the same rocks which broke up and sank the presidency of President Johnson," Javits, a New York Republican, told a trade conference in Chicago Thursday night. He called for total withdrawal by mid-1972.

This view was given support when another Republican, Senator Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland, said in an interview that, unless Congress moves "to assist the president in ending the war, the whole political picture may become very fluid in the next 12 months."

Representative Paul McCloskey, California Republican, who has called for a national debate on whether President Nixon's actions in Laos and Cambodia warrant his impeachment, earlier mentioned the possibility of an anti-war challenge to Nixon unless the end of the war is in sight before the New Hampshire presidential primary March 14, 1972.

MAY RUN AGAIN

Nixon's four-year mandate ends next year with the presidential election scheduled in November, 1972. All indications so far are that Nixon will run again.

"It seems to me," Javits said in Chicago, "that the Nixon administration faces the same dilemma now which faced the Johnson administration in 1967."

"I am speaking here," he added, "of the 'winning' and 'losing' syndrome which spurred President Johnson on to those measures of military escalation and insensitivity to public opinion which brought his political career to an end."

Nixon sent a 65,000-word State of the World message to Congress Thursday, warning that the future in Indochina could be tough and the chances of a negotiated settlement were still slim. But his general appraisal of the situation and the prospects for a diminishing U.S. involvement appeared optimistic.

Although congressional reaction to the message was muted, opposition to developments in the war continued to stiffen.

Congressional critics are particularly concerned at Nixon's refusal to flatly rule out a possible strike by Saigon's forces into North Vietnam, and there is growing support for moves to make such a drive difficult through legislation banning U.S. support for it.

'Rose Wrote Execution Note'

MONTREAL (CP) — A handwritten message from the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec announcing the "execution" of Pierre Laporte was written by Paul Rose and several other messages contained his fingerprints, experts testified Thursday.

Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, a handwriting expert with the Quebec medico-legal institute, testified at Rose's trial for the kidnap-killing of Mr. Laporte that the accused wrote the note which announced the "execution" of the Quebec labor minister.

He said the message was one of three in Rose's handwriting received from the FLQ, the terrorist group which claimed responsibility for the Oct. 10 kidnapping of Mr. Laporte and his death a week later.

Sgt. Lloyd Dunham of the RCMP in Ottawa said he detected fingerprints of the accused on FLQ messages delivered Oct. 11, 12, 13 and 27 and identified Mr. Laporte's fingerprints on two of them.

Rose, 27, is charged with his brother Jacques, 23, Bernard Lortie, 19, and Francis Simard, 23, in the abduction and killing of the cabinet minister.

Dr. Roussel also identified Simard as the writer of an FLQ message found Oct. 21 explaining how Mr. Laporte suffered three deep gashes from broken glass in an attempt to escape Oct. 17.

Police received a total of eight messages in October purporting to be from the Laporte kidnappers. Four were handwritten or printed in black capital letters and the other four were typewritten.

Earlier at the trial, another RCMP expert told the Court of Queen's Bench the four typewritten messages were typed on the same machine.

The type face also matched the typing on scraps of paper found in a bungalow in suburban St. Hubert where police say the labor minister was held for a week by his captors.

All four accused made brief appearances in the courtroom Thursday for identification purposes.

U.S. Scientists Back Alaska Pipeline Idea

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The firm proposing a pipeline to bring Alaska oil from the Arctic to market used a team of scientists to defend the billion-dollar project at an interior department hearing.

Aleyeska Pipeline Service Co. said in a second day of hearings Thursday the pipeline from the North Slope to Valdez will be acceptable from biological, botanical, and engineering standpoints.

Opponents avoided attacking Aleyeska's specifics head-on and instead concentrated on the general social and cultural impact they said the pipeline would have on Alaska. Much of the testimony, seemingly resigned to the fact a permit for the project will be issued, pleaded for broader studies by the interior department.

Opponents of the pipeline, which would run 800 miles from the North Slope to the ice-free port of Valdez, said an accident in the harbor or in coastal sea lanes would have disastrous effects.

Capt. Emery Winkler, fleet captain of Atlantic Richfield Co., one of Aleyeska's seven member firms, said separate routes will be set aside for inbound and outbound traffic 40 miles west of the entrance to Prince William Sound.

"The tankers will be under constant traffic control and their pilots equipped with ship to ship communication," he said.

"The magnitude of this effort, with an associated expenditure of over $35 million, must be unprecedented in any previous project undertaken by private industry," said David Henderson, Alaska manager for Aleyeska.

"We are certain that the construction of a safe pipeline is within our present technological competence," he said.

Conservationists were less certain.

"I don't believe as a state Alaska is able to cope with the social, environmental and economic changes the pipeline will entail," said Art Davidson, a spokesman for Friends of the Earth.

Damage to the environment from the pipeline will be less than that from farming the land or that resulting from lightning-caused forest fires, said Harold Peyton, an Arctic engineering consultant for Aleyeska.

Robert Darrath, another Aleyeska consultant, said seismic studies have shown the proposed route to be the most favorable for minimizing the effect of earthquakes. He said the pipeline would cross only one known major fault and remote control valves would be installed at either side of the fault.

GAS STATION SCENE OF REVERSE ROBBERY

BALTIMORE (UP) — Baltimore police, who investigate one or two robberies of gas station attendants almost every night, were faced with the reverse situation recently.

George Evans, 30, reported he stopped at a station to buy some gas. When he went inside to pay for it, the attendant grabbed him and tried to wrestle his money from him. Evans saved his cash, but the attendant grabbed Evans's $250 ring and fled in his car.

The car was found a few blocks away, police later arrested the night attendant, Carlin R. Brown, Jr., 33, on assault and robbery charges.

GOVERNMENT STUDIES GUARANTEED INCOME

TORONTO (CP) — A guaranteed annual income plan may be needed in the long run to combat the "distinct possibility" of growing social unrest and unemployment, Health Minister John Munro said Thursday night.

In a speech read to the Canadian Pension Conference by MP Alastair Gillespie, Liberal member for Toronto-Etobicoke, the health minister said the government has not rejected the concept of a guaranteed annual income although Canada can't afford the $2 billion to $2.6 billion a year it would cost.

"But in shelving the prospect for a guaranteed income for the time being we have hardly rejected it forever and a day," he said. "In the long run, its advantages, after all, are not to be scoffed at."

The minister said employment and inflation are inexorably linked to policies on income security.

He said increasing automation in the service industries may widen the gap "between the potential labor force and the actual labor force participation."

"But tradition is beginning to shatter," he said. "We are now watching the progress of manpower obsolescence slide up the income scale.

Mr. Munro said television constantly depicts the middle class family with two cars living in the suburbs which means "a low-income family now lives two lives—their own and that which they share vicariously through the images they glimpse on the living-room screen."

If the gap between these two lives is not closed, "then heightened turmoil is a distinct possibility in this country."

MURDERER RECAPTURED

TERRACE (CP) — Fugitive convicted murderer Arthur James Kendall was captured here Thursday, RCMP reported.

He was returned to custody without incident, police said, describing Kendall as "very co-operative."

Kendall was given a one-day leave of absence from the Joyceville institution near Kingston, Ont., Feb. 13 and did not return.

He was serving a life sentence following his conviction for murder in 1961 in the death of his wife nine years before.

THERE'S SNOW IN WIND FOR THE NEXT FEW DAYS

Blustery weather with a risk of snow flurries is in store for Greater Victoria over the next few days, following a cold, windy system which dropped an inch of snow overnight on Goldstream and View Royal.

Today's winds of 30 miles per hour, with gusts to 50 in exposed areas, were expected to drop to 25 from the west tonight. The wind will ease off over the weekend, but temperatures in the 30s will prevail.

High winds overnight did no damage to B.C. Hydro lines here, after winds caused widespread power failures on the mainland.

Winds were gusting to 70 in the Vancouver area Thursday, where fallen trees and broken branches knocked out several Hydro circuits for six hours. Hundreds of homes and businesses were without electricity in North Vancouver and Coquitlam.

The Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corp. undersea cable to Hawaii, serving Australia and Japan, was severed or damaged when the high winds caused a ship's anchor to drag. A company spokesman said repairs would not be completed until Sunday or Monday.

FERRIES LATE

A communications pool arrangement permitted the Canada-Hawaii link to be restored after two hours.

B.C. Ferries ran about an hour late between the island and the mainland, but CP Ships said its island ferry service was not affected.

Air West Airlines said some flights were cancelled in the Victoria - Vancouver area Vancouver-Nanaimo harbor services. Normal flight schedules are maintained by CP Air and Air Canada.

Winds eased on the mainland today.

Baird Raps Long Cruise

Ald. Robert Baird told city council Thursday that Ald. Harold Olafson would not have been re-elected in December if voters had known Olafson was to take a six-week Caribbean cruise.

"I am very, very critical of the fact that one alderman is away," Baird said.

"A seat on council is far more important than a Caribbean cruise."

He said it was "most unfair" to the council that Olafson, chairman of the community planning committee should be away for such a long time.

"If this was known when he ran for election, he would not be elected."

Ald. Ove Witt defended Olafson, saying there are eight other members of council that are "capable of doing the city's business."

Mayor Courtney Haddock also defended Olafson's absence, saying it was the only time of year Olafson was able to get away.

VICTORIA PINTOS JOIN JUNIOR BASEBALL LOOP

Victoria Pintos were among four new teams admitted to the Pacific Coast Junior Baseball League at the loop's annual general meeting.

Other neophyte clubs, which swell the league roster to seven teams, are Bellingham Steelers, Port Coquitlam and Vancouver Capa. Pintos will operate out of Royal Athletic Park.

Charlie Leonard of Victoria, newly-elected president of the PCJBL, said the teams are mostly made up of "kids who have graduated out of the Connie Mack League."

Official opening of the 1970 season has been scheduled for May 10 and each club will play 36 league games. Maximum age for players is 21 years.

Holdover teams are the defending champion North Shore Villas, Vancouver Wall-Redekop and New Westminster.

Belmont Girls Take First Playoff Step

Belmont moved one step closer to a berth in the Vancouver Island high school girls' basketball tournament by downing Mount View 26-17 Thursday night.

Belmont, Mount View and St. Ann's Academy finished in a three-way tie for fourth place in the Inter-High School Girls' League and were forced to stage playoffs for the final Victoria berth in the tourney at Campbell River.

The top three finishers already set for the trip are defending provincial champion Claremont, Victoria and Oak Bay.

St. Ann's, which received a bye in the playoff, now meets Belmont.

Cathy Auburn sank 12 points to lead Belmont in a second-half rally which erased an 11-4 deficit at the intermission. Cathy Lovelace led Mount View with 10 points.

1,300 DELEGATES AT CONVENTION

Parti Quebecois 'House-Clean'

By DON MacPHERSON

QUEBEC (CP) — The separatist Parti Quebecois meets here today for a house-cleaning of its program and perhaps some of its 80,000 members.

About 1,300 delegates to the PQ's three-day third annual convention will debate the party's role in Quebec politics in the coming years.

They may also be asked to carry out what party leader Rene Levesque calls "a big house-cleaning" of undesirable elements in the party.

A number of prominent party members have said recently that the PQ has been infiltrated in high places by at least one "federalist agent."

The party's national council is to disclose at the convention the findings of an investigation into the allegations.

WANTS A SHOWDOWN

In addition, Mr. Levesque says he wants a showdown with "pseudo-leftist" subversives and "double agents in the pay of the state" who he says have infiltrated the party.

"Within the party there are groups that bother me," Mr. Levesque, who founded the party in 1968 and has been its leader since, said in a recent interview in the separatist periodical Point de Mire.

"After three years of existence, it's time to carry out a big house-cleaning."

Mr. Levesque said he wants a showdown between the undesirable elements and the rest of the PQ over the party's program.

"I hope that those who are not in agreement will have the courage to fold their cards."

"If they are as marginal as I think they are, I hope that once they are thoroughly trounced, thoroughly beaten, that they'll go elsewhere, if they absolutely don't want to throw in with us."

SCHOOLS AN ISSUE

One of the most significant resolutions up for debate calls for the abolition of publicly-financed English-language schools in Quebec.

The issue of English-language education has been a controversial one within the PQ since its founding in 1968 as a union of three separatist political parties.

Mr. Levesque's leadership comes up for review at the convention, but he is expected to win a fourth straight one-year term as party president.

His only opponent is Andre Larocque, 34, head of the PQ's legislative staff and a former political science professor at the University of Montreal.

Freedom Of Choice 'To Shrink'

OTTAWA (CP) — The chairman of the Canadian Consumer Council said Wednesday the freedom of choice for business will progressively shrink in the face an expanding consumer activity.

Dr. S. R. Leighton, director of the Banff School of Fine Arts school of business, was speaking at the opening of the Ottawa chapter of the American Marketing Association.

Dr. Leighton, as well as being CCC chairman, is the incoming president of the AMA.

He said he sees no easy answers to the growing hostility between business and the consumer, but feels that inherent distrust between the two factions is the greatest obstacle to constructive dealings between the two.

He said that while consumerism was expanding to include almost all matters dealing with the quality of life, marketing also was in transition and was expanding its interests from that of business to include the arts, religion and public service.

Enticers Jailed

ROME (AP) — A Rome judge has convicted several girls of "enticement" for wearing mini-skirts so short their panties showed. Marisa Conti, 20, became the latest victim of an article in a 12-year-old law originally intended as a weapon against prostitution. Miss Conti and the others were sentenced to five days in jail.

Bobbies' Raise Angers Striking Workers

LONDON (AP) — A big pay raise for 100,000 British policemen today fanned the grievances of postmen and automobile workers staging two long and crippling country-wide strikes.

The bobbies won increases averaging 16½ per cent, well above the maximum 10 per cent level which the Conservative government holds necessary to curb inflation.

Cries of outrage came from leaders of the striking postal and Ford workers, who also want increases exceeding the officially-accepted mark.

Government sources defended the police raise, however, as "a special case" because the force is seriously undermanned and needs to attract recruits.

Retroactive to last September, the police award will add more than £22 million ($55 million) to the force's annual wage bill of £140 million.

The new scales lift the minimum starting rate for a constable to £1,023 from £900 a year.

SAYS STAND JUSTIFIED

Tom Jackson, leader of more than 200,000 postal workers now in the sixth week of their walkout, said: "These pay increases for the police more than justify the stand we are taking. They make the post office attitude even more inexplicable."

Jackson's union is demanding raises of 13 per cent on weekly wage ranging from £15 to £27. The post office, a publicly financed outfit like the police force, offers nine per cent tied to a promise of higher productivity.

Top-level efforts have repeatedly failed to settle the strike, which has halted mail deliveries throughout Britain and cost the post office £25 million in lost revenue thus far.

The police raise was described as "baffling" by Sid Harraway, a leader of the Ford strike which has already cost about £40 million in lost production.

The workers at Ford's 21 strike-bound factories are demanding raises of between £12 and £15. Their weekly average is £30.

The company has offered £2, calling the strikers' demand "commercial suicide."

Royal Accident

LONDON (Reuter) — A horse-drawn carriage belonging to the Queen overturned during a training run. Riding in it were the Queen's head coachman Arthur Showell and a Crown equerry, Col. John Miller. They were taken to a hospital with cuts and bruises.

No Decision Reached

WINNIPEG (CP) — A city council committee Thursday tackled the question of whether welfare recipients should be allowed to drive their own cars, but failed to reach a decision on the long-standing issue.

Last September a city welfare recipient lodged a successful appeal with a provincial authority to regain his car registration plates, but the practice of requiring an applicant to surrender his plates has continued.

$50M For Schools

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — The Alberta government will allocate $50 million for construction of elementary and secondary schools, Robert Clark, education minister, said Thursday.

There will be "no cutbacks" in construction this year," Clark told the Southeastern Teachers' Association annual convention.

The government also "will look seriously at renovating and upgrading rural schools."

Teachers currently on pension will receive a 2 to 3 per cent increase, in line with federal government policy, he said.

The retirement age for teachers will be lowered to 60 from 65 over a period of five years.

Farmers Revolt

Winnipeg (CP) — Manitoba farmers will refuse to pay $20 million in municipal property taxes unless the system for financing education is changed, Walter Miller, vice-president of the National Farmers Union, said Thursday.

Speaking to reporters following a meeting with Agriculture Minister Sam Uskiw and Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley, Miller said "the mood is one of revolution" among the farmers.

'Give It Back'

EDMONTON (CP) — If railways don't want to provide service let them give back all the free real estate they received in the last century, Mayor Ivor Dent said Thursday.

Mayor Dent said in an interview that there is a place for train service in Canada and that the railways have an obligation to provide it.

Local 1233 of the United Transportation Union has asked the mayor to oppose pooling of main-line passenger service by Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Railway.

'UNFAIR TO DRAW CONCLUSIONS'

Reaction Mixed to Fee Probe

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian Medical Associations' proposed investigation of doctors' incomes across Canada drew mixed reaction from the CMA's provincial counterparts and health officials Thursday.

Many said it was unfair to draw conclusions based on gross incomes reported by health insurance commissions because doctors, particularly specialists, have high operating expenses. Others suggested the survey was a timely move.

The investigation, to be conducted by the CMA's council on medical economics, is outlined in the current Canadian Medical Association Journal. The group will meet in Ottawa March 18-19 to work out details of the cross-Canada investigation.

It says the study will attempt to determine why there are discrepancies among doctors' incomes and why some of them are "taking financial advantage of medical care insurance programs."

Dr. E. H. Baergen, executive director of the Saskatchewan Medical Association, said in Saskatoon he was surprised at the proposed investigation.

Fee schedules and doctors' incomes are a provincial responsibility, he said, adding that differences in manpower among specialists often mean that some are in short supply and must work long hours.

"We've been looking at this ourselves for a couple of years," he said. "Whenever we are revising fee schedules we have a close look."

Dr. Baergen said it is unfair to draw conclusions based on gross incomes. Radiologists, he added, are often shown with high gross incomes but also have high overhead, often amounting to about 70 per cent of their income.

Dr. Gleann Sawyer, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, said in Toronto the survey is a good idea but he questioned the gross-income criterion as being an unfair gauge.

Dr. James F. Edward, general practitioner and surgeon in Winnipeg, said:

"In Manitoba, we are limited with our fee schedule. We can regulate our earnings by how hard we want to work. Some ambitious individuals can make a nice high income, but this takes a toll because they exhaust themselves and the quality of their work deteriorates.

"The CMA may feel it is doing a justifiable bit of research with this investigation, but I don't think they have much to accomplish from it in Manitoba."

Dr. C. R. Giles, assistant secretary of the Alberta Medical Association, said the Alberta group "has already begun an investigation into disparities in doctors' incomes in this province."

"We are not proposing equalization of incomes, but levelling-out is necessary," he said.

Dr. Giles said the Alberta group is also concerned because some sections of the medical profession seem to be getting low incomes.

SKUNKS INVADE N.W. CALGARY

CALGARY (CP)—Northwest Calgary is being invaded by skunks.

In a letter to the city Thursday, the North Haven Community Association asked for help.

"We in North Haven feel we have many attractions as a community," said T. C. Donnelly, association president.

He said one reason for the "sudden popularity" of the area with skunks is that increased building has caused them to look for new homes.

HOLLYWOOD — The Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences announced today that singer-actor Frank Sinatra and Swedish director Ingmar Bergman will receive two of the film industry's most honored awards. Sinatra, an Oscar winner for his supporting role in the 1953 film From Here to Eternity, was voted the Jean Hershlt Humanitarian Award by the academy's board of governors. The academy said Bergman will receive the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award, the highest honor the industry can give to a film maker for "creative producers whose records reflect a consistent high quality of motion picture production."

LONDON — Britain's top medical court is putting a family doctor on trial for telling the parents of a 16-year-old schoolgirl that she secretly took birth control pills. In Britain's first such case, Dr. Robert Browne, 64-year-old father of three teenagers, is accused of "serious professional misconduct" for notifying the parents of the unmarried girl without her permission. The girl is listed as "Miss X" in the indictment prepared by the General Medical Council, which has the power to remove Browne from the medical register if it finds him guilty. A public hearing is scheduled March 8.

LONDON — Despite inflation and heavy wage claims from unions across the country, at least one British worker is not going to get a pay raise this year. The worker, a parliamentary exchange revealed Thursday, is the Queen. Labor MP William Hamilton, a persistent critic of royal subsidies, asked Prime Minister Heath: "Have you had any further representations from the inhabitants of the west end of the mall (Buckingham Palace) about increasing hardship there?" "Funds available to the Queen from other sources, although not inexhaustible, will suffice for some time to come yet," Heath replied.

WASHINGTON — Exotic dancer Susan Desaiguero told police Thursday night someone stole her costume of hot pink feathers, matching string and pasties.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Actor James Stewart has been named Man of the Year by the Hasty Pudding Club of Harvard. The award was announced Thursday by the theatrical club, which in past years has honored Bob Hope, Paul Newman, Bill Cosby and Robert Redford. Winner of the Woman of the Year award announced earlier in the week was actress Carol Channing.

Canadians Interested In Book Co.

TORONTO (CP) —A group of at least three Canadian companies may be interested in buying McClelland and Stewart Ltd., one of Canada's largest publishing houses, a spokesman said Thursday.

Phillip Anderson, president of AHED Music Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, said representatives of the group are to meet today with Jack McClelland, chairman of the Toronto-based publishing house.

AHED is a public company formerly known as Arc Home Entertainment Diversified Ltd. Involved with AHED in the discussions with Mr. McClelland are F. R. Budge Crawley of Crawley Films Ltd., Ottawa, and David Dry of Donald M. Lyons and Associates Ltd., Toronto, a firm of underwriters.

'Socialist Balderdash'

REGINA (CP) — A Liberal member of the Saskatchewan legislature said Thursday he is not opposed to sale of companies like Home Oil to United States buyers if Canadian buyers cannot be found.

"These foreign companies have to comply with Canadian law and if they are good corporate citizens, I fail to understand why we would interfere with such investors," Ian MacDougall (L—Souris-Estevan) said during throne speech debate in the legislature.

He said he felt much of the current talk about economic nationalism is "just so much socialist balderdash."

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.
PSALM 23.

7:00, Channel 12: Bail Out at 43,000 (Continued).

8:00, Channel 8: Ransom for a Dead Man (TV crime drama), Lee Grant, Peter Falk. Story about a woman lawyer who murders her husband.

9:00, Channels 7 and 12: A Step Out of Line (TV drama), Peter Falk, Jo Ann Pflug. The plot centres on three average men who are down on their luck.

9:00, Channel 13: School for Husbands (British; 1937 comedy), Rex Harrison, Diana Churchill. Sophisticated comedy of marital mix-ups.

11:00, Channel 11: A Man Alone (1955 western), Ray Milland, Mary Murphy. Different western has plenty of suspense, good direction by Milland.

11:05, Channel 12: Story of Three Lovers (1953 drama), James Mason, Moira Shearer. A very entertaining film for romantics.

11:50, Channel 2: The Apartment (1960 comedy), Jack Lemmon, Shirley MacLaine. Billy Wilder's bitterly funny view of modern urban morality, and the lack of it, won the Oscar as the best film of its year.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

More and more often recently in the many medical journals that come to my office, I have read about a remarkable group of drugs called prostaglandins. Recently, some 400 scientists came from five countries to meet in New York to review the rapidly proliferating research on these new chemicals.

A few crystals of the prostaglandins were first isolated in 1959, by a Swedish scientist, Suane Bergstrom. These potent chemicals are found in many tissues of the body and are in highest concentration in semen. So far, 16 naturally occurring prostaglandins have been identified and synthesized by Professor Elias J. Corey's team at Harvard, and by scientists of the Upjohn Corporation. A new source — in some marine invertebrate creature — was discovered last year.

The prostaglandins are expected to rival the steroid, or cortisone-like, drugs in medical importance and promise to be effective in the prevention and treatment of high blood pressure, gastric ulcers, asthma, arthritis, nasal congestion, male infertility, and heart and kidney disease. They have veen found to be helpful also in treating dysmenorrhea (menstrual disorders). They can prevent conception, and they can initiate childbirth. They can induce abortion with the fewest side effects of any measure now known.

Prostaglandins acting on the kidney appear to regulate the kidneys' influence on high blood pressure. The prostaglandins can mimic or inhibit practically every hormone, and they serve as a means of keeping the various organs working together properly. As yet, the chemicals are being studied and used by researchers.

'CONTEMPT OF PARLIAMENT' CHARGED

Opposition Roasts Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — All three opposition parties today accused Prime Minister Trudeau of contempt of Parliament.

He denied the accusation, saying that he had actually been defending Parliament during the incident which gave rise to the opposition charge.

At the start of today's Commons sitting, the House leaders of the three opposition parties took turns lambasting the prime minister for his remarks Thursday to a group of university students from Montreal and Quebec City.

Mr. Trudeau said he was surprised that the opposition would accuse him of contempt without being aware of the complete circumstances and said they were wasting the time of the Commons by raising the matter as an alleged breach of parliamentary privilege.

The prime minister said the students could not get over "how stupid" the opposition was in the use of the daily question period. He had defended the period as extraordinary important but had agreed the opposition did not use it very intelligently.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, led off by quoting Mr. Trudeau as telling the students that the opposition was blocking the passage of important legislation and was stopping the government from doing anything.

BLASTED BY BALDWIN

He described Mr. Trudeau's remarks as immoderate, intemperate, improper, untrue, scurrilous, slanderous, distortioned, half-truths and perversion of facts.

Mr. Baldwin said the prime minister has unfounded delusions of grandeur. Mr. Trudeau's conduct, whether the result of bad advice or bad temper, was not conducive to the passage of legislation.

Stanley Knowles, New Democrat House leader, said Mr. Trudeau's "contempt and derision" destroy good will among the parties and slow down Parliament's work.

He said Mr. Trudeau does not understand Parliament. He had not been in the Commons long enough to know what real obstruction was. In any case, the rules had been fashioned by the Liberals themselves.

Mr. Knowles said there had been agreement only in the last few days among the four House leaders that three bills would be passed without further debate.

MAKES IT TOUGH

But is was difficult to make such agreements when Mr. Trudeau made such remarks as he had outside the Commons.

Andre Fortin, Creditiste House leader, said Mr. Trudeau had made an insidious attack on the opposition.

He said the prime minister attacked not only the attitude of the opposition, which was perfectly in order, but had said the role of the opposition is useless.

Mr. Fortin said Mr. Trudeau is looking for a scapegoat for his government's failures and is trying to blame these failures on the opposition. The prime minister was denigrating Parliament and trying to turn it into a monthly-paid rubber stamp.

Parliament was at the service of all Canadians, not just the prime minister.

Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Knowles were heckled by Liberal backbenchers. Mr. Trudeau was interrupted by opposition MPs until Speaker Lucien Lamoureux appealed for order—and got it.

Mr. Trudeau said he stands by the substance of what he said in a short chat with the students.

TRUDEAU
. . . taken to task

He said he was met by a slight amount of student hostility and received laughs of derision when he talked about Parliament.

The students' first question had been about the Commons questions period. They had found the opposition "stupid" in its use of the period but he had defended this part of Commons procedure as extremely important.

Mr. Trudeau said his whole purpose had been to defend Parliament and its excellence although he could understand why the students felt it was falling into decadence.

Mr. Trudeau said he had not managed to remove the prejudice of the students in the brief talk.

He said the opposition had missed the beginning and the context of his exchange with the students.

The Speaker said he hoped the statements had cleared the air because Parliament could function only with good will among all MPs.

History, Religion Govern Israeli Land Strategy

By MARTIN ZUCKER

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's reasons for refusing to withdraw to its pre-war boundaries are mostly strategic, but history and religion also are involved.

Before the 1967 war, Israel's area totalled 8,017 square miles.

Jordanian artillery batteries were perched on the Samarian hills to the east, in some places only 10 miles from the Mediterranean beaches between Tel Aviv and Haifa.

On the southwest, the finger of the Egyptian-controlled Gaza Strip poked 30 miles into the Israeli belly. Gaza was the favorite jumping-off place for guerrilla forays into Israel.

Far to the south, at the tip of Egypt's triangular Sinai Peninsula, Sharm el Sheikh controlled the Tiran Strait, between the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba, which led to Israel's only southern port, Elath. The Egyptians twice imposed blockades which did much to trigger the Sinai campaign in 1956 and the 1967 war.

To the northeast, Syrian gunners sat on the Golan Heights overlooking the biblical Sea of Galilee and regularly fired on Israeli farm settlements below.

ELIMINATED PROBLEM

In the six-day war, the Israelis eliminated these problems, capturing the Samarian and Judean hills of Jordan, the Gaza Strip, all of the Sinai Desert up to the Suez canal and including Sharm el Sheikh, and the Golan Heights.

The Israeli army also took east Jerusalem, held by the Jordanians for 20 years, and announced that the ancient capital of Israel had been reunited forever.

The small but powerful Jewish forces had taken 26,476 square miles—territory more than three times as large as Israel itself.

The Israelis say that if given peace—after 22 years of belligerency and three wars with the Arabs—they would give back most of the captured territory. But withdrawal would be only to new "agreed, secure, recognized and defensible borders," they insist.

Although no maps have been announced officially by the Jerusalem government, enough has been said by Israeli leaders to get a fair picture of what they want to keep.

They seem willing to give back to Egypt much of the arid, 23,622-square-mile Sinai, but with some notable exceptions.

The Israelis have said they would not return the crowded, 140-square-mile Gaza Strip. It has a predominantly Palestinian population of 400,000 Arabs.

CAN PROTECT SHIPPING

The Israelis also insist on retaining Sharm el Sheikh and a narrow strip of the Aqaba coast—territorial continuity is the term they use—between Sharm and Elath. Their troops there can protect Israeli shipping through the gulf.

As far as the Golan Heights is concerned, most Israelis agree that this largely unpopulated plateau with its strategic command of Israeli settlements should never revert to the Syrians.

From the moment Jordan forces were ousted in 1967 from the eastern half of Jerusalem, Israel has maintained that the holy city never would be split again.

It was the first time since the destruction of the Jewish Temple by the Romans that the Jews controlled all of Jerusalem. The Wailing Wall, the holiest shrine of Judaism, once again was accessible to worshippers. The Jordanians had refused Jews permission to visit the wall, in breach of the 1949 armistice.

New Arrest Bill 'Just Another Legal Loophole'

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Police made it clear Thursday they consider Justice Minister John Turner's arrest reform bill as just another big legal loophole for criminals.

In briefs to the Commons justice committee, police also expressed fear that the proposed law may open them to lawsuits.

The 29,000-member Canadian Police Association included in its brief a cartoon showing a United States policeman telling his sergeant:

"I just made an arrest and I'd like to call my lawyer."

The CPA insisted this scene "may someday become a Canadian reality" under the proposed law. But MPs assured them the prospect is unlikely.

The association said the arrest bill is another example of over-balancing the rights of the individual against those of society.

"If it was stupid to hang people in 1900 for stealing an animal, the opposite extreme has been reached now," Guy Marcil, president of the Montreal Policemen's Brotherhood, said.

"This bill will protect the criminal. What we are looking for is an intelligent balance."

The CPA also touched on capital punishment, saying that its membership is vitally concerned at federal policy in commuting death sentences.

UPSET BY SENTENCES

Police also were upset by court sentences it termed lenient and thoughtless paroles. Mr. Marcil said 10 gun-fights in Montreal last year involved parolees "with records as long as your arm."

Although the committee lent an attentive ear, it wasn't entirely sympathetic.

"Why is it that every time the Criminal Code is amended, police object?" asked Harold Stafford (L—Elgin), an experienced trial lawyer.

"You're confusing us with the chiefs of police," replied Syd Brown of Toronto, CPA president. "The chiefs are here continuously, we are the Indians."

The main objection was to a clause that would allow a constable to issue an appearance notice at the time of arrest. This would avert a trip to the police station—normal even for minor offences.

The constable would only take the suspect to the station when he had "reasonable and probable grounds" to believe a further offence might be committed, or the suspect might not appear in court. Failure to establish identity clearly also would be a factor.

PICKING ON THE BIG BOYS

TEL AVIV (UPI) — A three-ton concrete mixer ran into an El Al jetliner Thursday an hour before the Boeing 707 was to take off from Lyyda International Airport for Zurich and Frankfurt.

Airport officials said no one was hurt in the accident but "considerable damage" was caused to the airliner. It was parked on the tarmac at the time.

Old Daily Slumps

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — One of Europe's oldest daily newspapers, Berlingske Aftenavis, first published here 222 years ago, will in the future only appear once a week because of slumping circulation, the publishers announced.

Plants That Form Backgrounds

By HILDA BEASTALL

Plants without brilliant flowers are necessary to our scheme of things. They form backgrounds for color, and they afford rest periods for the eyes, so wearied by too much color and speed. In themselves they have beauty of line, leaf form or of general habit.

Hilda

Three plants to grow as backgrounds for summer annuals are dracaena indivisa which we see every year as a tall grassy plant in the city's flower tubs on the Causeway; Grevillea robusta the Australian Silk Oak, a fern-leaved small tree for patio tubs with annuals and later as a house plant; and Cyperus alternifolius, Umbrella-plant, an odd looking plant you can stand in small pools for the summer and take in as a pot-plant for winter.

All these can be grown from seed sown now; all three will last several years as potted plants, growing larger each year. Only the Cyperus will have flowers in this latitude and they will be greenish and tiny, but interesting.

Dracaena seed is sometimes slow to germinate, often taking three or four weeks at 75 deg. F. soil temperature.

Be satisfied if you get three or four seeds germinating from a regular (small) packet; they are a bit erratic since all come from warmer climates than ours and are accustomed to different conditions.

Once the seed germinates, the main need is for cooler air and strong daylight, and careful watering.

The Cyperus alternifolia will be more tolerant of overwatering than the other two since it is a sedgeplant; none will need any fertilizer at any stage, for normally they are big growers. As seedlings are put into their first pots (two and a half-inch diameter) use a gravelly compost, no manure, as a safeguard against overwatering.

As growth is made during April and May, repotting in four inch sizes will be needed. Do this as soon as roots can be seen emerging from the drainage hole.

At this stage, the little plants respond with stronger growth if they are firmly potted — that is, the soil is closely settled around the roots by tapping the pot sharply on the bench, and firmed gently on the surface with the thumbs. A less finely screened soil is used too.

Always remember that these three ornamental plants do not require coddling. Fredom from frost and freedom from fertilizers are important points, and sunlight after the tiny seedling stage, is always beneficial.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Today's deal, which occurred in a recent rubber-bridge game in Stockholm, Sweden, is presented as a bridge mystery. You are informed that our South declarer slipped in his play of a game contract. It is your task to bring South's error to light.

It should be mentioned that your job is a difficult one, for South's error is not a simple one to find. Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: Two of ♡.

West's deuce of hearts opening lead was captured by South's 10, after which the ace of diamonds was laid down. This was followed by the diamond eight, West discarding a heart as South won the trick with dummy's king. Next came the queen of diamonds, and a fourth diamond, East's jack winning.

East now made a nice shift to the 10 of spades, South following with his queen. Upon winning the trick with the ace, West returned the spade six to East's king. East then played his remaining spade, and West cashed two more spade tricks, to hand South a one-trick set. What was declarer's mistake?

In declarer's defence, it should be pointed out that he got a bad break when the adversely held diamonds were divided 4-1. Had the normal 3-2 break existed, he would have made 11 tricks as he played it. But, actually, his defeat was due to his desire to win four heart tricks. Had he concentrated on winning five diamond tricks instead he would have fulfilled his contract.

The opening lead should have been captured by dummy's king of hearts. A low diamond would then have been led, South's eight-spot being inserted. When this would have lost to West's singleton 10, South would have had his needed five diamonds (plus three hearts and a club).

Assuming that West then led the six of spades (his best return), East would have captured the trick with the king. East would return the 10 of spades, which South would cover with the queen, West's ace winning. South's remaining 9-4 of spades would now prevent West from cashing more than his jack of spades.

But, evidently, the lure of an overtrick was too much for South to overcome.

Job Program Started For Students

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Social Credit government will launch a series of capital development projects expected to cost $6.4 million and provide 2,500 summer jobs.

Premier Harry Strom told the legislature Thursday that one of the projects will be establishment of an Alberta Ecology Corps which will cost $2 million and employ 1,000 students.

The corps would be involved in tree planting improvements to provincial parks and in municipal improvement programs, said the premier. It also would take part in camp construction and development of special youth programs combined with outdoor leadership programs for youth and recreation programs for the handicapped and mentally retarded.

Other projects include major improvements to Alberta forest service facilities and development of existing provincial parks, roadside brush-clearing and improvements, construction of four new senior citizens homes at $1.8 million; a $280,000 juvenile detention centre at Grande Prairie and a $1.2 million parking structure at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology in Calgary.

Totalled, the projects will create 118,000 man-days of work, said the premier.

B.C. TEL PROFITS NEAR RECORD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Near-record earnings of $19.05 million were reported for 1970 by British Columbia Telephone Co. in its annual report to shareholders released today.

The net earnings were $143,000 below the record 1969 earnings of $19.195 million.

The earning figures were made public earlier this month when the company made application to the Canadian Transport Commission for rate increases ranging as high as 15 per cent.

Earnings per share in 1970 dropped to $5.10, down 18 cents from the 1969 level, due in part to a small decline in earnings and in part to an increase in outstanding shares to 2,877,000 from 2,805,000.

The report said about $117 million will be required for capital expansion in 1971 and that the company would have to seek about half the amount in the market place in competition with other borrowers.

"Obviously, we must maintain earning levels which are appealing to other investors," the report said.

U.S. Troops May Enter Laos For 'Rescues'

Times News Services

SAIGON — American "rescue teams" to help downed pilots may be sent in to Laos, the U.S. military command here said today.

"We would do anything we felt necessary to rescue downed crew members," a spokesman for the command said when asked if U.S. troops had crossed the border from South Vietnam.

The Saigon announcement came hard on the heels of the defeat of two South Vietnamese bases inside Laos and the shooting down of two U.S. helicopters and a jet fighter.

DEFENDERS DEAD

The 450 defenders of one base were wiped out by the North Nietnamese and a second base was under heavy siege. Field reports said the North Vietnamese were inflicting heavy casualties on the defenders.

The fall of the Saigon base on Hill 31 was the second major defeat for the South Vietnamese in the 19-day-old Laotian campaign to disrupt supply traffic down the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Last Sunday a ranger battalion was driven from a base five miles away with 323 of its 450 men killed, wounded or missing.

Shortly before Hill 31 was overrun, two downed American pilots were plucked from the fringes of the base after 21 hours hiding in a trench from the 1,500 to 2,000 North Vietnamese besieging the base. The anti-aircraft fire was so heavy it took 75 fighter-bomber strikes to suppress it enough for a rescue helicopter to get in.

20 BULLET HOLES

Associated Press correspondent William Barton reported from Khe Sanh that an American helicopter pilot flew back from a mission over the base with 20 AK-47 holes in his craft.

The pilot said he was signalled down to the outpost by troops "popping green smoke." They were North Vietnamese, but "they were dressed in ARVN (Army of Republic of Vietnam) uniforms," the pilot said. "They got them from the dead, I guess."

After he landed his Cobra gunship, the North Vietnamese troops opened fire. The pilot took off in a rush and literally skidded into Khe Sanh, Barton reported.

The U.S. command threw wave after wave of fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships in the battle to save Hill

Cabinet Invokes Bill 33

HIJACKED PASSENGERS including 67 U.S. Army inductees mill in immigration lobby of Vancouver International Airport after Western Airlines Boeing 737 was forced to land there instead of Seattle. No bomb was found aboard and plane left for Seattle at 1:09 a.m. today.

Monday Set As Deadline

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson announced today that the cabinet has ordered an end to the Teamsters Union strike of the general trucking industry.

At a press conference immediately following a cabinet meeting this morning, Peterson said a back-to-work order has been served to both Teamsters and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association under Section 18 of the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33).

The dispute has been referred to the mediation commission for a binding decision, but he told reporters the union has until Monday to go back to work.

Blair Whitelock, president of Teamsters' Local 31, contacted in Vancouver immediately after the cabinet decision was announced, told the Times there would be nothing to say until the union's officers had time to study the official order.

But asked whether the Teamsters would appear before the mediation commission, he said:

"Definitely not."

Peterson refused to comment on what the government would do if the Teamsters do not return to their jobs.

FREE TO BARGAIN

However, Peterson said the government hopes a binding settlement does not have to be served by the commission. He noted that both parties are free to continue bargaining.

The key factor in the dispute, he said, is the struck goods clause and he said he hoped it would not be too difficult for negotiations to be resumed because only one issue is at stake.

As he indicated in the legislature Wednesday when the house passed a resolution recommending an end to the dispute, Peterson said today the union will go back to work at the rate of pay tentatively agreed to in a previous settlement which was rejected by the employers.

"I am sure that the Teamsters, as this is the law of the land, will obey the law," Peterson said.

Invasion 'Misquote'

SAIGON (AP) — A spokesman for President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that Thieu had been misquoted as saying an invasion of North Vietnam is only a matter of time.

"The quotes were inaccurate and out of context," said Hoang Duc Nha, press secretary to the president.

"What President Thieu said was that South Vietnamese forces have taken the initiative and are now capable of fighting the Communists any time, any place, on any battlefield."

The English-language Saigon Post quoted Thieu as saying in a speech in Pleiku Wednesday that "a march on North Vietnam now only depends on the time factor."

The government news service, Vietnam Press, reported that in "answering the convention's request for a march north, President Thieu said it was only a matter of time."

Vancouver Gets SNOW!

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were called to numberous minor accidents today as a snowfall put a slippery glaze on streets in the Vancouver area.

Man Held After Jet Hijacking

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner told the Commons today that the government is giving "immediate and careful consideration" to the case of a youthful suspect being held in Vancouver following an aerial hijacking.

A Western Airlines jet with U.S. Army conscripts aboard was forcibly diverted to Vancouver Thursday after being hijacked on a scheduled flight from San Francisco to Seattle.

The immigration department identified the youth being held as Chappin Scott Patterson.

His home town is Shingle Springs, Calif., and his age 19.

Patterson threatened to blow up the plane, indicating he had a bomb, "something in a bag."

The tense sky drama began over Medford, Ore., about an hour after the 92 passengers — including 67 inductees and recruits — and a crew of five had left San Francisco aboard the Boeing 737, bound for Seattle.

It ended when the California youth with long black hair and a moustache surrendered calmly to RCMP officers in the emptied plane moments after it touched down at Vancouver International Airport. Police said charges were pending.

Few of the passengers knew about the suspense in the cockpit after the youth approached a stewardess in the galley and ordered her to take him to the captain.

He told Capt. Bruce De Spain of Seattle he wanted to go to Cuba. But when he was told the aircraft didn't have enough fuel for the trip, he settled for Vancouver.

The pilot said when the plane landed, the youth asked him not to go near the terminal building. He asked to talk to the tower.

Capt. DeSpain said the youth told the tower he had no bomb and wanted to give himself up.

The plane was scheduled to land at Seattle at 9:47 p.m. PST and arrived in Vancouver at 10:16 p.m.

Stations to Use Credit Card Check

Imperial and Gulf service station operators in Greater Victoria have a new international computer service to catch credit card crooks.

The service enables a check on a customer's credit card to be made within 30 seconds via a long-distance phone call to a computer centre.

People misusing credit cards annually steal millions of dollars in goods and services from oil companies.

In Toronto, at least six of the biggest oil firms indicated today they are using or are planning to use computers for instant checks on credit card purchases over $15.

Spokemen for Imperial and Gulf in Vancouver told the Times the service is already being used by their dealers in the Victoria area or will be by Monday.

Joseph Greer, Imperial's credit manager in B.C., said the computer check system has been used in the U.S. successfully for about a year.

LINKED TO COMPUTER

Calls from Canadian dealers go to a centre at Don Mills, outside Toronto, which is linked with the major computer bank in Atlanta, Georgia.

In Toronto, an official of Fina Petroleum said his company was forced to hire a costly computer-detective system because each stolen credit card has been costing at least $1,000 to $3,000.

Tom Allmand, Fina's assistant treasurer, said his company has had "some

Teacher Firing Goes to Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia government edict ordering the dismissal of teachers who advocate the policies of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) or the overthrow of the government by violent means has been challenged in B.C. Supreme Court.

The action was brought Thursday by six B.C. teachers who claim the ruling made Oct. 22 by the B.C. cabinet is invalid.

The group includes four university teachers, one Vancouver area teacher and an instructor at the Burnaby Vocational Institute. They are represented by lawyer Tom Berger, and are seeking a court declaration that the government did not have the power to make the order-in-council.

Mr. Berger said that while the action is not being brought before the court by a defendant, as is usual, the six have what he called "a special interest" giving them the right to submit their case.

George Cumming, appearing for the attorney-general, who is named as defendant, said the action is "premature."

The hearing continues.

IRA Women Arrested In Dublin

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — About 50 Roman Catholic women hurling sticks and wearing the uniform of the outlawed Irish Republican Army clashed with police today.

A police spokesman said 38 women were arrested.

The clash came when the women defied scores of police and British troops guarding the trial of four men arrested during funerals earlier this month for Catholic men killed in rioting in Belfast.

Colonel Facing Court Martial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army today ordered a general court-martial for Col. Oran K. Henderson on charges that he "wilfully failed to conduct a proper and thorough investigation" of the My Lai massacre three years ago.

At the same time, the army dismissed charges of "failure to obey lawful regulations" which were filed against Capt. Dennis H. Johnson, an intelligence officer.

This means that only one of 14 officers originally charged in an alleged My Lai cover-up attempt will stand trial.

Henderson, 50, of Indianapolis, was commander of the 11th Infantry Brigade at the time of the My Lai incident March 16, 1968.

The brigade was parent of an infantry force which swept through the hamlet area where more than 100 South Vietnamese men, women and children were slain, allegedly by members of a platoon headed by Lieut. William Calley, who is on trial at Fort Benning, Ga., on murder charges.

Henderson's court-martial will be held at Ft. Meade, Md., but no date has yet been set.

Oil Men Pause In Negotiations

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Oil company negotiators left Tripoli Thursday for consultations on Libya's demands for higher revenues from its oil, amid indications that a showdown is approaching.

The date has not been announced for a resumption of talks, but an oil company official said he expected to be out of Tripoli for at least five days.

Mile-Long Oil Slick Contaminates Long Beach, Tofino Area

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An oil slick estimated to be a mile long has washed up on Chesterman's beach, situated just north of the Long Beach national park on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

Traces of oil has also been found on Long Beach proper and slicks have drifted into Clayoquot Sound and contaminated beaches on the Opisat Indian reserve, Tofino residents report today.

"It is a terrible sight," said Enrie Bach, an official of the Chamber of Commerce, who was among the residents who discovered the slick Thursday.

He said the oil had polluted one of the most beautiful beaches on the west coast.

It was about 200 feet wide and most of the oil globules ranged from pea size to larger chunks close to a foot in diameter, he said.

William Silta, president of the Tofino Chamber of Commerce, said the oil appeared to be crude oil flushed from a ship's tanks.

In Vancouver, an armed forces spokesman said a helicopter crew confirmed the contamination but was unable to track down the source.

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, chairman of the House of Commons special committee on environmental pollution, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he was discussing the subject with minister-designate for the environment, Jack Davis.

"This is what I'm fighting against," he said. "The spill at Long Beach is tiny in comparison with what we can expect if the Valdez to Puget Sound tanker route is established.

"This spill proves the need for much tighter international control of shipping operations," he added.

Commenting on a telegram sent earlier by Alberni MLA Howard McDiarmid asking the federal government for a public statement on policies governing oil spills, Anderson said Canadian legislation to prevent such pollution was the "toughest in the world."

"But the problem is surveillance," he said. "That is why it is happening, plus the lack of tough international regulations."

Robert Baird, senior steamship inspector with the federal transport department, said the oil could have come from a long way out in the Pacific.

It added that it was more likely to have come from a tanker moving between Alaska and the U.S.

Norman Sewell, an expert on oil spills, said as long as it remained acceptable under international maritime law to dump bilge oil into the sea, people were going to have to learn to live with such slicks.

Sewell is president of a company which manufactures machines to clean up oil spills.

He pointed out between 300 and 500 million tons of such oil is deliberately dumped into the world's oceans every year by ships pumping out their bilges.

Dr. Leslie Schemilt, presi-

THOSE WHO 'DON'T LOVE CITY' AGAINST HIM

Reid Would Risk Vote

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Vancouver developer J. A. Reid told a public meeting Thursday night he would stake his $25 million waterfront residential-commercial proposal on a referendum vote.

Reid, who last fall angrily withdrew his development proposal because of the "abuse" he said he was receiving from Victoria council, made the statement in response to a question before about 150 people at the Empress.

The meeting was the second of its kind in two weeks, sponsored by the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

The panel included Reid, a representative of CPR's property branch, Marathon Realty, and Geoffrey Greenhalgh, the city's planning director.

The question period which followed a panel discussion turned up strong vocal support for and against high-rise re-development on the Inner Harbor.

●

Moderator John Di Castri opened the meeting by "categorically" stating the meeting was not meant for political purposes, but high-rise advocate Mayor Courtney Haddock was among the obvious supporters of statements backing Reid's three-tower proposal.

In his opening statement moderator John Di Castri, an architect, said "I would like to go on record and categorically state that the (CPAC) is in no way politically orientated. I would also like to state that under no conditions will this branch be manipulated or implicated in any political issue whatsoever."

He added: "We are here to try and provide the means by which the community can objectively assess important issues — not only affecting any one municipality per se, but the community as a whole ... this whole concept of community goes beyond personal and individual interest. ..."

Greenhalgh told the meeting that "whether we like it or not," development "is part of the free enterprise system."

●

He said development had to include a profit for the developer and added that when the city decided in 1967 that the waterfront should be redeveloped, "it was never intended that this would result in an exercise in uninhibited architectural sketches."

Reid opened his remarks by saying "you have not been given both sides of the story" of his development proposals.

None of his towers, he said, would be as high as the Executive House at Douglas and Humboldt.

He also wanted to "debunk" the impression that his proposal did not provide public access to the waterfront.

Arguments against his proposal had come from "people who don't love the city.

"There are a lot of people who like cities. Make no mistake about that. They like sidewalk cafes, they like action."

Attributing an "information gap" to the newspapers, he said "I appreciate that newspapers are money-hungry and want to sell their product.

"I appreciate that developers are money-greedy and want to make profits. I don't think there's anything wrong with that and I think somebody, somewhere, should have the intestinal fortitude to say so. ...

"This country was based on a profit motive — let us not forget that. There's no way we're coming in her to make a loss, if we can help it. And there's no way the Colonist or the Times is operating on a charitable organization. ..."

Reid said about his project that "we are flexible and we will change it." But he said "people say you are going to destroy the view — what view?"

Part of his project would be housing for senior citizens.

"They like to be where it's happening. I think this is a fantastic place for them to be."

●

Marathon Realty representative John McLernon said that with its early proposals for its side of the Inner Harbor, "somehow something got off the rails. We had a close look at it, and called it back."

McLernon said that Marathon is trying to provide "a catalyst to providing a better environment.

"We have the capital" to provide it, he said.

GLOOMY DAY

A Trek to Town Without a Hope

By Jack Scott

Notes from a man's diary on a melancholy day:

Hardly a morning now that I don't pick up one or more young people heading into town in a frustrating, often humiliating search for work and I marvel at their bottomless depths of patience and determination.

One pretty girl in her late 'teens with high school matriculation has methodically made the rounds of very office in every single downtown building in Victoria for the past three weeks, sometimes courteously received, more often rudely. Yet brightly tells me: "I'm bound to hit it right one day if I just keep on."

A husky youngster of about the same age who had scraped the barrel told me that Manpower had suggested he might train as a butcher. When he eagerly took them up on the idea they cautioned him that, the training over, he'd have to bide his time on a waiting list for an opening. Fine, said he, and how long a wait might it be? "Probably three years," was the reply.

This morning it was a tall, personable 24-year-old who has a Master of Science degree in civil engineering. He was on his way to Simpson's-Sears where, it seems, there was a slight chance he might be taken on selling men's suits.

"I over-educated myself," he grinned without malice.

I found myself thinking of an ironic line in an article from the Ubyssey that we ran the other day on Page Five: "The old guaranteed ticket to the good life just ain't what it used to be."

Scott

Talking later in the day to W. B. Thompson, Vancouver manager of the Technical Service Council, a job placement service which represents 400-odd Canadian firms, and he sadly confirmed that our dismal record in scientific research and development has made a kind of mockery of the Ph.D. or the M. Sc.

In one recent survey of 419 jobs for experienced engineers and scientists only 22 required advanced degrees and of 101 current openings for electrical engineers only one carries that requirement. Even in the presumably fast-changing field of electronics none of the 27 jobs surveyed required a Master's or Ph. D.

"Experience is more important to most employers than an advanced degree," Thompson explained. But how you get experience without a job is something no one is currently explaining too clearly.

So you meet these youngsters, all the way from the dropouts to those with the most sophisticated of higher educations, and you wonder that they're not headed down town to throw bricks at something or somebody. I put that to the lad with the Masters degree.

"You're okay," said he, "if you can keep your peace of mind and a sense of humor."

Strolled down the Gorge Road at lunch time to see the final demolishment of "Ashnola," the lovely old mansion that's being razed to enlarge the hospital there and it was, indeed, a saddening sight.

The expedition was at the insistence of a woman reader who phoned to say that we people in the newspapers should be ashamed that we'd given so little leadership in saving the old home. So, ridden with guilt, I went to pay my final respects.

But later, back at the office, our obliging Muriel Mixon burrowed into the library and found a fat file of alarums across the years by all sorts of newspapermen.

Characteristically, the earliest and most strident of them had come from my old friend, the ubiquitous James K. Nesbitt who observed, four years ago: "Greater Victorians are good at paying lip service, and not very much more, to history." Jimmy's own leadership in the fight to save Ashnola clearly hadn't been enough.

Since I'd never seen the old mansion before and knew little of its 83-year history it surprised me to feel a sort of instant nostalgia and an involved pang of sorrow at the sight of these last indignities of demolishment.

Such buildings are not merely beautiful in their own right, but they evoke the quality and style of an elegant, gracious way of life that, though we might not want its social inequalities restored, should surely endure as a memory. When the building goes the heritage goes.

And, falling into conversation with one of the workers of European background, he made the interesting point that the world's most indefatigable restorer of the ancient glories of affluence are the Eastern European socialist nations.

Every castle, every cathedral, every grand edifice that represented everything a Marxist ever stood against has been lovingly, painstakingly rejuvenated.

Much, much later we went with two other couples to everybody's "secret" place at the Esquimalt Lagoon to dig for clams and, hopefully, to find a Dungeness or two — though the crab-hunting seems to have fallen on evil days of late.

It's a fine place on a night when there's a big sky and a low tide and a driftwood fire going and we stayed much later than we'd planned. As we were ready to depart an RCMP prowl car drew up and two officers walked over to make inquiries.

This was the third time in as many winter visits there that we've encountered this police check-up and it wasn't the way I'd have chosen to end this particular day.

The policemen were relaxed and friendly, simply making a routine inquiry on what is apparently a routine patrol. I've since learned that they were probably checking on the size and numbers of the crab that are caught, if any, and I'm all for that enforced conservation.

It was just that there was something wrong with it somehow, that there is either a need or an imagined need for authority, in the name of the law, to be a presence at an isolated place chosen by people trying to get away from it all.

But, as I say, it was one of those melancholy days all around.

Student Arsonist Sent Home

By DOUG MacRAE

A girl student at St. Ann's Academy is en route to her home in another country, and the boarding school section of St. Ann's has been closed permanently, after three fires were set intentionally there last week.

The dormitory section, which housed 42 girls, was closed last weekend pending the outcome of a combined police-fire department investigation of the fires.

Police Chief Jack Gregory said this morning the girl responsible for the arson, a resident student at St. Ann's, had no relatives in Canada.

Because the matter of the cutoff age between juvenile and adult court jurisdiction is before the courts, the girl would have had to be kept in custody for "an undetermined period" if charges had been laid, the chief said.

The two-week investigation involved interviews with every student at the school.

Although the future of the entire St. Ann's operation has been in doubt recently because of a dispute involving school and St. Joseph's Hospital land, a spokesman at the school blamed the dormitory closure on the arson.

Accommodation will be sought for the remaining 41 out-of-town girls.

Students and staff at St. Ann's were so jittery by the end of last week that school work was being impaired, to the point that students would turn in a fire alarm if they smelled cigarette smoke.

The first two fires occurred on the third floor of the dormitory Feb. 15 and 16, in bedding and curtains. Both were controlled by a student, Gertrude Eichberger.

The third blaze caused $100 damage in the backdrop curtains of the school auditorium Feb. 19 before it was extinguished by firemen.

WILD WEATHER at sea off Umatilla Point near the Columbia River caused havoc aboard the Norwegian freighter Nego Victoria which docked at Ogden Point this morning. She had waited out part of the storm Wednesday at anchor in Royal Roads but met trouble Thursday when heavy swells hit her broadside, snapping chains holding her deck cargo, damaging bulwarks and air vents. It is estimated that nearly one million board feet of the 2,600,000 board feet of lumber was swept over the side. Unloading of her cargo begins Saturday at 8 a.m. and repairs and restowing are expected to take a week. The freighter, which finished loading at New Westminster, is bound for France.

GET RID OF SCHOOLS SAYS EDUCATION EXPERT

Schools and schooling are the biggest obstacles to the spread of education, author-teacher John Holt of Boston told an audience of teachers at the University of Victoria today.

Holt is a key speaker at today's annual convention of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

He said the objective of citizens concerned about education should be to "de-school society."

"What we've done now is give schools a monopoly on learning. It will be assumed that you do not have any knowledge unless you have been through this particular school system."

He said that western society had made the mistake of equating education, teaching and learning, with schooling.

HOLT
. . . for parks, libraries

He suggested that funds should be diverted from closed educational systems like schools to open institutions like libraries, museums and parks.

He said traditional concept of education has become so expensive that it has made formal schooling inaccessible to about 95 per cent of the world's population.

The United States will spend about $45 billion on elementary and secondary schooling by 1975, but in order for all children to have equal access to the system the budget amount would have to exceed $100 billion.

Rock Breakwater Approval Sought

The executive of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club voted unanimously Thursday night to apply to the department of transport for permission to build a stone breakwater in Cadboro Bay.

The club switched to stone from a planned timer pile breakwater after opposition was mounted in Oak Bay against the wooden structure. After DOT receives the stone proposal, they will ask Oak Bay council for its approval before granting the club's application.

Commodore Neville Life said today it was decided to press for the breakwater to provide winter mooring in Cadboro Bay and "ensure continued cohesion" among club members.

"If the club spread their boats around, our esprit de corps would disappear," Life said. "Without it, it might be difficult to muster enough bodies to run Swiftsure and other events."

The stone breakwater, 60 feet long and lower in profile than the wooden one proposed earlier, would cost the club $160,000. I would run along the outside edge of RVYC's offshore lease, starting some distance off Spurn Head.

NAVY SHIPS DELAYED

Engine trouble aboard HMCS Thunder and bad weather experienced by her and her sister ship HMCS Chaleur has resulted in delaying the arrival of Esquimalt's newest minesweepers.

Originally due to dock here at 10 a.m. this morning, they are now expected to be here between 7 and 8 p.m.

East coast-based crews are bringing the two ships from Halifax to Esquimalt.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A WHILE AGO I TOLD you about a wild goose chase that yielded information but no geese. Since then, the situation has changed. I can now claim nodding acquaintance with a lordly lesser Canada gander called Trudeau, a cackling goose of related species named Trudy, and a rare, white-fronted visitor which Mrs. Bertha Sweat has tentatively dubbed Beauty.

Add ducks of various kinds and you have the wild assembly that flocks around Mrs. Sweat twice each day for feeding. Chow-time, on a grassy slope above an Oak Bay cove, is something to witness.

★ ★ ★

I was privileged to do so on Thursday morning, in sunshine tempered by a chill breeze off the water. From a seaward window, we watched while first Trudeau then Trudy made their way up from the beach.

They were handsome birds, clean-cut in their black and slate-grey, and they bulked large among the waddling mallards already gathered for the feast. But the heavy set brown-and-grey bird that joined the Canadas was almost twice their size.

The white-front was wary when he blew in on Tuesday.

"But he's much friendlier now," said Oak Bay's goose-lady of the newcomer, "and he will feed from my hand."

Mrs. Sweet has made her home above the cove since 1948. Her hair is white, but her dark eyes are young. She filled a dish with grain, picked up a plastic bag of bread chunks, and we went out for the 10 o'clock feeding.

Other waterfowl turned up, among them a slender, aristocratic pintail drake in good appetite. The quacking mounted by several decibels as Mrs. Sweat began to deal out bread crumbs.

The Canada geese moved in to feed from her hand. So did the burly white-front. When the bread was gone, she scattered grain.

All except one — a brown and tan drake of Chinese strain — are wild birds. They come and go completely unrestricted. The ducks lay their eggs and hatch their young in foreshore retreats nearby.

Last year was a bad one for ducklings — mink and cats on the prowl took heavy toll of them.

But the geese and ducks that trade in and out of the sheltered cove are generaously supplied with watchful human friends. Another resident who expands their natural diet with handouts is H. R. Glover, a former Manitoban who once bagged his share of Canadas. Now, he'd sooner feed them.

Oak Bay "goose-lady" feeds wild friends

When the bread and grain had been gobbled, the wild flock dispersed. The geese returned to the shallows. So did some of the mallards, while others settled on a low sea-wall for sunbaths.

Although Mrs. Sweat doesn't play favorites, she has a special feeling for Trudeau and Trudy. She showed me her log of their arrivals and departures.

Trudeau first ventured up from the bay to feed on May 25, 1968, Trudy on Oct. 9 of the same year.

★ ★ ★

Since then, one or the other has frequently taken off in strong flight, sometimes in the company of members of their migrant tribe. Always though, they have returned, and now the white-front has added his presence to an experiment in friendship that Mrs. Sweat finds rewarding.

She lacks a car, and it isn't always easy for her to keep grain and crusts on hand for demanding appetites. But she does so faithfully, looking forward to the days when another crop of ducklings will take to the water.

THOSE WHO 'DON'T LOVE CITY' AGAINST HIM

Reid Would Risk Vote

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Vancouver developer J. A. Reid told a public meeting Thursday night he would stake his $25 million waterfront residential-commercial proposal on a referendum vote.

Reid, who last fall angrily withdrew his development proposal because of the "abuse" he said he was receiving from Victoria council, made the statement in response to a question before about 150 people at the Empress.

The meeting was the second of its kind in two weeks, sponsored by the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

The panel included Reid, a representative of CPR's property branch, Marathon Realty, and Geoffrey Greenhalgh, the city's planning director.

The question period which followed a panel discussion turned up strong vocal support for and against high-rise re-development on the Inner Harbor.

●

Moderator John Di Castri opened the meeting by "categorically" stating the meeting was not meant for political purposes, but high-rise advocate Mayor Courtney Haddock was among the obvious supporters of statements backing Reid's three-tower proposal.

In his opening statement moderator John Di Castri, an architect, said "I would like to go on record and categorically state that the (CPAC) is in no way politically orientated. I would also like to state that under no conditions will this branch be manipulated or implicated in any political issue whatsoever."

He added: "We are here to try and provide the means by which the community can objectively assess important issues — not only affecting any one municipality per se, but the community as a whole ... this whole concept of community goes beyond personal and individual interest. ..."

Greenhalgh told the meeting that "whether we like it or not," development "is part of the free enterprise system."

●

He said development had to include a profit for the developer and added that when the city decided in 1967 that the waterfront should be redeveloped, "it was never intended that this would result in an exercise in uninhibited architectural sketches."

Reid opened his remarks by saying "you have not been given both sides of the story" of his development proposals.

None of his towers, he said, would be as high as the Executive House at Douglas and Humboldt.

He also wanted to "debunk" the impression that his proposal did not provide public access to the waterfront.

Arguments against his proposal had come from "people who don't love the city.

"There are a lot of people who like cities. Make no mistake about that. They like sidewalk cafes, they like action."

Attributing an "information gap" to the newspapers, he said "I appreciate that newspapers are money-hungry and want to sell their product.

"I appreciate that developers are money-greedy and want to make profits. I don't think there's anything wrong with that and I think somebody, somewhere, should have the intestinal fortitude to say so. ...

"This country was based on a profit motive — let us not forget that. There's no way we're coming in here to make a loss, if we can help it. And there's no way the Colonist or the Times is operating as a charitable organization. ..."

Reid said about his project that "we are flexible and we will change it." But he said "people say you are going to destroy the view — what view?"

Part of his project would be housing for senior citizens.

"They like to be where it's happening. I think this is a fantastic place for them to be."

●

Marathon Realty representative John McLernon said that with its early proposals for its side of the Inner Harbor, "somehow something got off the rails. We had a close look at it, and called it back."

McLernon said that Marathon is trying to provide "a catalyst to providing a better environment.

"We have the capital to provide it," he said.

GLOOMY DAY

A Trek to Town Without a Hope

By Jack Scott

Notes from a man's diary on a melancholy day:

Hardly a morning now that I don't pick up one or more young people heading into town in a frustrating, often humiliating search for work and I marvel at their bottomless depths of patience and determination.

One pretty girl in her late teens with high school matriculation has methodically made the rounds of every office in every single downtown building in Victoria for the past three weeks, sometimes courteously received, more often rudely. Yet brightly tells me: "I'm bound to hit it right one day if I just keep on."

A husky youngster of about the same age who had scraped the barrel told me that Manpower had suggested he might train as a butcher. When he eagerly took them up on the idea they cautioned him that, the training over, he'd have to bide his time on a waiting list for an opening. Fine, said he, and how long a wait might it be? "Probably three years," was the reply.

This morning it was a tall, personable 24-year-old who has a Master of Science degree in civil engineering. He was on his way to Simpson's-Sears where, it seems, there was a slight chance he might be taken on selling men's suits.

"I over-educated myself," he grinned without malice.

I found myself thinking of an ironic line in an article from the Ubyssey that we ran the other day on Page Five: "The old guaranteed ticket to the good life just ain't what it used to be."

Scott

Talking later in the day to W. B. Thompson, Vancouver manager of the Technical Service Council, a job placement service which represents 400-odd Canadian firms, and he sadly confirmed that our dismal record in scientific research and development has made a kind of mockery of the Ph.D, or the M. Sc.

In one recent survey of 419 jobs for experienced engineers and scientists only 22 required advanced degrees and of 101 current openings for electrical engineers only one carries that requirement. Even in the presumably fast-changing field of electronics none of the 27 jobs surveyed required a Master's or Ph. D.

"Experience is more important to most employers than an advanced degree," Thompson explained. But how you get experience without a job is something no one is currently explaining too clearly.

So you meet these youngsters, all the way from the dropouts to those with the most sophisticated of higher educations, and you wonder that they're not headed down town to throw bricks at something or somebody. I put that to the lad with the Masters degree.

"You're okay," said he, "if you can keep your peace of mind and a sense of humor."

Strolled down the Gorge Road at lunch time to see the final demolishment of "Ashnola," the lovely old mansion that's being razed to enlarge the hospital there and it was, indeed, a saddening sight.

The expedition was at the insistence of a woman reader who phoned to say that we people in the newspapers should be ashamed that we'd given so little leadership in saving the old home. So, ridden with guilt, I went to pay my final respects.

But later, back at the office, our obliging Muriel Mixon burrowed into the library and found a fat file of alarums across the years by all sorts of newspapermen.

Characteristically, the earliest and most strident of them had come from my old friend, the ubiquitous James K. Nesbitt who observed, four years ago: "Greater Victorians are good at paying lip service, and not very much more, to history." Jimmy's own leadership in the fight to save Ashnola clearly hadn't been enough.

Since I'd never seen the old mansion before and knew little of its 83-year history it surprised me to feel a sort of instant nostalgia and an involved pang of sorrow at the sight of these last indignities of demolishment.

Such buildings are not merely beautiful in their own right, but they evoke the quality and style of an elegant, gracious way of life that, though we might not want its social inequalities restored, should surely endure as a memory. When the building goes the heritage goes.

And, falling into conversation with one of the workers of European background, he made the interesting point that the world's most indefatigable restorer of the ancient glories of affluence are the Eastern European socialist nations.

Every castle, every cathedral, every grand edifice that represented everything a Marxist ever stood against has been lovingly, painstakingly rejuvenated.

★ ★ ★

Much, much later we went with two other couples to everybody's "secret" place at the Esquimalt Lagoon to dig for clams and, hopefully, to find a Dungeness or two — though the crab-hunting seems to have fallen on evil days of late.

It's a fine place on a night when there's a big sky and a low tide and a driftwood fire going and we stayed much later than we'd planned. As we were ready to depart an RCMP prowl car drew up and two officers walked over to make inquiries.

This was the third time in as many winter visits there that we've encountered this police check-up and it wasn't the way I'd have chosen to end this particular day.

The policemen were relaxed and friendly, simply making a routine inquiry on what is apparently a routine patrol. I've since learned that they were probably checking on the size and numbers of the crab that are caught, if any, and I'm all for that enforced conservation.

It was just that there was something wrong with it somehow, that there is either a need or an imagined need for authority, in the name of the law, to be a presence at an isolated place chosen by people trying to get away from it all.

But, as I say, it was one of those melancholy days all around.

Student Arsonist Sent Home

By DOUG MacRAE

A girl student at St. Ann's Academy is en route to her home in another country, and the boarding school section of St. Ann's has been closed permanently, after three fires were set intentionally there last week.

The dormitory section, which housed 42 girls, was closed last weekend pending the outcome of a combined police-fire department investigation of the fires.

Police Chief Jack Gregory said this morning the girl responsible for the arson, a resident student at St. Ann's, had no relatives in Canada.

Because the matter of the cutoff age between juvenile and adult court jurisdiction is before the courts, the girl would have had to be kept in custody for "an undetermined period" if charges had been laid, the chief said.

The two-week investigation involved interviews with every student at the school.

Although the future of the entire St. Ann's operation has been in doubt recently because of a dispute involving school and St. Joseph's Hospital land, a spokesman at the school blamed the dormitory closure on the arson.

Accommodation will be sought for the remaining 41 out-of-town girls.

Students and staff at St. Ann's were so jittery by the end of last week that school work was being impaired, to the point that students would turn in a fire alarm if they smelled cigarette smoke.

The first two fires occurred on the third floor of the dormitory Feb. 15 and 16, in bedding and curtains. Both were controlled by a student, Gertrude Elchberger.

The third blaze caused $100 damage in the backdrop curtains of the school auditorium Feb. 19 before it was extinguished by firemen.

WILD WEATHER at sea off Umatilla Point near the Columbia River caused havoc aboard the Norwegian freighter Nego Victoria which docked at Ogden Point this morning. She had waited out part of the storm Wednesday at anchor in Royal Roads but met trouble Thursday when heavy swells hit her broadside, snapping chains holding her deck cargo, damaging bulwarks and air vents. It is estimated that nearly one million board feet of the 2,600,000 board feet of lumber was swept over the side. Unloading of her cargo begins Saturday at 8 a.m. and repairs and restowing are expected to take a week. The freighter, which finished loading at New Westminster, is bound for France.

GET RID OF SCHOOLS SAYS EDUCATION EXPERT

Schools and schooling are the biggest obstacles to the spread of education, author-teacher John Holt of Boston told an audience of teachers at the University of Victoria today.

Holt is a key speaker at today's annual convention of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

He said the objective of citizens concerned about education should be to "de-school society."

"What we've done now is give schools a monopoly on learning. It will be assumed that you do not have any knowledge unless you have been through this particular school system."

He said that western society had made the mistake of equating education, teaching and learning with schooling.

HOLT
. . . for parks, libraries

He suggested that funds should be diverted from closed educational systems like schools to open institutions like libraries, museums and parks.

He said traditional concept of education has become so expensive that it has made formal schooling inaccessible to about 95 per cent of the world's population.

The United States will spend about $45 billion on elementary and secondary schooling by 1975, but in order for all children to have equal access to the system the budget amount would have to exceed $100 billion.

Rock Breakwater Approval Sought

The executive of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club voted unanimously Thursday night to apply to the department of transport for permission to build a stone breakwater in Cadboro Bay.

The club switched to stone from a planned timber pile breakwater after opposition was mounted in Oak Bay against the wooden structure. After DOT receives the stone proposal, they will ask Oak Bay council for its approval before granting the club's application.

Commodore Neville Life said today it was decided to press for the breakwater to provide winter mooring in Cadboro Bay and "ensure continued cohesion" among club members.

"If the club spread their boats around, our esprit de corps would disappear," Life said. "Without it, it might be difficult to muster enough bodies to run Swiftsure and other events."

The stone breakwater, 600 feet long and lower in profile than the wooden one proposed earlier, would cost the club $160,000. It would run along the outside edge of RVYC's offshore lease, starting some distance off Spurn Head.

NAVY SHIPS DELAYED

Engine trouble aboard HMCS Thunder and bad weather experienced by her and her sister ship HMCS Chaleur has resulted in delaying the arrival of Esquimalt's newest minesweepers.

Originally due to dock here at 10 a.m. this morning, they are now expected to be here between 7 and 8 p.m.

East coast-based crews are bringing the two ships from Halifax to Esquimalt.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A WHILE AGO I TOLD you about a wild goose chase that yielded information but no geese. Since then, the situation has changed. I can now claim nodding acquaintance with a lordly lesser Canada gander called Trudeau, a cackling goose of related species named Trudy, and a rare, white-fronted visitor which Mrs. Bertha Sweet has tentatively dubbed Beauty.

Add ducks of various kinds and you have the wild assembly that flocks around Mrs. Sweet twice each day for feeding. Chow-time, on a grassy slope above an Oak Bay cove, is something to witness.

★ ★ ★

I was privileged to do so on Thursday morning, in sunshine tempered by a chill breeze off the water. From a seaward window, we watched while first Trudeau then Trudy made their way up from the beach.

They were handsome birds, clean-cut in their black and slate-grey, and they bulked large among the waddling mallards already gathered for the feast. But the heavy set brown-and-grey bird that joined the Canadas was almost twice their size.

The white-front was wary when he blew in on Tuesday.

"But he's much friendlier now," said Oak Bay's goose-lady of the newcomer, "and he will feed from my hand."

Mrs. Sweet has made her home above the cove since 1948. Her hair is white, but her dark eyes are young. She filled a dish with grain, picked up a plastic bag of bread chunks, and we went out for the 10 o'clock feeding.

Other waterfowl turned up, among them a slender, aristocratic pintail drake in good appetite. The quacking mounted by several decibels as Mrs. Sweat began to deal out bread crumbs.

The Canada geese moved in to feed from her hand. So did the burly white-front. When the bread was gone, she scattered grain.

All except one — a brown and tan drake of Chinese strain — are wild birds. They come and go completely unrestricted. The ducks lay their eggs and hatch their young in foreshore retreats nearby.

Last year was a bad one for ducklings — mink and cats on the prowl took heavy toll of them.

But the geese and ducks that trade in and out of the sheltered cove are generaously supplied with watchful human friends. Another resident who expands their natural diet with handouts is H. R. Glover, a former Manitoban who once bagged his share of Canadas. Now, he'd sooner feed them.

When the bread and grain had been gobbled, the wild flock dispersed. The geese returned to the shallows. So did some of the mallards, while others settled on a low sea-wall for sunbaths.

Although Mrs. Sweat doesn't play favorites, she has a special feeling for Trudeau and Trudy. She showed me her log of their arrivals and departures.

Trudeau first ventured up from the bay to feed on May 25, 1968, Trudy on Oct. 9 of the same year.

★ ★ ★

Since then, one or the other has frequently taken off in strong flight, sometimes in the company of members of their migrant tribe. Always though, they have returned, and now the white-front has added his presence to an experiment in friendship that Mrs. Sweat finds rewarding.

She lacks a car, and it isn't always easy for her to keep grain and crusts on hand for demanding appetites. But she does so faithfully, looking forward to the days when another crop of ducklings will take to the water.

B.C. TEL PROFITS NEAR RECORD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Near-record earnings of $19.05 million were reported for 1970 by British Columbia Telephone Co. in its annual report to shareholders released today.

The net earnings were $143,000 below the record 1969 earnings of $19.195 million.

The earning figures were made public earlier this month when the company made application to the Canadian Transport Commission for rate increases ranging as high as 15 per cent.

Earnings per share in 1970 dropped to $5.10, down 18 cents from the 1969 level, due in part to a small decline in earnings and in part to an increase in outstanding shares to 2,877,000 from 2,805,000.

The report said about $117 million will be required for capital expansion in 1971 and that the company would have to seek about half the amount in the market place in competition with other borrowers.

"Obviously, we must maintain earning levels which are appealing to other investors," the report said.

U.S. Troops May Enter Laos For 'Rescues'

Times News Services

SAIGON — American "rescue teams" to help downed pilots may be sent in to Laos, the U.S. military command here said today.

"We would do anything we felt necessary to rescue downed crew members," a spokesman for the command said when asked if U.S. troops had crossed the border from South Vietnam.

The Saigon announcement came hard on the heels of the defeat of two South Vietnamese bases inside Laos and the shooting down of two U.S. helicopters and a jet fighter.

DEFENDERS DEAD

The 450 defenders of one base were wiped out by the North Vietnamese and a second base was under heavy siege. Field reports said the North Vietnamese were inflicting heavy casualties on the defenders.

The fall of the Saigon base on Hill 31 was the second major defeat for the South Vietnamese in the 19-day-old Laotian campaign to disrupt supply traffic down the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Last Sunday a ranger battalion was driven from a base five miles away with 323 of its 450 men killed, wounded or missing.

Shortly before Hill 31 was overrun, two downed American pilots were plucked from the fringes of the base after 21 hours hiding in a trench from the 1,500 to 2,000 North Vietnamese besieging the base. The anti-aircraft fire was so heavy it took 75 fighter-bomber strikes to suppress it enough for a rescue helicopter to get in.

20 BULLET HOLES

Associated Press correspondent William Barton reported from Khe Sanh that an American helicopter pilot flew back from a mission over the base with 20 AK-47 holes in his craft.

The pilot said he was signalled down to the outpost by troops "popping green smoke." They were North Vietnamese, but "they were dressed in ARVN (Army of Republic of Vietnam) uniforms," the pilot said. "They got them from the dead, I guess."

After he landed his Cobra gunship, the North Vietnamese troops opened fire. The pilot took off in a rush and literally skidded into Khe Sanh, Barton reported.

The U.S. command threw wave after wave of fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships in the battle to save Hill

Cabinet Invokes Bill 33

—CP Wirephoto

HIJACKED PASSENGERS including 67 U.S. Army inductees mill in immigration lobby of Vancouver International Airport after Western Airlines Boeing 737 was forced to land there instead of Seattle. No bomb was found aboard and plane left for Seattle at 1:09 a.m. today.

Monday Set As Deadline

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson announced today that the cabinet has ordered an end to the Teamsters Union strike of the general trucking industry.

At a press conference immediately following a cabinet meeting this morning, Peterson said a back-to-work order has been served to both Teamsters and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association under Section 18 of the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33).

The dispute has been referred to the mediation commission for a binding decision, but he told reporters the union has until Monday to go back to work.

Blair Whitelock, president of Teamsters' Local 31, contacted in Vancouver immediately after the cabinet decision was announced, told the Times there would be nothing to say until the union's officers had time to study the official order.

But asked whether the Teamsters would appear before the mediation commission, he said:

"Definitely not."

Peterson refused to comment on what the government would do if the Teamsters do not return to their jobs.

FREE TO BARGAIN

However, Peterson said the government hopes a binding settlement does not have to be served by the commission. He noted that both parties are free to continue bargaining.

The key factor in the dispute, he said, is the struck goods clause and he said he hoped it would not be too difficult for negotiations to be resumed because only one issue is at stake.

As he indicated in the legislature Wednesday when the house passed a resolution recommending an end to the dispute, Peterson said today the union will go back to work at the rate of pay tentatively agreed to in a previous settlement which was rejected by the employers.

"I am sure that the Teamsters, as this is the law of the land, will obey the law," Peterson said.

Man Held After Jet Hijacking

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner told the Commons today that the government is giving "immediate and careful consideration" to the case of a youthful suspect being held in Vancouver following an aerial hijacking.

A Western Airlines jet with U.S. Army conscripts aboard was forcibly diverted to Vancouver Thursday after being hijacked on a scheduled flight from San Francisco to Seattle.

The immigration department identified the youth being held as Chappin Scott Patterson.

His home town is Shingle Springs, Calif., and his age 19.

Patterson threatened to blow up the plane, indicating he had a bomb, "something in a bag."

The tense sky drama began over Medford, Ore., about an hour after the 92 passengers — including 67 inductees and recruits — and a crew of five had left San Francisco aboard the Boeing 737, bound for Seattle.

It ended when the California youth with long black hair and a moustache surrendered calmly to RCMP officers in the emptied plane moments after it touched down at Vancouver International Airport. Police said charges were pending.

Few of the passengers knew about the suspense in the cockpit after the youth approached a stewardess in the galley and ordered her to take him to the captain.

He told Capt. Bruce De Spain of Seattle he wanted to go to Cuba. But when he was told the aircraft didn't have enough fuel for the trip, he settled for Vancouver.

The pilot said when the plane landed, the youth asked him not to go near the terminal building. He asked to talk to the tower.

Capt. DeSpain said the youth told the tower he had no bomb and wanted to give himself up.

The plane was scheduled to land at Seattle at 9:47 p.m. PST and arrived in Vancouver at 10:16 p.m.

Teacher Firing Goes to Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia government edict ordering the dismissal of teachers who advocate the policies of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) or the overthrow of the government by violent means has been challenged in B.C. Supreme Court.

The action was brought Thursday by six B.C. teachers who claim the ruling made Oct. 22 by the B.C. cabinet is invalid.

The group includes four university teachers, one Vancouver area teacher and an instructor at the Burnaby Vocational Institute. They are represented by lawyer Tom Berger, and are seeking a court declaration that the government did not have the power to make the order-in-council.

Mr. Berger said that while the action is not being brought before the court by a defendant, as is usual, the six have what he called "a special interest" giving them the right to submit their case.

George Cumming, appearing for the attorney-general, who is named as defendant, said the action is "premature."

The hearing continues.

Th' union has t' decide now if it's a case o' back t' work or back-t'-back.

Stations to Use Credit Card Check

Imperial and Gulf service station operators in Greater Victoria have a new international computer service to catch credit card crooks.

The service enables a check on a customer's credit card to be made within 30 seconds via a long-distance phone call to a computer centre.

People misusing credit cards annually steal millions of dollars in goods and services from oil companies.

In Toronto, at least six of the biggest oil firms indicated today they are using or are planning to use computers for instant checks on credit card purchases over $15.

Spokemen for Imperial and Gulf in Vancouver told the Times the service is already being used by their dealers in the Victoria area or will be by Monday.

Joseph Greer, Imperial's credit manager in B.C., said the computer check system has been used in the U.S. successfully for about a year.

LINKED TO COMPUTER

Calls from Canadian dealers go to a centre at Don Mills, outside Toronto, which is linked with the major computer bank in Atlanta, Georgia.

In Toronto, an official of Fina Petroleum said his company was forced to hire a costly computer-detective system because each stolen credit card has been costing at least $1,000 to $3,000.

Tom Allmand, Fina's assistant treasurer, said his company has had "some

Invasion 'Misquote'

SAIGON (AP) — A spokesman for President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that Thieu had been misquoted as saying an invasion of North Vietnam is only a matter of time.

"The quotes were inaccurate and out of context," said Hoang Duc Nha, press secretary to the president.

"What President Thieu said was that South Vietnamese forces have taken the initiative and are now capable of fighting the Communists any time, any place, on any battlefield."

The English-language Saigon Post quoted Thieu as saying in a speech in Pleiku Wednesday that "a march on North Vietnam now only depends on the time factor."

The government news service, Vietnam Press, reported that in "answering the convention's request for a march north, President Thieu said it was only a matter of time."

Vancouver Gets SNOW!

VANCOUVER (CP) Police were called to numerous minor accidents today as a snowfall put a slippery glaze on streets in the Vancouver area.

Colonel Facing Court Martial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army today ordered a general court-martial for Col. Oran K. Henderson on charges that he "wilfully failed to conduct a proper and thorough investigation" of the My Lai massacre three years ago.

At the same time, the army dismissed charges of "failure to obey lawful regulations" which were filed against Capt. Dennis H. Johnson, an intelligence officer.

This means that only one of 14 officers originally charged in an alleged My Lai cover-up attempt will stand trial.

Henderson, 50, of Indianapolis, was commander of the 11th Infantry Brigade at the time of the My Lai incident March 16, 1968.

The brigade was part of an infantry force which swept through the hamlet area where more than 100 South Vietnamese men, women and children were slain, allegedly by members of a platoon headed by Lieut. William Calley, who is on trial at Fort Benning, Ga., on murder charges.

Henderson's court-martial will be held at Ft. Meade, Md., but no date has yet been set.

Oil Men Pause In Negotiations

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Oil company negotiators left Tripoli Thursday for consultations on Libya's demands for higher revenues from its oil, amid indications that a showdown is approaching.

The date has not been announced for a resumption of talks, but an oil company official said he expected to be out of Tripoli for at least five days.

Mile-Long Oil Slick Contaminates Long Beach, Tofino Area

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An oil slick estimated to be a mile long has washed up on Chesterman's beach, situated just north of the Long Beach national park on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

Traces of oil has also been found on Long Beach proper and slicks have drifted into Clayoquot Sound and contaminated beaches on the Opisat Indian reserve, Tofino residents report today.

"It is a terrible sight," said Enrie Bach, an official of the Chamber of Commerce, who was among the residents who discovered the slick Thursday.

He said the oil had polluted one of the most beautiful beaches on the west coast.

It was about 200 feet wide and most of the oil globules ranged from pea size to larger chunks close to a foot in diameter, he said.

William Silta, president of the Tofino Chamber of Commerce, said the oil appeared to be crude oil flushed from a ship's tanks.

In Vancouver, an armed forces spokesman said a helicopter crew confirmed the contamination but was unable to track down the source.

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, chairman of the House of Commons special committee on environmental pollution, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he was discussing the subject with minister-designate for the environment, Jack Davis.

"This is what I'm fighting against," he said. "The spill at Long Beach is tiny in comparison with what we can expect if the Valdez to Puget Sound tanker route is established.

"This spill proves the need for much tighter international control of shipping operations," he added.

Commenting on a telegram sent earlier by Alberni MLA Howard McDiarmid asking the federal government for a public statement on policies governing oil spills, Anderson said Canadian legislation to prevent such pollution was the "toughest in the world."

"But the problem is surveillance," he said. "That is why it is happening, plus the lack of tough international regulations."

Robert Baird, senior steamship inspector with the federal transport department, said the oil could have come from a long way out in the Pacific.

It added that it was more likely to have come from a tanker moving between Alaska and the U.S.

Norman Sewell, an expert on oil spills, said as long as it remained acceptable under international maritime law to dump bilge oil into the sea, people were going to have to learn to live with such slicks.

Sewell is president of a company which manufactures machines to clean up oil spills.

He pointed out between 300 and 500 million tons of such oil is deliberately dumped into the world's oceans every year by ships pumping out their bilges.

Dr. Leslie Schemilt, presi-
